Lockheed payments told

Burbank, Calif. (UPI) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. said in a court-ordered report Thursday that it made "questionable" payments of $30 million or more to foreign countries and officials but has stopped the practice and is enjoying higher profits overseas.

The payments, which caused shock waves in several countries when they were first revealed, were blamed on two top Lockheed officials who resigned early last year but were retained as highly paid consultants pending outcome of a 14-month investigation which led to Thursday's report.

The chairman of the investigating committee said in a long news conference no names would be disclosed and no specific amounts paid to individuals would be released.

Carter to inspect sub

St. Simons Island, Ga. (UPI) — President Carter Thursday climbed into blue jeans as soon as he got to the retreat where he will spend the weekend, adding that he was "looking forward" to a nine-hour trip on a nuclear attack submarine.

Carter said the trip Friday aboard the USS Los Angeles was another of his efforts to get first-hand knowledge of American weapons and fighting men.

Small car boom seen

Detroit (AP) — The chairman of American Motors predicted Thursday that the domestic small-car market will triple or quadruple in the next few years and ensure a future for small-car specialist AMC.

"To be able to fish in a pond of 6 million new small cars instead of 2 million is infinitely better," Roy D. Chapin Jr. said as AMC previewed a display of experimental design cars for the 1980s.

Tanker standards pass

Washington (UPI) — The Senate voted tough new standards Thursday in an effort to stem the "epidemic of tanker accidents" which have led to huge oil spills in American waters.

Although sought for many years, the legislation was finally pushed through the Senate partly as a result of recent tanker accidents, including the grounding and break up of the S. S. Argo Merchant near Nantucket which spilled 7.3 million gallons of heavy heating oil into the sea.

Don't be alarmed

Brisbane, Australia (UPI) — Thieves broke into a bulk food warehouse in suburban Slack's Creek and stole a $2,860 burglar alarm, police reported.

Joint chiefs not asked

Washington (AP) — The joint chiefs of staff were not asked for a formal group opinion before President Carter decided to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday.

"There was not a request for a formal collective judgment by the chiefs," spokesman Thomas B. Ross said at a briefing.

Automakers win House victory

Washington (AP) — The House approved a major revision of clean air rules Thursday after handing the automobile industry a major victory by agreeing to postpone and weaken a scheduled tightening of car-exhaust standards.

On a 255 to 139 vote, the House approved an industry-backed amendment that puts off for two years some tailpipe emission standards due to take effect later this year. Others would be put off permanently.

Then the House approved the clean air legislation, 326 to 49, and sent it to the Senate.

In going along with the industry-backed tailpipe amendment, the House rejected both a tougher auto pollution timetable proposed by the Carter administration and a last-minute attempt at a compromise.

Although backers of the amendment said it would mean consumers wouldn't have to pay as much for cars as under the existing law or under the administration proposal, the action drew immediate opposition from environmentalists.

"The House has chosen to protect the $4-billion-a-year profits of the American automobile industry rather than the lungs of the American people. It is now up to the Senate to protect the breathing public," said Rafe Pomerance, a lobbyist for the National Clean Air Coalition.

The House narrowly rejected, 202 to 190, a proposed compromise that would have given the industry an initial two-year delay and then gradually would have phased in the tough standards called for by existing law.

This compromise was offered as an alternative to a tougher administration-backed proposal that would have delayed the scheduled tightening of the exhaust standards for just one additional year.

But the administration measure faced heavy opposition, and House leaders abandoned support for it at the last minute.

The Senate is expected to vote next month on its version of the amendments, which extend the tougher standards for just one year.

The House vote came as the members neared completion on a revision of clean air rules affecting automobiles, factories and power plants.

The industry-backed proposal was also supported by the United Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO. The labor unions feared that the tougher standards, requiring more costly pollution control equipment, would have hurt car sales, leading to unemployment.

But Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., said auto companies could have already met the tough standards if they had really wanted to. He accused them of waging "one of the most incredible lobbying campaigns that Congress has ever seen."

The action represents a major delay for the auto standards of the 1970 Clean Air Act. The law called for a 90 per cent reduction in auto emissions of three pollutants — hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides.

The standards were originally scheduled to take effect in 1975 and have already been postponed three times, to 1978-year models. But the industry contends it cannot possibly meet the standards this year and may never be able to achieve some of them.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who sponsored the industry-backed amendment along with Rep. James Broyhill, R-N.C., said the rejected compromise would have added up to $350 to the sticker price of new cars. The measure that was approved would add about $170, beginning with 1981 models, he said.

Dingell complained the compromise would have caused autos to be less efficient than those currently produced.

Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., chief sponsor of the bill, said the compromise would still protect public health and would acknowlege complaints of the industry that automakers can't meet the standards now set to take effect this year on 1978 models.

"We're going overboard" in trying to apease automakers, Rogers said.

Automobiles account for about 45 per cent of the nation's air pollution.

Existing law permits cars sold now to emit no more than 1.5 grams per mile of hydrocarbons, 15 grams per mile of carbon monoxide and 2 grams per mile of nitrogen oxides.

But these are scheduled to go to .41 grams per mile of hydrocarbons, 3.4 grams per mile of carbon monoxide and 0.41 grams per mile of nitrogen oxides on 1978 models' which will soon be rolling off Detroit assembly lines. Under existing law, automakers face fines up to $5,000 per car for not complying.

Under the Dingell-Broyhill amendment approved by the House, cars would have to meet the .41 gram-per-mile standard for hydrocarbons begining with 1980 models but would never have to reach the statutory standards set for the other two pollutants.

Instead, a new standard of one gram per mile would be set for nitrogen oxides beginning with model year 1982 and a new standard of 9 grams per mile of carbon monoxide beginning with model year 1980.

Both the rejected compromise and the administration measure would have brought all the original statutory standards into effect by model year 1983.

The automobile industry contends that cars now being sold remove more than 80 per cent of these exhaust pollutants, but that removing the remaining 10 per cent will be extremely difficult and costly.

It claims that nitrogen oxides, in particular, are difficult to remove from auto exhausts without hampering fuel efficiency.

However, industry critics claim that cars sold in California are already reducing about 90 per cent of these pollutants because of tough state laws that require special pollution-control equipment.

At least three tornadoes touch down

Severe weather raged through much of Nebraska Thursday with at least three tornado touchdowns. Property damage appeared to be minor and no injuries were reported.

Rain, generally light but accompanied by hail in some localities, fell across the entire state.

A tornado touched down briefly about four miles south of Cedar Bluffs in an open field during the afternoon, according to the Saunders County sheriff's office. Trees were reported down in the town, but there was no major damage.

In central Nebraska, a small twister hit the ground one mile south of Callaway, a Custer County community. A witness said tree branches were downed and the storm dumped marble-sized hail on the area.

Two inches of rain fell in a 30-minute period at Pleasanton, located in Buffalo County 19 miles north of Kearney. Minor lowland flooding was reported in Pleasanton, also drenched by heavy rains Wednesday.

A tornado was reported by the National Weather Service to have touched down briefly at North Bend Thursday afternoon, but observers attributed downed tree limbs to strong winds and not a funnel cloud.

Shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday, a funnel cloud was reported 10 miles southwest of North Platte. About an hour later, a funnel was sighted 12 miles northwest of there.

At 9 p.m. a spotter reported to the NWS seeing a funnel six miles southeast of Ogallala.

Marble-sized hail with heavy rain was reported at Fremont, while Beatrice received strong winds with heavy rain.

Roads between Hemingford and Alliance in the Panhandle were under water Thursday from two to five inches of rain in the Hemingford area Wednesday night. Crop damage was also reported there, the Associated Press said.

Hemingford received three inches of rain in town, but farmers around the community reported rainfall of three to five inches.

A similar storm hit the Hemingford area 2½ weeks ago, destroying the sugar beet crop that had been planted. Some farmers reported their newly planted sugar beet crop was washed out again Wednesday night.

A violent storm was reported in the Melbeta-Bayard areas late Wednesday. Three inches of rain accompanied considerable hail in those localities.

Early Thursday up to three inches of rain was reported 50 miles southwest of Valentine in Cherry County.

Shorthanded guard may lose money

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

A lag in Nebraska National Guard manpower may result in a loss of federal funding, guard officials said Thursday.

"What they'll (the feds) be doing is redistributing funds among states with National Guard units closer to full strength," said Maj. Leonard Krenk, public information officer with the adjutant general's office in Lincoln.

A drop from 99% to 73.7% of authorized manpower between January of 1975 and now, despite annual recruiting drives, is endangering funds, Krenk said, although he didn't know how much. The percentage of funding cuts won't parallel the percentage of manpower lag exactly, he said.

The lag may be caused by the lack of pressures or incentives to get recruits, Krenks said, such as a discontinued enlistment bonus or the draft which drove men to the stay-at-home military service.

The guard has 3,313 members, down from 4,047 at the end of April 1976 when 10 guard units faced relocation or deactivation despite a 90-day recruiting drive.

The Nebraska Air National Guard may be luckier from a funding standpoint, according to Col. Lloyd Johnson, commander of the Lincoln-based unit.

He contemplated no funding loss even though his unit is down to 83.1% of its authorized manpower, about 813 persons. That's a drop from 97.3% in January 1974.

What he's really worried about is the base's combat readiness, he said.

"The thing we're worried about is the lack of trained people," Col. Johnson said. He said qualified persons are lost at a rate of about three per month.

"It could be a concern," Krenk said. "Whether we're combat ready or not depends on our ability to perform the particular mission. It's a matter of did you get the job done?"

The Nebraska guard will use a media saturation and public relations campaign while the air guard is pushing a word-of-mouth campaign.

County to file 281 complaints against cinema

The Cinema X Theater and Adult Book Store faces 275 counts of operating amusement devices without permits, according to Bob Gibson, deputy county attorney.

Gibson said the charges stem from a failure of the establishment's management, Tara Enterprises Inc., to obtain state permits for some 40 coin-operated projectors. Each machine must have a sticker and every day the machines are without a sticker is a separate offense, Gibson said.

Six counts of exhibiting obscene materials will also be filed against the business, Gibson said. The charges should be filed in Lancaster County Court Friday, he said, but noted there may be a delay due to the mechanics of preparing such a large complaint.

The charges are a result of police investigations on eight separate days. Gibson said some of the machines were not working every day.

Failing to obtain a permit is a misdemeanor and carries a penalty of $25 to $500. A conviction on all 275 counts could result in a fine ranging from $6,875 to $137,500.

Cinema X is also facing 16 counts of selling obscene materials from a previous police raid. A hearing on those charges is set for June 7.

Radio offer sure to shock drivers

Wheeling, W. Va., (UPI) — Winners of the "Grim Reaper" contest are really losers, though they get free funerals for their trouble.

Radio station WNEU is offering free funerals to any listener killed in a traffic accident during the official Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Not your everyday contest, but the Wheeling radio station wants to shock its listeners into driving carefully.

"The contest is morbid," said program director Mike McVay. "But if we save only one life, it's worth it."

Carter sees veto as tool to keep budget in line

Washington (UPI) — President Carter warned Congress Thursday he reserves the right to veto bills that threaten his drive for a balanced budget, and named three that might hit his chopping block.

In a conciliatory statement that left room for maneuver and stressed his desire for "harmony," Carter sent the legislators an early warning signal against prospective passage of water project funding he opposes, higher farm price supports than he wants and education aid he is trying to reduce.

"I will work day and night to work out a solution to these potential threats to (White House-Congress) harmony, but I'll reserve the right to say no when necessary," he said.

Even as he spoke to a televised news conference, the House Appropriations Committee approved $800 million in aid to so-called "impacted" school areas, or twice what Carter requested.

At the news conference, Carter also:

— Said he had not "fired" or "punished" Maj. Gen. John Singlaub for his criticisms of planned Korean troop withdrawals, but merely transferred him to duty equivalent in stature to his former post as U.S. chief of staff in South Korea. He said Singlaub was guilty of a "serious impropriety" in publicly challenging presidential policy.

— Restated his intention to withdraw all U.S. ground troops from South Korea over the next four to five years, and claimed South Korea's President Park Chung Hee supports such a withdrawal. He said the United States will make clear to North Korea, China and the Soviet Union that "our (defense) commitment to the Republic of Korea is undeviating and staunch."

— Said the Soviets made "a sincere effort" in Geneva to make progress toward a second stage strategic arms agreement, although "substantial differences" remain. He summarized the three-part agreement negotiators will be considering and said he hopes it might still include "significant reductions" in strategic arsenals, plus "restraints" on the U.S. Cruise missile and the Soviet "Backfire" bomber.

— Conceded the prospective selection of right-winger Menahem Begin as Israel's prime minister "might create a question" for Middle East peace prospects, "But I think a large part of that question can be answered when Begin meets with me."

He declined to state specific U.S. proposals for territorial settlements required for Middle East peace, but said he assumed it would include Israeli withdrawal "partially or in their entirety" from occupied West Bank areas. Begin opposes any West Bank withdrawal.

The warning to Congress on spending marked Carter's strongest effort yet to deal with increasing congressional opposition without rocking the boat too much.

Calling Congress' cooperation "very good" to date, he said there is "one potential problem that is evolving that causes me some concern" — support for bills that will increase deficit spending and jeopardize his goal of balancing the federal budget by 1981.

He put some bite in his warning by naming three bills dear to many legislators' hearts as examples of excessive spending.

They were the House Appropriations Committee's approval of funding for 17 water projects Carter wanted stopped, potential Senate approval of higher farm price supports than he wants and congressional refusal to reduce aid to school districts with high concentrations of children of federal employes.

Asked whether he would veto these bills if Congress passes them in their present forms, he said he would rather not commit himself to a veto yet.

"But I certainly reserve the right to veto bills if I think they are excessive," he said.

He also said he would exercize his power to recommend that Congress rescind money already appropriated, "and use all the proper and legal prerogatives to defend my position."

Strict cigarette regulation sought

Washington (AP) — Two former U.S. surgeons-general and 10 organizations opposed to cigarette smoking petitioned the federal government Thursday to regulate cigarettes more strictly than saccharin and to require doctors' prescriptions for cigarette sales.

The petition filed with the Food and Drug Administration asked the agency to assert jurisdiction over cigarettes on the ground that tobacco contains drugs and therefore is under FDA's authority.

The FDA has proposed rules which would ban the use of saccharin as a food additive but permit its sale as a single ingredient, non-prescription drug. The FDA is now soliciting comment on the proposal and may make the rule effective perhaps in July.

After the petition was filed, FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said: "Tobacco is not within our jurisdiction. This is supported by legislative history and several court cases."

Pines said it is clear "that Congress never intended FDA or any other regulatory agency to regulate cigarettes."

The spokesman said the petition, "no matter how worthy it is, is misdirected to this agency. The only way cigarettes will be restricted is by mandate by Congress."

FDA officials will study the petition, however, before giving the group a formal response, the spokesman said.

The anti-smoking petition said there is less risk of getting cancer through the use of saccharin compared to the 300,000 premature deaths attributed each year to smoking cigarettes.

"Saccharin has been implicated in only one disease; smoking in well over half a dozen," the petition said. "Taking action against saccharin but none against smoking would be like grounding a Piper Cub for excessive noise while permitting Concordes to take off and land."

The two former surgeons-general joining in the petition were Drs. Luther Terry and Jesse Steinfeld.

Terry said it was completely inconsistent for the federal government to warn about the hazards of cigarette smoking while it also spends money to support tobacco.

Under price support programs enacted by Congress, the federal government has paid about $57 million since the 1930s for tobacco, including money to cover the government's losses when sales of farmers' tobacco were not enough to cover federal price-support loans.

Between 1965 and 1973, there was a subsidy program to help finance tobacco exports by making tobacco more competitive on the world market. That program cost between $25 million and $30 million a year.

John F. Banzhaf III, executive director of Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), one of the petitioning groups, accused the FDA of declining to act on cigarettes because of "folk myth and some political pressure."

Banzhaf said that if the agency does not take action on the basis of the petition, his organization will take the issue to federal courts.

FDA has taken the position that Congress did not intend to give it authority to regulate the sale and use of cigarettes. A spokesman said the basic act does not define cigarettes "as food, drug or cosmetic — if Congress wants to give us this authority, it can do so."

Banzhaf replied that the FDA's basic act empowers it to regulate any drug that includes "articles other than food intended to affect the structure of any other function of the body of man or other animals."

He argued further that if the FDA declines to take responsibility for cigarettes as drugs, the FDA should assume jurisdiction on the ground that cigarettes are "devices."

Banzhaf said that under its power to regulate devices, the FDA has asserted jurisdiction over a surgical nail, surgical devices, a comb labeled for dandruff and scalp infections, a product intended to hold false teeth in place, rubber prophylactics and even a phonograph record supposed to induce sleep.

Former President and Eagle Scout Gerald R. Ford received an award Thursday for "distinguished service to the youth of the world" from the World Scouting Committee.

Mrs. Allende in Paris

Hortensia Allende, wife of the late Chilean president, met briefly with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Thursday at the Elysee Palace in Paris. What they spoke about was not immediately known.

Wednesday, she met with Gaston Deferre, head of the Socialist bloc in the National Assembly, who proposed a rally in Marseilles in September of all those who "oppose the Pinochet regime and stand for the reestablishment of civil rights in Chile."

Cancelation hurts Anita

Singer Anita Bryant was "saddened" that the State Bar of Texas canceled her convention performance because she had taken controversial political positions, her husband and manager said Thursday.

"Texas has always been one of her favorite states," Bob Green said. "John Connally (former governor) made her an honorary Texas citizen. She sang at Lyndon Johnson's Funeral."

The late Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's body, in a crystal sacrophagus, soon will be placed in a Peking Memorial Hall completed in record time, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said.

Haldeman will challenge

H.R. Haldeman said Thursday he would "challenge" President Nixon's explanation of the Watergate cover-up with "gloves off and no holds barred" in a book to be released this fall.

"I feel now that I have to challenge President Nixon's explanation of the cover-up and that it's time to deal with many things that have been left unsaid. So I've made the decision to put aside the book I've been working on the past several years and to go ahead full steam on the personal inside story of Watergate."

Protest follows judge's ruling rape 'normal'

Madison, Wis. (UPI) — When a 15-year-old boy raped a girl in a stairwell at West High School, Judge Archie Simonson ruled, he was reacting "normally" to prevalent sexual permissiveness and women's provocative clothing.

The judge decreed that the youth — who was found delinquent — should be permitted to stay at home under court supervision rather than placed in an institution or other rehabilitation center.

Thursday, about 40 women, one wearing a bikini, paraded outside Dane County Courthouse demanding the judge's resignation.

"Rape is a crime, not a normal reaction," the women shouted. "Archie must go."

In his ruling Wednesday, Simonson mentioned newspaper advertisements, prostitution arrests, sex stories, several bars with nude dancing and young women who appear in public and "even in court" wearing revealing clothing.

"This community is well-known to be sexually permissive," Simonson said. "Should we punish a 15 or 16-year-old boy who reacts to it normally?"

Anne Gaylor of the Madison Chapter of the National Organization for Women was among the demonstrators. She said Simonson's remarks were examples of "blatant sexism" and "unbelievable callousness."

"Rape is a violent crime, a terrible crime and here is a judge calling it a normal reaction," Ms. Gaylor said.

"No woman, including women attorneys, should ever have to appear before him for any reason. And this is the man who is hearing prostitution cases. Resignation is his only viable alternative."

The sentence also brought protests from the district attorney's office.

"This is probably the most serious crime in the history of Madison public schools," said Assistant District Attorney Meryl Manhardt. "We're talking about a personal assault on a 16-year-old girl."

She said the judge's remarks about clothing were "particularly sexist." She said he was expressing the "general male philosophy that the way a woman dresses provokes a sexual attack."

Public interest in the boy's rehabilitation and in preventing such crimes in the future require he be sent to a residential treatment center, she said.

The youth and two others were charged with second degree sexual assault in the rape last November. A 14-year-old boy was sent in March to a home for boys and charges against another 15-year-old were dropped. The boy sentenced Wednesday pleaded no contest in January.

Simonson said a year of court supervision would best serve the boy and the public. He ordered the youth to continue treatment through a youth program and to study at home with a public school teacher until he is reaccepted in school.

He warned that the boy would be sent to a school for boys if he commits another crime or violates terms of his supervision.

Simonson is 52. He is married and the father of four children — three girls and one boy.

Michael takes matters, and car, in own hands

Ionia, Mich. (UPI) — Michael Ward, 3, decided he was going to school Thursday. He took his dog, hopped into his parents' car and drove off.

The youngster eased the car out of the driveway without disturbing his mother, weaved down the road and then veered off through a wheat field, a grove of oak trees and across several ditches.

The car finally stopped and overturned at an embankment about two miles from where it started.

Ionia County Sheriff's deputies, alerted to a "reckless driver" by nearby residents, investigated and caught up with Michael at the crash scene. They found him, uninjured, still in the car with his dog.

"He wasn't going so fast, but he sure knew how to drive," said Sheriff William Bensinger.

"He'd get down on the floor and operate the pedals, then get back up in the seat, once he got the vehicle moving, and steer it."

Circus helps things grow

New York (UPI) — "You're guaranteed of getting a seat on the subway during rush hour with a bag of that stuff," Sid Ehrlich, a Madison Square Garden Guard said Thursday.

Ehrlich was talking about some 2,000 pounds of elephant, camel and horse manure given away by Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus in pre-packed "Ponderous Pachyderm Powdered Pooo Fertilizer" bags.

"It's the best thing next to bat manure for gardening," Eric Jablin, a city gardener, said of the elephant dung.

Jablin and a friend, Adolph Strassheim, are members of a cooperative garden, and together they hauled off seven of the 20-pound bags on a hand cart and a dolly to their greenery across town.

About 30 others who showed up for the giveaway loaded their bags into cars and shopping carts or just carried them off slung over their shoulders.

"The mind boggles at the spectacular results circus manure can provide!" a circus publicist advertised. "Zebra manure can produce striped tomatoes A plant treated with camel manure can go days without water!"

Toy maker scales Trade Center

New York (AP) — A daredevil toy maker conquered the quarter-mile-high World Trade Center like a human fly Thursday, using an invention he fashioned from about $100 in material to scale the aluminum-faced monolith.

"The only sense of fear I had was at the beginning," said George Willig, 27, after police freed him on charges of criminal trespassing, disorderly conduct and reckless endangerment following his 3½-hour ascent. "I thought I would get stopped."

Thousands of spectators thronged the plaza at the base of the twin 110-story towers to cheer on the amateur mountaineer in a climb that began at about 6:30 a.m. and ended 1,350 vertical feet later.

"Don't arrest him. Don't arrest him," the crowd chanted when two police officers rode a window-washer's scaffold parallel to Willig mid-way up the building — the world's second-tallest.

"What are you, crazy or something?" were their first words to him, Willig said. Then they tried to get him to halt. One of them, Officer DeWitt Allen, said that Willig agreed to join them only if he got tired.

But the St. John's University graduate, who said he had climbed El Capitan in Yosemite National Park, kept climbing up a six-foot-wide strip on the northeast corner of the building's south tower.

Munching candy bars, sipping from a plastic water-bottle and resting periodically, he could make one story in 55 seconds. His only complaint was that the weight of the gear he carried was a strain on his shoulders.

He said he had planned the ascent for a year and designed the devices that hooked into grooves used to guide scaffolds from which workers clean the building's aluminum sides. The device was built to expand in the grooves under his weight, and he simply pulled himself up like a man climbing a utility pole.

A spokesman for Ideal Toy Corp. said the bearded climber was, and remains, "well-regarded" by his employer as a model maker of toys planned for future production. He had asked for the day off in advance, the spokesman said, and had given a pint of blood on Wednesday to the company blood bank.

Asked why he did it, Willig replied: "I did not expect anything. I just wanted the prize of the first ascent . . . I climbed it because I thought it was an exciting thing to do."

His achievement recalled the tightrope walk between the roofs of the twin towers by aerialist Phillippe Petit three years ago and the parachute jump from atop the north tower by skydiving instructor Owen J. Quinn nearly two years ago.

Like them, Willig was hailed by the crowd that gathered in the police stations to which he was taken in handcuffs. But, unlike them, he was handed a notice by the city's corporation counsel of a $250,000 civil damages suit.

"It's about time something was done to make people pay for these amusements," Corporation Counsel W. Bernard Richland said.

Willig was asked whether Mt. Everest was his next goal.

"Mt. Everest is not as exciting as this to me," he responded. "Too many logistics and too expensive."

Arrested before Willig had vanquished the building, on the same charges, were four companions, including his brother, Stephen, 22, and his girlfriend, Randy Zeidberg, 24, of Queens.

Willig additionally was charged with a violation of the city's administrative code for climbing a building without a permit.

All were released to answer the charges in court on June 22.

Moluccan terrorists free 105 hostage children

Assen, The Netherlands (AP) — The 105 children held by Asian gunmen were freed from a cramped village schoolroom after dozens of them developed stomach infections during the four days of terror, a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

The children were freed late Thursday and early Friday.

Wim van Leeuwen said the more than 50 sick children — all aged 6 to 12 — were taken by a fleet of ambulances to Wilhelmina Hospital in Assen, 15 miles away. Buses were called in for the other children.

"They are going to be all right," he said.

Van Leeuwen said the terrorists continued to hold six teachers, including school principal Eef van de Vliet. The school was ringed by heavily armed troops and police.

Ten miles from the village school of Bovensmilde, another group of terrorists held a hijacked train with 55 passengers. On Thursday, a young man was thrust onto the tracks in the lush Dutch countryside to stand for 20 minutes dressed as the symbol of death, with a noose around his neck.

Six militants from the Dutch community of South Moluccans have held the school and train since Monday, when they were seized in simultaneous maneuvers to back demands for the independence of the South Moluccan Islands and release of fellow gunmen jailed after a similar terror campaign in 1975.

The siege first showed signs of crumbling soon after noon Thursday, when the gunmen released a 7-year-old girl suffering the infection that eventually struck more than half of her companions.

In the next few hours — after prolonged negotiations — they freed three other children, two suffering from the mystery ailment and one from a heart condition.

There was a lull until around midnight, then the gunmen released two pairs of children, all hit by the infection.

At that point, officials said, the gunmen apparently decided it was time to free the rest of their terrified captives, who on Thursday had chanted desperately from the school windows, "We want to live!"

Holland harbors 40,000 South Moluccans, traditional warriors who were an important element of the Dutch colonial army. The terrorists want independence for their Pacific island homeland, once a Dutch colony and now part of Indonesia.

On Thursday, Johan Alvares Manusama, president of a self-styled South Moluccan government in exile, disavowed the terrorist actions and said on Dutch television his community was "deeply shocked" by the kidnaping of the children.

He claimed the terrorists belonged to an extreme minority.

"It defies belief that they can hold children hostage to get the release of prisoners," he said. "This has nothing to do with the South Moluccan cause. It is horrible. It is even worse if you think what the fathers and mothers of those children must be going through. I feel helpless when I see something like this happening."

The father of a 7-year-old held captive said before the release, "I feel a hatred against the Moluccans which I would not have believed possible. When I heard what had happened my first impulse was to take a gun and shoot my way into the school. Now I only feel empty."

Both groups of terrorists also agreed to accept food supplies after their refusal earlier Thursday, the Dutch Justice Ministry announced. The food helped alleviate conditions at the two siege sites, ringed by hundreds of police and troops, including sharpshooters and antiterrorist specialists.

The delivery of food and clean underwear to the train was the first in more than 50 hours. The school food delivery was the first in 24 hours.

At the train, where the hijackers have 55 hostages, they pushed a bound and blindfolded man out onto the tracks. He was dressed in white — the color of death in the Orient — and had a noose around his neck. He stood for 20 minutes and then was yanked back inside.

A spokeswoman for the Justice Ministry said the terrorists, who displayed three blindfolded captives Wednesday night, were clearly trying to show authorities the seriousness of their threats to kill hostages unless demands were met.

The spokeswoman said she did not think they were about to kill anyone.

The gunmen have demanded that the Dutch government free 21 South Moluccans jailed for political violence in a campaign to force the Dutch to help them win freedom from Indonesia, which became independent of Holland in 1949.

The extremists have also demanded a jumbo jet to fly them, their freed countrymen and at least some hostages to an undisclosed location.

The South Moluccas are a cluster of islands midway between Australia and the Philippines. They and the rest of Indonesia were the former Dutch East Indies colony.

Government officials, using a psychiatrist as an intermediary, continued "general conversation" by telephone with the terrorists at the school, the Justice Ministry spokesman said. The two groups of gunmen were linked to each other by a special telephone hookup.

Dutch Premier Joop den Uyl reaffirmed that the government would not negotiate a deal with the gunmen until the children were released.

He and Justice Minister Andries van Agt met in The Hague, the Dutch capital, with five leading members of the 40,000-strong South Moluccan immigrant community in the Netherlands. The purpose of the meeting was not disclosed.

"There is no concrete solution in sight," Den Uyl later told reporters. "We continue discussions. So far there have been no calamities."

Fourteen of the prisoners whose freedom the terrorists demanded are serving term for a similar double terrorist strike in December 1975, when they seized a train and the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam. Four hostages were killed.

There was more bitter talk of reprisals among the villagers in Bovensmilde, where South Moluccans make up about half of the 3,000 population.

"They've picked on our kids," said one middle-aged villager at a police barricade 500 yards from the school. "If that's how they want it they had better know we can play that game, too. They had better be damned careful. If they harm a hair on the head of one of our kids, blood will be spilled and it won't be ours."

West uneasy over Cuban presence in Africa

Maputo, Mozambique (AP) — The Cuban presence in Africa, a cause of growing anxiety in the West, has spread to 10 black countries. An estimated 20,000 Cubans are running farms and hospitals, training black armies and preaching Marxist revolution.

The latest African country to welcome Cuban assistance is Ethiopia, whose Marxist military government expelled a large number of Americans last month.

According to the U.S. State Department, 50 Cuban military technicians have arrived in Ethiopia, although President Fidel Castro claims they are only diplomatic personnel and doctors.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III says it "could be a serious development" if the Cubans are an advance party for hundreds more. However, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young says the Cubans "might be a little more rational" than the Ethiopians and help cool down internal disorders that have claimed hundreds of lives.

Cubans are also believed in Mozambique, Guinea-Bissau, Tanzania, Guinea, Equatorial Guinea, Sierra Leone, the Congo Republic, Somalia and Angola. Some are working as doctors, others as technicians, military advisers and teachers.

"We are not only a Latin American nation," Castro boasted recently. "We are a Latin African nation."

Cuba's influence in Africa has been gradually increasing since 1964 when Castro began assisting a liberation movement in Guinea; it grabbed the world's attention in 1975 when some 15,000 Cuban troops helped the Marxist Popular Movement win the Angolan civil war.

The Cuban presence remains most visible in Angola, a former Portguese colony.

"Currently Cubans can be seen everywhere working as advisers and experts," according to an eyewitness account distributed by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

"Besides the 10,000 to 15,000 Cuban soldiers, officers and instructors, now Cuban experts and advisers can be seen in every rank in the (government) apparatus and in the economy. They are present everywhere and very active."

Western journalists find it difficult to obtain entry permits to visit most African countries where Cubans are active.

Tanjug said Cubans "even sit on business desks as Angolan representatives when deals are negotiated with foreign firms."

"The Yankee imperialists say that the Cuban comrades come to exploit Angola," said Angolan Prime Minister Lopo do Nascimento. "But Cuba has no concessions in Angola, no oil, no mines, no forests.

"They are here with clean hands. The Americans have concessions in our country, not the Cubans. The Cubans don't have them and never will."

Their olive-green uniforms, baseball caps and swarthy complexions betray their identity.

Western diplomats in Mozambique say they have yet to see a Cuban, although about 150 are reported working on sugar plantations, in hospitals and in other public services.

In Guinea-Bissau, they help run medical services in the steamy capital city of Bissau. Diplomats there say the facilities are well-run by African standards.

There is a blanket of secrecy, however, over Cuba's role in providing military advisers to black nationalist movements fighting white governments in Rhodesia and South-West Africa — Namibia.

Guerrilla training camps in southern Angola, Mozambique and Tanzania — believed supervised by Cubans — are off limits to journalists. Western diplomats can only assume Cubans are there.

Castro told a recent meeting in Havana that aid to Africa "has taken different forms. Sometimes we give weapons, on other occasions we have sent men. We have sent military instructors, or doctors or construction workers."

Like black American diplomats, the Cubans stress their ties to Africa, pointing out that one-fourth of Cuba's 9.5 million people are black.

Cuban support of black nationalist movements in Mozambique, Angola and Guinea-Bissau paid off when those groups took over the governments.

But the history of Cuba's role in the continent is not without its setbacks. Cuba befriended the leftist regime of Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, but he was ousted by a coup in 1966. The Cubans were expelled.

Two years later, the Republic of the Congo threw out most of several hundred Cuban advisers, claiming they were meddling in internal affairs. They returned in 1973 after a leftist regime took power.

Castro's friends in Africa claim the Cubans are no threat to their sovereignty.

"They will return to their land one day when we decide so, the same way they came, as friends of our people and without dollars in their pockets," Angolan Prime Minister do Nascimento said.

Pope condemns vendetta

Vatican City (UPI) — Pope Paul VI condemned Mafia customs of vendettas and silence Thursday in an address to bishops of the regional conference of Italy's poverty- and crime-ridden provinces of Basilicata and Calabria.

The 79-year-old pontiff said:

"We have only to consider that twisted concept of honor which is the vendetta, the obligatory repayment of an insult, or that underground conspiracy of delinquency which — taking advantage of a certain custom of silence — offers suitable ground for spreading crime."

The pope said migration from the poor provinces in recent years had spread "certain new customs which, because of the amorality and even immorality resulting from them, cannot be considered a step forward."

Peruvian tenor to star in opera

Lima, Peru (UPI) — "The Secret Marriage," an opera first performed in Lima 158 years ago, opens again this August with the well known Peruvian tenor Luis Alva in the leading role.

Alva had had a long career in European opera houses, but he is singing for the first time in his native Peru in the opera by Italian composer Domenico Cimarosa.

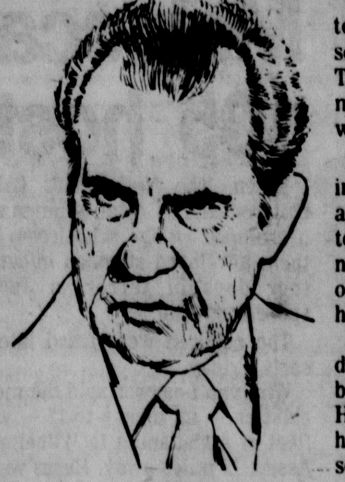
Same old Nixon

Jack Anderson

Washington — There he was back in our living room, the same Richard Nixon as of old, with the unfortunate sloping nose, the marionette hand gestures and the awkward personality.

At times, we felt a twinge of sympathy for this lonely, suspicious man who had fought so hard for public approval and had been rebuffed so often. We caught an occasional glimpse beneath the psychological scar tissue at the deeply private Nixon, a shy, sensitive man who used to wake up in the White House wondering whether he was president.



"I would have a feeling," he told a friend, "that I had something to tell the president. Then I would suddenly shake myself awake and realize I was the president."

His fall from the pinnacle into the black pit and the awful agony that followed, according to intimates, devastated the inner Nixon. Only the attentions of his wife, they told us, saved him from total collapse.

We have now listened to him defend his record for six hours before the television cameras. His former aggressiveness and his harsh features have been softened by the ravages of time and tribulation. Yet he came across as the same dogged, dauntless Nixon we had known of yore.

There were the standard Nixon distortions. His predecessors had not, as he implied, misused the FBI and CIA the same as he did. In fact, the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover refused to carry out Nixon illegal operations. This was the reason Nixon established the notorious White House plumbers.

Nor did he intervene in the India-Pakistan war to save West Pakistan, as he claimed. He dispatched a naval task force into the Bay of Bengal, where India and Pakistan were fighting over Bangladesh. This is separated from West Pakistan by more than a thousand miles of the Indian subcontinent. To reach West Pakistan, the task force would have had to steam all the way around the tip of India into the Arabian Sea.

Contrary to the Nixon version of events, it was also Meade Alcorn who fired the unhappy Sherman Adams for President Eisenhower in 1958. And Nixon's claim that his Watergate conduct was not criminal put political is disputed by a 19-0 vote of the Watergate grand jury, and unanimous statement by the House impeachment panel.

This goes to the heart of the Watergate horror. Nixon looked upon himself as the sovereign, who was above the law. This is the Nixon who tried to bring pomp and flourish to the White House, who wanted to dress up the White House police in gaudy, Gilbert-and-Sullivan uniforms. His entry into the East Room for state dinners was sometimes heralded by the blast of trumpets.

As the sovereign, Nixon felt he couldn't violate the law because he was the law. Extralegal and illegal operations became legal, therefore, if he sanctioned them.

When Nixon swore to uphold the Constitution, he should have read it. For under the Constitution, it's not the president but the people who are the sovereign. The president is merely the sovereign's salaried employee.

Farm bill problem remains one of high production

The problem with the farm bill now working its way through Congress is about as old as farming itself. Congress very likely would come up with a bill containing higher loan and target support prices than are currently the case for wheat and corn and other products.

It very well may do just that. But if it does, the measure seems destined for a presidential veto. From the farm supporters' point of view, government supports should at least equal the cost of production.

From President Carter's point of view, supports must be low enough so as not to create higher federal deficits. If Carter sticks to his guns, he will win the battle and grain producers will face the same problems that have plagued them for years.

One is perplexed to figure out what the best answer might be. Even farmers themselves are far from accord on the subject. If a vote were taken, it is possible that the President might chalk up a victory.

A lot of agriculture runs with an anti-government attitude, which means you produce at your peril. There is no question of what happens in the process. With production's exceeding demand, prices stay low and profits for corn and wheat are skimpy or non-existent.

As this year's wheat nears maturity and the corn begins to grow, there are already huge supplies in storage from the past two years. Farmers who want to store their wheat this summer, waiting for a better price, are likely to find no means of doing so.

That kind of situation can do nothing but push the price down in the market place. Adding to the problem are reports that production throughout the world may hit record highs this year.

The matter is not one to be viewed lightly. It is not necessarily good news that farm crops will be at low price levels. For one thing, we know that low farm prices do not necessarily mean low consumer prices in the grocery store. In fact, they seldom mean that.

And if the ultimate end of things is the bankruptcy of sufficient numbers of farmers to bring supply into balance with demand, the process will be a harsh one for us all. When the process would be completed, controlled prices of farm products would boom the cost of food for all Americans.

Little wonder that the position of the secretary of agriculture is one of the least envied in every administration that comes to Washington.

Is Carter starting war?

Will the eventual withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea really lead to war, as Army Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub states? For saying so, the general lost his job in Korea.

Subsequently, he has gone on to tell the same thing to the House Armed Services Committee. His reasoning is that North Korea will take the withdrawal as a sign of U.S. weakness and invade their neighbor to the south.

The issue is not quite as simplistic as it sounds, but it is a matter of basic principle. The principle of the Carter administration seems to be that this nation is not going to be an international watchdog.

Additionally, Carter seeks to turn away from military confrontations as a means of settling disputes. He is heading that way in the Middle East as well as in Korea.

We are not abandoning Israel by any means but Carter has made it plain that he does not intend to back up the Jewish state unless it involves a matter of fundamental existence. He would like to settle Arab-Israeli differences through negotiations, not war.

In Korea, he is telling the South that this nation is not forever going to sink large sums of money into a foreign military presence. We do not intend to abandon South Korea but we expect it to stand on its own two feet and we hope that North Korea can see the value of peace as well as war.

It is not an easy process to define and it is even a harder path to follow but it does seem that if the world is ever going to peacefully settle its problems, something has to give. If nations go on forever with the threat of war as a major part of their diplomacy, no real or lasting peace can be achieved.

We doubt there is any greater risk in the Carter approach than in the one inherent in Gen. Singlaub's criticism. Manning front battle lines throughout the world does not seem to us to be the most promising posture the nation could assume.

Part of the reason Carter was elected was that the American people were looking for some new approaches and that is what they are now getting in both foreign and domestic affairs. There is some risk but we think it is worth taking.

No MacArthur case for this president

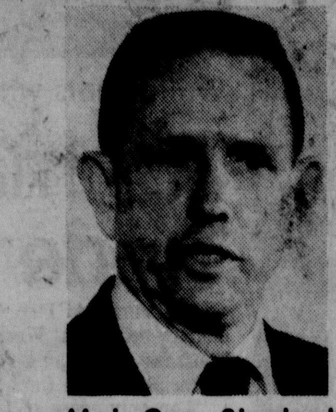
Jack Germond
Jules Witcover

Washington — If there had not been a Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, President Carter might have been excused if he had invented him. The case of the dissenting general provided one of the rare opportunities for the President to take an action that is essentially beyond challenge — and, at the same time, politically rewarding.

Few would argue that a president, any president, should allow a military officer in Singlaub's position to publicly challenge established national policy, particularly on something as touchy as the plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea and its potential consequences. The general couldn't be permitted to speculate that the withdrawal could lead to war, if only because that is just the sort of speculation that can become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

But Carter has options about how he would act in the case, and the course he chose to follow is another demonstration of the natural political "feel" he brings to the White House—a quality that seems to have been conspicuously missing recently in some of his dealings with Congress.

At the one extreme, the President might have directed Secretary of Defense Harold Brown to quietly recall Singlaub without the White House itself becoming directly involved. Whether or not that received any prominent attention in the press, the message would have been flashed along the grapevine to everyone in the military: Don't trifle with this president. Indeed, in his initial irritation at the Singlaub interview, that was the course Carter began to follow; there was no plan from the outset to bring the general to the White House. But that was also a course that might have let the political opportunity slip by, and Jimmy Carter didn't get where he is today by missing openings.



Maj. Gen. Singlaub

At the other extreme, Carter could have made more of a circus of the affair by not only summoning Singlaub back to the United States but by, for example, going before the television cameras himself to announce the decision in the case. That was an excess he avoided.

What Carter managed to do instead was send word not only to the military but to the public at large that he was very much in command here, and secure enough about it to handle it personally, if not quite routinely.

The display of firmness was essential for Carter for several reasons — not the least being the reputation he has been gaining here for caving in to Congress in critical confrontations. The President's advisers and supporters inevitably credit him with showing "flexibility" in such situations, but one man's flexibility can be another man's white flag. And Carter had been displaying little of the political toughness for which he had now such a reputation in dealing with the Georgia legislature.

Beyond this, however, the Singlaub affair gave Carter what one adviser called "an opportunity to reestablish the principle of civilian control of the military" when the White House is looking ahead to intensive national debate later this year over such things as another Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, and the direction and amount of federal defense spending, the kind of issues on which outspoken military lobbying has been the rule rather than the exception even after administration policy has been determined.

The danger of a backlash from the right was obvious, even before Ronald Reagan weighed in from Buffalo with his judgment that Carter's handling of the affair was "disgraceful" and that the President had shown "petulance" in choosing to "humiliate" Singlaub. And Carter's handling of the case, however adroit, has not insulated him against carping from the right.

But he has avoided giving the conservatives a chance to make John K. Singlaub into another Douglas MacArthur.

Ted Kennedy's power play based in OTA

William Safire

Washington — Sen. Ted Kennedy, champing at the bit part he has been assigned during a Democratic administration, has begun his campaign for a far more impressive role in the play of American power.

The stage he has chosen is science and technology — with its reach into domestic health programs and international agreements — and the vehicle is the steadily growing Office of Technology Assessment.

That is the group Congress set up five years ago to help congressmen make sense out of the blur of scientific facts and figures whizzed past it by the Defense Department and HEW. Like the General Accounting Office and the new Congressional Budget Office, the OTA is set up to be bipartisan: its board is half House and half Senate, half Democrat and half Republican.

Under the new chairmanship of Ted Kennedy, however, the Office of Technology Assessment — with its $8 million annual budget for 154 staffers and scores of consultancy plums — has become the happy hunting ground for Kennedy apparachiks.

Quietly, last week, former Democratic Congressman Emilio Daddario, who has been Director of the OTA since its start, quit — effectively forced out by Chairman Kennedy, who will tell the board this week that his choice for successor is his longtime aide, Ellis Mottur.

Bitterly, this week, the vice chairman of the OTA board, Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., told House leaders she intended to resign in protest.

"Senator Kennedy has taken over this office," the respected Mrs. Holt charges, "and has made it his personal political vehicle. This was never supposed to be a device for publicity and grandstand plays."

What troubles Mrs. Holt and other believers in the need for a responsible, bipartisan group to study technology for the Congress is the "quickie" studies rammed through by the Kennedy men, such as a saccharine report that duplicates much other work in the field but is well timed for television news.

More troubling to some scientists is the way Kennedy is trying to arrange for permanent dominance by the "Charles River Gang" of liberal technocrats. He seeks to have the OTA's tail — its outside advisory council — wag the dog, by turning the advisory council into a self-perpetuating club. He also wants the council to "study" (which means purge) the OTA staff.

As might be expected, the head of the advisory council — who replaced Harold Brown, now secretary of defense — is an old Kennedy hand: Jerome Weisner, whose job as science adviser to President John Kennedy helped move him to his present spot as president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Kennedy-Weisner faction, over the protests of the conservative minority, has already dumped J. Fred Bucy, president of Texas Instruments, from the advisory council. Although the outspoken Bucy has written and sent in more critiques of proposed projects than any other member, Kennedy claims he is being dropped for poor attendance at meetings.

The senator's real reason for blocking the reappointment of Bucy is personal and ideological: The Texan dared to oppose some spending on Kennedy pet projects, and wanted a study of the impact of selling certain integrated circuit technology to the communists.

Testifying before the Jackson subcommittee this week, Bucy outlined the danger of handing over our six-year lead in circuitry know-how, vital to missile sophistication. An objective study of that subject is the last thing the "Charles River Gang" wants to finance.

How can Kennedy take over an operation so carefully balanced between two houses and two parties? Easy: While the senators usually vote as a bloc, Rep. Morris Udall on the House side votes as a liberal with Kennedy, giving him automatic control.

Ordinarily, the House speaker would resist this subjugation of the House by the Senate, but the House speaker happens to come from the "Kennedy district" in Massachusetts, and Tip O'Neill is not about to cross his patron saint for something as foolish as institutional equality.

As a result, the Kennedy power play will probably succeed. Mrs. Holt's protest will cause the matter to be investigated by the House Committee on Science and Technology, which is headed by Olin E. 'Tiger" Teague, the redoubtable Texan whose recent hospitalization made possible the Kennedy power grab. Some "oversight" will come from that quarter.

But we can expect a flow of reports from the politicized Office of Technology Assessment in the future that will show how right Kennedy is on everything from medical research to mass transit with the scientific community's seal of approval on everything that puts consumerism over the fight against inflation, environmentalism over employment.

That's too bad: Congress had a good idea in trying to cope with legislative decisions requiring reliable, expert knowledge. But students of the classic political power play must salute the Kennedy performance, and eagerly await the drama ahead when this actor stars opposite the power player in the White House.

Correction on Devaney's exercise views

Today's Mail

Misunderstanding cleared

Lincoln, Neb.

We recently received a long-distance phone call from the United Press International writer who originally wrote the article: "Nebraskans are too fat and it could just kill you," wherein it was implied that Mr. Bob Devaney was against exercise for people who are beyond the age of 30. The UPI writer explained that Mr. Devaney's statements were "edited down" by the Chicago news bureau and further edited by The Lincoln Star. The resulting statements which reached the Nebraska public implied something totally unintended by Mr. Devaney.

Due to this editing, a misunderstanding occurred between Mr. Devaney and us. As stated in our first letter to the editor, we know that Mr. Devaney is definitely a promoter of exercise and we apologize to him for this misunderstanding. We would hope that future statements by a person of the fame of Bob Devaney, and which are to be released to a large public audience, will be more carefully scrutinized by the media to insure their accuracy.

We do not retract our statements concerning the value of exercise nor do we retract our statements concerning the poor physical education and coaching models of fitness that all too often roam the fields and gymnasia of our schools.

It should again be emphasized that exercise by people over 30 years of age is generally very good. Such a statement is supported unequivocally by the scientific community. However, such exercise programs should be initiated in moderation, under the supervision of a knowledgeable person, and with the endorsement of a physician.

Physical education and athletic programs are important for all Nebraskans and we hope that the influence of both will increase the quality of life for our citizens.

What violations?

Lincoln, Neb.

When newly elected council chairman, Richard Baker, took office on Monday, May 16, he read a statement referring to the City Council and to the mayor saying, "In the past we have both been guilty of overstepping our legal authority."

It's hard to understand why such a dramatic accusation with such serious implications could receive so little follow-up attention from the media. What were these occasions when either the council or the mayor violated legal bounds? The city attorney must be equally puzzled and concerned since it is his job to see that all actions taken by either body are in conformance with the city charter and the ordinances that implement the charter.

In summing up the powers of the City Council, the charter says: "In addition to exercising its general legislative, investigatory and audit powers, the council shall make or confirm appointments as provided by the charter, adopt and (sic) budget, set the taxes and assessments, and take such other actions as it deems necessary and as are consistent with this charter."

In addressing the power of the mayor in relation to the council, the charter says: "The mayor shall have the right to attend council meetings and to appear before the council for the purpose of expressing his views on matters pending before the council. He shall have the power to present messages, reports, and other communications to the council, to propose legislation, and to call special meetings of the council."

I am unable to recall any violation of either of these charter laws on the part of either the council or the mayor during the four years I served on the City Council. Don't we all have a right to know what "legal authority" the two bodies are "guilty of overstepping?"

SUE BAILEY

Charity at home

Wilber, Neb.

This country is really something else. It is so unfair to some of its people, especially when it comes to welfare programs and other such aid, state, local or whatever.

I have nothing against other people settling in this country and then getting on welfare, but I cannot understand why so many people and programs are willing to jump in and help them and then turn their backs on the needs of the native-born. Some are in situations similar to those of the new Americans — Vietnamese, Cambodians, etc.

The average American struggles all his life here to make ends meet and a foreigner comes in and in less than a year, there is a story in the paper about how he has a big business going and a $100,000 home.

Meanwhile the poor American pays for it, and goes without a lot.

CATHY DRDA

Zoo party

Lincoln, Neb.

There are times when words can't express true feelings. The Zoo Party, sponsored by the Sowers Club on Saturday, May 21, was one of those times.

The support the residents of this city and surrounding towns gave us by taking part was fantastic. Everyone looked as if he were enjoying himself, and the Sowers members were very gratified to be able to make so many people happy.

It was a total effort on the part of a lot of people, but I would like publicly to recognize the news media, who did a fine job of promoting the event, especially KOLN-TV and radio stations KLMS, KLIN and KFOR. Also, the cooperation we received from Alan Beitz and his staff at the Children's Zoo was outstanding.

I feel very fortunate to be associated with the Sowers Club and to provide an event such as this party. Our thanks to all for giving it the support it needed to become a success.

Moral obligation?

Lincoln, Neb.

Much has been written about Joe Hampton's vacating his Airport Authority seat, but no mention has been made about his successor to that seat.

Isn't the mayor at least morally if not legally obligated to appoint one of the other authority candidates in the recent election to that seat?

Grand jury talks to NPPD people

North Platte (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District's board of directors confirmed Thursday that a federal grand jury in Omaha is conducting an investigation involving some district personnel.

NPPD general counsel Gene Watson said, "Because of the grand jury proceedings, I will make no comment other than to read the following statement on behalf of the district and which I make as general counsel to the district."

The statement read by Watson said:

"Certain personnel of the Nebraska Public Power District and others have been served with a subpoena from a federal grand jury convened in Omaha. The district said that it is fully cooperating with the grand jury in Omaha in an orderly and appropriate fashion. On advice of counsel, there will be no further comment by the district in view of the grand jury proceedings."

Watson had no comment when asked whether or not the district itself or any individual board member had been contacted by the grand jury.

Earlier, board president Robert Peterson of Lincoln was asked about reports that certain NPPD personnel would be asked to take leaves of absence because of the grand jury investigation.

"No one has been asked to take a leave of absence and no one has requested a leave of absence," Peterson said.

He said the board met in executive session Wednesday night to discuss "sensitive matters."

He said the state's open meetings law permitted such closed-door sessions. It had been reported that the session dealt with personnel matters arising from the investigation.

Peterson declined to say what was discussed in the session.

Peterson said during Wednesday's board meeting that he had been advised the grand jury hearings were conducted in confidence to protect "innocent parties appearing before them."

He said that in light of "speculative statements" appearing in the news media Watson was asked to draft a statement for the board.

"I personally plan no further comment," Peterson told reporters.

Omaha television station KMTV first reported the grand jury probe Wednesday.

The television station said the grand jury investigation comes on the heels of a year-long FBI investigation.

KMTV said lobbying activity by NPPD personnel may be among the matters under investigation.

Investigation surprises senators

Associated Press

Nebraska state senators Thursday said they were surprised at reports that the Nebraska Public Power District may have been the subject of a year-long investigation by the FBI.

Reports of an investigation came in the wake of the Legislative council executive board's approval of a contract to hire Adam Kubik, a Syracuse, N.Y., engineer, to perform a three-month study of Nebraska public power.

Also Thursday, the chairman of the subcommittee to oversee that study, Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, resigned that position, but retained membership on the subcommittee.

He said he had not heard of the investigation reports until he talked with a newsman and that they could not have influenced his decision to resign the chairmanship. Kelly said the subcommittee, the executive board and the Public Works Committee have not insisted upon strict enough procedures for the study and its oversight.

He said he "has had difficulties" with the subcommittee's ground rules for the study.

It appears the subcommittee would recommend that "something more" than the study would be done after its projected three months of work is complete, Kelly said.

"I could not be an effective chairman when I don't know when it starts, where it would go and when it would be completed."

Sen. Maurice Kremer, chairman of the Public Works Committee and a member of the power study subcommittee, said he was "very surprised" by the investigation reports. The reports said NPPD lobbying activity may be one of the matters under grand jury and FBI scrutiny.

Those reports also said NPPD personnel had been subpoenaed and may be requested to take leaves of absence.

The Aurora lawmaker said there had been "a little apprehension" among nppd representatives during early stages of discussion on the study prpoject, but later there was "no direct lobbying against it" and it appeared "they would be willing to cooperate."

But Kremer said there was one state senator who, while publicly was favoring the study, "under the table, was not."

Kremer declined to name the senator and said he could not say whether NPPD's and the senator's attitudes toward the study were related to the reported investigation.

No charges filed in baby's death

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County Atty. Donald Knowles said Thursday no charges will be filed in connection with the death of a newborn baby whose body was found in the closet of the mother's bedroom Tuesday night.

Knowles said the case was an instance of self-delivery and the mother panicked.

"I don't think we could get a conviction for any kind of crime," he said.

A preliminary autopsy indicated that the newborn baby died after birth, Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan said.

Keenan said more tests are needed to determine what might have caused the death. He said there were no signs of physical abuse.

Police were called after a rescue squad was sent to a home in Omaha's near Northside area on the report of a woman bleeding. Squadmen said they found an 18-year-old girl in her bedroom, hemorrhaging. They took her to a hospital and notified police.

The body of the child was found by the girl's mother, who lives with her daughter, police said.

Hotel harbors old mysteries

By Michael Holmes
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Greenwood — All the guests are gone.

The last one checked out around the turn of the century, never to return to the old hotel just up Main St. from the railroad depot.

Now the depot is gone, too, a relic they moved over to the park for display.

The trains still pass, rumbling and roaring, up and down, between Omaha and Lincoln. Mostly freights, they often roll right through tiny Greenwood. No depot, no passengers, no guests.

Apparently there weren't too many passengers stopping here even when they could climb down from the coaches and walk up the tree-lined avenue to the Greenwood Hotel.

At least the hotel still stands, green and white and towering over a long, thick lawn.

But the Greenwood Hotel suffered hard, hard times — changing hands almost yearly between 1884 and 1901, when the Cass County sheriff sold it at a tax auction.

"It just seemed like the old place wouldn't make it," said Homer Gebo Jr., as he leafed through the yellowed pages of the official abstract that traces some of the hotel's background.

Homer and Rejane Gebo own the place now, own it and love it.

For five years, they've been working to restore some of the past splendor. And they've been wondering about what happened back then.

"There sure was a lot of human activity that surrounded this place," Homer said. "I suspect that in its day it was rather colorful. I wish there was some way of knowing for sure."

But all that remains, apparently, are some yellowed documents with a few cryptic notations.

A. T. Andreas, in his 1882 history of Nebraska, noted that there were two hotels in town — "The Fouts House and the Greenwood House."

John W. Bellinger and his wife bought the hotel in the early 1880s after a lumber yard had taken legal action against the former owner. It seems there were too many vacancies even then.

The Bellingers got the grounds, the building and, according to the abstract, "such furniture as John McNeil left in the hotel."

The abstract charts a long roll call of innkeepers, each selling out in turn. Shortly after 1900 the building no longer was listed as a hotel, having lapsed into use as a private dwelling.

And history chugged on by, clacking down the Burlington Railroad tracks, leaving the Greenwood Hotel in its smoke.

By 1967 the good ladies of the Greenwood Federated Woman's Club had written a 239-page town history that completely ignored the hotel. Not a word, not a picture, nothing.

The ladies weren't to blame. Most of the hotel's past faded out with the lonesome train whistles.

Wayne Landon, whose father Emmet purchased the hotel in 1925, sold the place to the Gebos five years ago.

Landon said he doesn't know much about the earlier era except "it hadn't been a hotel for a good many years when my father bought it."

The woman's club history says Greenwood swelled from a tiny 1860s village to a thriving city of 840 by 1880. "It was really a 'swinging' town," the ladies wrote.

As Homer Gebo roams through his big old house, he thinks about those days.

Questions are everywhere in the hotel, like so many empty rooms awaiting another night's guests.

Climbing the huge front staircase that branches out in two directions, Gebo can walk down a hallway lined with old doors, look into rooms and speculate about who slept there.

Pipes and jets for gas lamps remain, but cast no light on the mysteries; tiny closets with too-low doorways still enclose puzzles; riddles float in the aging communal bathroom with the bear-claw tub.

The basement hides another secret: An old tunnel that runs under the building.

"You want to know where that comes out?" Homer laughs. "I don't know. But I tell you this, I'll be glad to tie a rope around you and you can crawl in there and see. Okay?"

But seriously, he said, he plans to clean out the tunnel one day and perhaps learn the reason it was dug.

He's also tried to understand the tiny upstairs room that's too small for anything except the chest of drawers built into the west wall; the stories about part of the hotel burning down when the livery stable next door went up; and the attic that seems too well lit and ventilated to be just an attic.

Meanwhile, the Gebos are struggling to put things right within their house. But the trains that speed past 150 yards away rock the sandstone foundation so much, Homer said, that one end of the house droops.

And it's a big place, almost too big for the pharmacist and his wife. "But we plan to live in all of it, every bit."

As a cool evening breeze slipped in and out of the slender white porch columns, the Gebos smiled.

One oldtimer has told them that as a boy he walked by the hotel on many summer evenings and saw guests rocking in chairs on that wide front porch, rocking and feeling the breeze.

Attorney to serve at public expense

Grand Island (UPI) — The attorney for a Grand Island youth charged with first degree murder has asked to be allowed to withdraw from the case as a private attorney.

Hall County District Court Judge L. W. Kelly Jr. Thursday allowed Tom Wagoner to withdraw as a private attorney for Bernard R. Schaeffer, 16, and then appointed Wagoner to defend Schaeffer at public expense.

Kelly also authorized Wagoner to utilize "such additional legal personnel" in Wagoner's firm as are necessary to defend Schaeffer, who was held in the Hall County jail without bond.

Wagoner declined comment on his reasons for asking for the change.

Schaeffer and George A. Lanzendorf, 16, Grand Island, are charged in the shooting death of Ace Hardware assistant manager Donald Beery Jr., 28, Grand Island, whose body was found last week near a sand pit northwest of Grand Island.

Lanzendorf was held without bond in Merrick County jail in Central City. He was moved to Central City in order to provide separate facilities for the two juveniles.

$2,600 fellowships go to UNL grad students

Three University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate students from Lincoln have been awarded Maude Hammond Fling Fellowships.

The Lincolnites are Michael A. Day, who is working toward a master of science degree in physics; Gwen Nugent, who is working toward a doctoral degree in education; and Patrice A. Watson, who is working toward a doctoral degree in psychology.

The fellowships, which are administered by the University of Nebraska Foundation, provide an annual stipend of $2,600, plus tuition and fees for a year beginning August 1, 1977.

Other recipients include Larry L. Berger of Hanover, Kan.; Richard H. Kennedy of Alton, Ill.; Ronald W. Mayle of Plattsmouth; and Linda J. Huffman and Victoria F. Roche, both of Omaha.

Veto would cut school aid

The Lincoln Public School District may lose as much as $600,000 in state aid next year if an expected governor's veto is not overridden.

The school system would receive $4.9 million next year, instead of the current $5.5 million if the state aid to education funding is cut by $20 million by the governor's veto, according to State Education Department estimates.

At the heart of the money loss or gain for the local district is LB532, the appropriation bill. The bill currently includes $55 million in state aid, which then would be combined with $20 million from LB33 — the bill spelling out the new state funding formula. This would bring the total state aid package for next year to $75 million. Lincoln would get an estimated $6.7 million of that.

But an anticipated governor's veto will take out $20 million from the appropriation bill, leaving only $55 million in total state aid. Lincoln's share would then drop to an estimated $4.9 million.

The new funding formula decreases the percentage of dollars flowing to larger school districts, and any cut in the appropriation would have a greater effect on these districts.

Boy's court fate upheld by judge

York (AP) — York County District Court Judge William Norton Thursday upheld a county court action binding over Ricky A. Johnson for trial in district court.

Johnson, 17, is charged with first degree murder in the shooting death April 22 of York police officer James N. Richardson II.

Norton set another hearing for Friday morning to hear arguments on a defense motion concerning a county court refusal to allow neurological and psychiatric examinations of Johnson before the preliminary hearing and before rejecting a defense motion to transfer jurisdiction to juvenile court.

Norton also took under advisement a defense request for bond for the youth. County Atty. Michael Murphy has asked either that no bond be set, or that it be at least $500,000.

State retains construction grads

Almost two-thirds of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's construction management graduates work in Nebraska or with Nebraska-based firms, according to a recent survey.

The survey, conducted by construction management professors Eva A. Winter and Robert G. Zilly, indicates that 70 of the 123 graduates who responded are employed in Nebraska. An additional eight graduates are employed by Nebraska firms in other states.

NU grants to aid science training

Associated Press

Grants totaling $316,500 have been awarded to the University of Nebraska for training and research in science, the National Science Foundation announced.

The School of Life Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will get $185,000 to support graduate training in life sciences.

The College of Medicine department of anatomy will receive $131,000 for research on how hormones affect reproduction and development.

The three-year grant at UNL will enable the university to substantially improve the research environments for the modern education and training of scientists in ecology and cell biology, said Russel Meints, director of the School of Life Sciences.

Field sites for long-range ecological studies will be prepared on an 80-acre tract 19 miles from Lincoln and at a 1,300-acre tract at the Life Science's Cedar Point Biological Field Station near Ogallala.

The cell biology program will involve development of learning experiences for graduate students with new technologies and instruments. In addition, cell biologists will be brought to Lincoln to offer workshops closely coordinated with laboratory courses Meints said.

NETCHE president elected

Sister Mary Angelica Costello, Omaha College of St. Mary president, Thursday was elected president of the Nebraska Educational Television Council for Higher Education (NETCHE).

Harry Allen, University of Nebraska-Lincoln institutional research and planning director, was elected vice president.

Elected to NETCHE's Executive committee were Myrl Manley, Lincoln Union College president; Bob Cox, Norfolk Northeast Technical Community College president; and Lyle Seymour, Wayne State College president.

An institutional supported budget of $98,792 for fiscal year 1977-78 was approved at the annual meeting.

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieves Pain And Itch...

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When hemorrhoidal tissues swell, become inflamed and infected—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But doctors have found a remarkably successful medication which is so effective that it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues. And it does more. In many cases, it also gives prompt relief for hours from the pain and itching in hemorrhoidal tissues.

This medication is obtainable without a prescription under the name—Preparation H®.

Tests by leading doctors on hundreds of patients in New York, Washington, D.C. and at a large medical center verified Preparation H gave similar successful results in many cases.

When you consider Preparation H offers so many benefits—it's no wonder millions of sufferers buy it each year to obtain this relief. See if it doesn't help you.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

She remembers legislative first

Albion (AP) — Nell Krause of Albion was 30 years ahead of her time when she made Nebraska history in 1946 by becoming the first woman to serve in the Unicameral.

Gov. Dwight Griswold had called a special session in an effort to secure legislation providing better treatment of Nebraska's needy, aged and blind persons and dependent children. The school lunch program was one product of that history-making meeting.

When the elected representative from the 27th District resigned, Griswold asked Mrs. Krause if she would serve the remainder of his unexpired term during the special session.

The Krauses were vactioning at their summer home in Evergreen, Colo., when the governor's telegram arrived. Mrs. Krause, who is 82, remembers her initial reaction.

"I was startled," she said. "My lord, why did they want me? I called the governor and told him, 'I appreciate the courtesy you're extending to me, but why me? I don't know anything about the Unicameral.' 'Nell,' he told me, 'you'll never learn any younger.' "

Mrs. Krause chuckled when she told how they had to make a special trip to Denver to buy clothes befitting a legislator before she took a train directly into Lincoln.

Although the special session lasted only two weeks, Mrs. Krause said she thoroughly enjoyed it.

The governor had proposed two bills, one to establish a school lunch program, the other to raise assistance payments to elderly persons. Both were passed.

"I was very definitely in favor of both of them," Mrs. Krause recalled. "We accomplished the two things we went into session for."

Serving in the Legislature, she said, "gave me a great knowledge of the legal process involved in passage of a bill. I had always been familiar with constitutional law. I definitely got more out of the session than I gave."

Mrs. Krause was the darling of the news media at the time. She recalled telling one reporter, "Don't accuse womanhood if I make a mistake, but blame it on Nell Krause. I have a suspicion many things rest on my shoulders unseen at present."

From her male colleagues, Mrs. Krause said, she received nothing but cooperation.

"I have watched since, and some of the women in politics have done some rough sledding. I never encountered any of that. I met with nothing but gentlemanliness in all the fellows.

"My thinking was my own and I voted as I thought my constituents wanted.

Associated Press

Nell Krause enjoyed Unicameral.

"I feel I was considered for the position because I was Nell Krause. I've never been an aggressive person but I've always spoken my thoughts.

"Some women push too hard," she said. "If you're capable of doing a job, you'll be asked. The job always sought me, not I the job."

Mrs. Krause's term expired in January 1947 and she did not seek reelection.

"I didn't consider running for office because my husband's health was poor. My first love was my husband, and his health was more important," she said.

Today, Mrs. Krause remains active in the American Legion and its auxiliary. She was the first woman named an honorary commander and currently is the Legion's state historian.

"I'm not at all ashamed of the fact that I'm 82. The Lord has been good to me," she said.

"I think one thing that has kept me young is my association with young people. I'm always happy to be included."

By the first 1977 Big Red home football game, the Misty Lounge is expected to open a new restaurant and lounge in Havelock. And by the first of the year, four small shops will also be opened adjacent to the new Misty.

Bob Milton, owner-operator of the Misty II at 6232 Havelock, confirmed Thursday that he has purchased the Safeway property on the southwest corner of 63rd and Havelock for $200,000.

He said he will gain possession of the building and parking lot by July 1 and expects to begin remodeling immediately in order to open the new facility in early September.

The Safeway store located there for several years will close down at the end of business Saturday.

According to Milton, the Safeway chain decided six years ago to phase out the existing Havelock store because the facility "was not in keeping with Safeway's new image."

He said he had put his name on the interested list several years ago and the present owners contacted him in February to see if he still wanted to buy the store, which adjoins the site of the original Misty Lounge destroyed by fire last winter.

Also planned for the 200 by 175-foot area purchased by Milton are four shops to be located at the south end of the property along the alley. Milton said the shop area will be 30 feet deep with the 175-foot frontage divided into four.

Verbal agreements have already been made for a greeting card shop and beauty shop to locate in half the space.

Jan. 1 has been set as a target date for completion and occupancy.

The new Havelock location does not cancel plans for building another Misty at 70th and Pioneers, Milton said. However, that proposal will be delayed at least a year and a half.

With the widening of both 70th and Pioneers and an 18-month delay in sewer installation, Milton said he didn't think it would be practical to attempt to open the business there sooner.

Milton said he anticipates spending about $400,000 in remodeling the Safeway building and constructing the addition for the four shops.

The new Misty I will include a football-shaped cocktail lounge which will seat 75, a regular dining area to seat 150 and three party rooms. The parking lot will be lined with gas lights and the center will be landscaped.

After opening the new Misty at 70th and Pioneers, Milton said he plans to close the present Misty II.

Hotel owner disappointed

Omaha (UPI) — The owner of the condemned Hamilton Hotel said Thursday all he was able to salvage from the building was "the lock and hinge, a refrigerator and two fire nozzles."

"I didn't have much time to get anything out," George Nahas said. "It's terrible."

Nahas tried to stop the city from tearing down the hotel, but Wednesday Douglas County District Court Judge Samuel Caniglia lifted a restraining order he issued last week.

Thursday workmen were at the hotel to tear it down.

A few carpets and doors were taken out by M. G. Andersen of Omaha, who said he paid Nahas for the salvage rights.

Bob Rock, owner of Associated Wrecking Co., said everything else in the hotel "is going to the dump."

Beds and furniture were piled in the lobby of the hotel Thursday afternoon. Rock said that would be the first part of the hotel demolished.

Boy run over by grandmother

Omaha (AP) — A little boy died Wednesday evening after a car driven by his grandmother ran over him in a parking lot in North Omaha.

George E. Haynes, 2, son of Debbie Haynes, apparently fell from the car about 6 p.m. as Helen L. Baker backed the car at a dairy store.

ConAgra to buy elevators

Omaha (AP) — ConAgra Inc. announced Thursday that it has reached an agreement in principle to buy 90 of the stock of the McMillan Co., a Minneapolis-based grain elevator operator.

The Minneapolis firm will become a wholly owned subsidiary of ConAgra, a food-processing conglomerate, it was announced.

Involved in the purchase are a 2.5 million bushel grain elevator in Superior, Wis., and the 3.2 million bushel Shoreham Elevator in Minneapolis, which ConAgra has leased since March, the firm said.

Exon schemes to stop aid hike

Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon says he wants to avoid a hike in the state sales tax rate and simultaneously sidestep a special session of the Legislature.

Exon said Thursday he is trying to find a way to use a line-item veto so the State Board of Equalization won't have to consider a $20 million state school aid increase when it sets tax rates.

The $20 million would boost the state sales tax from 3 to 3.5%, Exon said.

The governor said he previously thought he would need a special session to accomplish his goal, but now hopes he can avoid it and the higher sales tax. But he would be no more specific.

Because the vote on LB532, the major appropriations bill which contains the state aid spending authorization, won't occur until Wednesday, the last scheduled day of the 1977 session, Exon can veto the state aid section and the Legislature won't have a chance to override the veto.

Exon also acknowledged that he would not have had the chance to stymie state aid were it not for the very leaders trying to pass it.

"They had the votes and they couldn't get it together," Exon said. "It just mystifies me how they always seem to do it to themselves."

A minority of lawmakers prevented passage of LB532.

He said there would be "millions upon millions of dollars worth of vetoes" in other appropriations measures.

If LB532 were not passed by July 1 there would be no appropriations to run mental institutions, prisons or other state operations.

Rule changes title of power study head

Associated Press

Members of the Legislative Council's Executive Board decided Thursday that the man hired for the $50,000 study of Nebraska's public power should work as a consultant.

Adam Kubik of Syracuse, N.Y., an engineer on leave from a firm there, was to be retained on a contractual basis under an original plan calling for him to be a temporary state employe.

The initial phase study, preparing for a more widespread analysis, was to last 90 days and Kubik's portion of the $50,000 was set at $5,500 a month.

However, Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson told board members Thursday that funds could be obligated for a consultant, but not a temporary employe, into the next fiscal year.

The board voted 7 to 0 to revise the contract agreement with Kubik, though the engineer had requested designation as a state employe. The state will provide office space, equipment and phone service for Kubik.

In other action, the board decided the $172,000 for legislative research assistants of senators who don't chair committees would be used under a flexible system at the virtual discretion of Dr. Jack Rodgers, head of research.

Rodgers said 18 full-time or 36 part-time researchers could be hired. The board indicated full-time researchers would work out unless more than 18 lawmakers sought them.

The board also heard a report on the Crime Commission's 1978 comprehensive criminal justice plan for Nebraska.

Utica Sen. Douglas Bereuter suggested a commission revision aimed at stopping any appearance of conflicts of interest in the grant review process regarding Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funds.

"Right now there's a lot of law enforcement people, particularly outstate, who feel that Lincoln and Omaha are getting more grant money because they are more heavily represented on the commission," Bereuter said.

The lawmakers also discussed Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler's proposed policy language on interim expenses, which would include mileage, meals and lodging for senatorial business matters. That included research by lawmakers.

"I'd love to have it," said Scottsbluff Sen. William Nichol, who honestly was skeptical of potential problems. "I could work that to death."

"I think senators are responsible enough to handle this," countered Fowler. The matter was deferred for more study.

In other work, the board referred some interim study resolutions to committees for summer and fall analysis and hired some legislative pages to work over the interim and next session.

State humanities group gives $65,000 in grants

Kearney (AP) — The Nebraska Committee for the Humanities has approved five grants totaling more than $65,000.

The committee awarded the division of continuing studies at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln $36,323 to continue the "Nebraska Forum on Human Values." Also, the committee issued the division a challenge grant, offering to match any amount up to $5,000 that can be raised in contributions.

Nebraskans for Peace were given $3,090 for a symposium on citizen participation in international policy development.

The Community Resource and Research Center of the College of Architecture at UNL was given $12,725 for a multimedia production proposed to tour 30 Nebraska county fairs this summer. The production is to deal with future alternatives for the family, farm, community, energy and natural resources.

The Lincoln Chess Foundation received $2,990 for a conference to examine the uses and values of leisure activities.

The humanities division at Doane College in Crete and representative departments of several other state colleges and universities will receive $10,365 to present a "Conference on the Humanities and Public Life."

Gentry Limousine applies to be Lincoln taxi firm

The Nebraska Public Service Commission is considering Mike Grieger's application to start a third taxicab company in Lincoln.

Grieger, owner of Gentry Limousine Co., has applied to carry passengers in Lancaster County and between cities in Saline, Gage, Otoe, Cass, Saunders and Seward counties and Omaha.

Earlier this year the PSC clarified its order authorizing Grieger to operate a limousine company. Because of the omission of several words in the written PSC order, Grieger contended the order also authorized him to run a cab company in Lincoln. The PSC set the record straight and said that if Grieger wanted to have a taxicab company he would have to make a separate application.

The public may submit written comments on the application to the PSC until June 25. A public hearing will be scheduled if there is enough interest.

Currently, Lincoln has Yellow Cab Co. and Capital Cab Co., which are jointly owned.

Accountants to elect officers

Omaha (UPI) — Election of officers is scheduled for the annual meeting of the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants June 5-7.

The program for the event includes an opening address by James Herbert of Omaha, president of the society, and speeches by such individuals as Gov. J. James Exon.

Man sought in slaying captured

Omaha (AP) — Wesley Massey, a Colorado prison escapee sought in the slaying of a young Iowa businessman here Monday, was captured Thursday afternoon in Colorado Springs, Colo., Omaha police said.

An Omaha homicide detective said Colorado Springs police reported that Massey was found hiding in the home of a woman believed to have been involved in his escape from the Colorado State Penitentiary April 25.

He was captured shortly after Colorado Springs police Wednesday found the car of a former Omaha policeman whom Massey allegedly forced at gunpoint to drive him to Colorado, police said.

The former policeman, Richard Lee Gilliam, 34, was found walking down a farm road in a remote area of Colorado early Thursday. He said he had met Massey at a bar and offered him a ride. In the car, Gilliam told authorities, Massey pulled a gun on him and told him to drive to Colorado.

The Omaha detective said Massey was captured at the home of a Lisa Williams. One report said Ms. Williams was Massey's ex-wife, but the detective said he did not know their relationship.

The detective said Omaha authorities are already preparing an extradition request.

Massey was charged in a warrant with first degree murder in the slaying Monday night of Gary Damron, 20, of Urbandale, Iowa. Damron allegedly was lured to a Ramada Inn Central motel room by a woman he met in the motel's bar, and then beaten and robbed by a man who was hiding in the room.

Damron was shot in the chest in a motel elevator and collapsed in front of the lobby desk. He died shortly afterwards in an Omaha hospital.

A woman believed to have been traveling with Massey was arrested shortly after the incident and charged with first degree murder in the commission of a felony (robbery.) She is Mary Katherine Larson of Cannon City, Colo.

Massey escaped April 15 with four other inmates. Only he and another inmate, David Anderson, remained at large. Anderson, who Omaha police say apparently was not involved in the slaying of Damron, is still at large.

Apparent drowning victim Kenneth Hoskinson, 17

Missouri Valley, Iowa (AP) — A 17-year-old Omaha youth was believed to have drowned in the Missouri River near Missouri Valley Wednesday evening. Authorities identified him as Kenneth Hoskinson.

Missouri Valley Fire Chief Tom Moorman said the youth was with a group of teen-agers near Wilson Island in the DeSoto Bend area. The chief said they were playing on pilings when, it was believed, the youth fell into the river.

Annexation vote requested

Hastings (AP) — Four property owners have asked the Adams County District Court to let voters decide whether the City of Hastings will annex two nearby school districts.

In a writ filed this week, the property owners ask the court to force County Clerk Anita Hawes to put the question on the ballot in the next primary or general election. The request involves a decision by the Hastings City Council to annex Adams County Districts 15 and 16.

Teachers pact okayed

Omaha (AP) — A salary agreement announced Thursday will provide school teachers in Omaha School District 66 with a 4.5% increase in base pay for the 1977-78 school year. School officials said the pact should maintain the district's teachers as the best-paid in Nebraska.

Hospital vote planned

North Platte (AP) — About 300 employes of the Great Plains Medical Center in North Platte will vote June 8 on whether they want bargaining representation by the Teamsters Union. The board earlier turned down a Teamsters request for the election.

The National Labor Relations Board, after a hearing, decided the hospital was a private corporation and not a government subdivision, and ruled the NLRB had jurisdiction in the matter.

Klein cited for service

Washington (AP) — Robert N. Klein of McCook, Neb., Red Willow County Extension agent, Thursday was one of 11 persons to receive the U.S. Department of Agriculture's second highest honor, the Superior Service Award.

Joslyn fund drive told

Omaha (AP) — The Joslyn Art Museum Thursday announced a $4 million fund raising drive to finance a remodeling program and lift the museum out of inflation-induced financial doldrums. The drive will be headed by W.A. Strauss, a trustee of the museum and chief executive of Northern Natural Gas Company.

The planned $1 million remodeling will change the north entrance to the museum to allow access to both gallery levels, a spokesman said.

Railroad Town opens Monday

Grand Island (AP) — Stuhr Museum of the Prairie Pioneer will open its outdoor exhibits Monday, executive director Jack Learned announced.

The summer attractions center around a reconstructed Railroad Town of the 1880s, completed with a turn-of-the-century steam train which will take visitors for rides around the grounds.

3 Lincolnites charged in restaurant robbery

Three Lincoln men were charged Thursday in county court with Wednesday's armed robbery of the Bonanza Sirloin Pit, 84th and O Sts.

Mark Carlbom, 20, of 5161 Sherwood, Jerry Cox, 21, of 102 G St., and Donald Hughes, 27, of 2244 Vine, each were charged with one count of robbery and one count of using a firearm to commit a felony.

Carlbom and Cox were arrested at Cox's apartment shortly after the robbery. Hughes was arrested later at his apartment.

Police reports said that two gunmen entered the restaurant shortly after closing, fired two shots and forced the employes to the rear of the building.

Deputy County Atty. Rod Rehm declined to say whether one of the men charged was allegedly driving the getaway vehicle in the incident. Rehm noted, however, that all were charged with the same offenses.

Investigation requested of attorney's intentions

South Sioux City (UPI) — City Attorney Wayne Boyd said Wednesday he will ask Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas to investigate the intentions of Dakota County attorney Donald Fitch.

Fitch had sent a letter to Police Chief Gene Claxton saying he would not prosecute felony and misdemeanor complaints that don't appear in the city's code.

The South Sioux City Policemen's Assn. has also written to Douglas asking him to look into Fitch's plan.

City administrator Wally Stovall said incidents involving the Police Reserve may have caused the rift between Fitch and the local police.

A dozen members of the reserve resigned earlier when they were restricted from carrying handguns in certain buildings. More recently, former reserve members were prohibited from attending the State Police Academy at Grand Island because they were unsponsored.

Ambulance proposal sets off debate again

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

The chronic controversy on emergency ambulance service in Lincoln has flared up once again in preliminary work on city and county budgets.

Triggering the last spat is a proposal that the city buy four ambulances. Two would be staffed and housed in fire stations and two would be backups.

The proposal, which would cost an estimated $326,616 in its first year and about $200,000 annually from then on, was requested by a joint budget committee of the city and county.

No action has been taken on the proposal and any final decision would be up to the City Council and County Board. Budgets will not be set into final form until late this summer.

The joint budget committee asked that the Fire Department and City-County Health Department draft the proposal because of concern about the rising subsidies to the Bryan Memorial Hospital mobile heart team and Shurtleff and Eastern private ambulance companies.

The Bryan heart team receives about $60,000 a year. Last year the ambulance companies received a combined total of $34,000. They have asked that the figure be upped to $55,000.

In recent years the idea that firefighters could take over more emergency services than they now provide has been considered from time to time, but nothing concrete has ever come of the idea.

From time to time there were allegations that friction between firefighters and ambulance personnel was creating an unhealthy atmosphere at emergency scenes, but those allegations have largely disappeared in recent months.

The latest proposal drawn up by the Fire Department and Health Department is once again opposed by the ambulance companies.

Don Shurtleff Jr. says flatly that the plan would put him out of business, even though his firm handles ambulance services other than emergency tasks, such as transporting patients from hospital to hospital.

Another person unhappy about the latest proposal is Dr. Stephen Carveth, chairman of the Emergency Medical Services Council.

Carveth says that the joint budget committee's handling of the matter amounted to going behind the back of the council, which has been studying alternatives to the present ambulance setup.

Making the ambulance question more complex is that the city franchises the two companies and requires them to provide certain services and levels of training that the companies might not otherwise provide.

The ambulance companies contend that these government requirements are what makes it necessary for them to receive a subsidy to operate.

Asked to comment on the proposal, Mayor Helen Boosalis said that her administration is not pushing it and that it was drawn up merely at the request of the budget committee.

EPA's dust expert will visit with Thone

Washington — U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Douglas M. Costle Thursday promised Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., the person at EPA in charge of drafting dust emission standards for grain elevators will visit Thone before rewriting the proposed regulation.

Costle's telephone call to Thone came after the House Thursday passed a bill exempting grain elevators with less than 2.5 million bushel capacity from EPA regulations.

"This amendment I successfully supported would free nearly all country elevators from federal controls," Thone said.

EPA is completely abandoning proposed grain elevator regulations published in January, Thone said. At Costle's direction, Walter Barber, director of EPA's Office of Air Quality Planning and Standards, will visit Thone before drafting proposed new regulations.

The previous regulation proposal would have provided federal controls for any grain elevator that could take in more than 10,000 bushels per hour. Based on telephone conversations with Costle and Barber, Thone believes the new proposals will leave smaller elevators completely under state controls.

"Elevators of larger capacity would be subject, under the proposed new controls, to EPA emission standards only in case of new construction or reconstruction equaling half the capital cost of an elevator," Thone said.

"In the case of reconstruction, only the part of the elevator that was modified would be subject to the emission regulation," Thone said.

The Nebraska First District congressman said he also hopes EPA will abandon its proposal for zero opacity. "I am hopeful that a revised regulation will permit building or constructing large new elevators that have occasional 5% to 10% opacity from dust," Thone said.

EPA plans to complete a new draft of proposed regulations for elevators in June, Thone said. This will be circulated informally to all who commented on the January proposal. Only after comments from the informal circulation have been digested and reacted to would EPA publish a new set of proposed regulations in the Federal Register.

In Lincoln, Bob Anderson, executive vice president of the Nebraska Grain Dealers Association, said, "This decision by the House, if agreed to by the Senate, will save farmers from five cents to 10 cents a bushel on the price of their grain."

Anderson said very few country elevators in Nebraska are likely to exceed the 2.5 million bushel capacity called for before an elevator would come under federal regulations.

"As we understand it, this is per house (elevator). If one company or cooperative owns several houses, each one is treated separately," he said.

"Only the major terminal elevators would still be under federal control. We think the EPA regulations on dust for elevators are still ridiculous, but this is a vast improvement," he said.

"A farm tractor in the field puts out more dust than most country elevators will," Anderson commented.

Fewer leaving Omaha schools

Omaha (AP) — Omaha School District officials have revised enrollment projections for next fall and it appears the district isn't losing as many students this school year as it did last year.

Last year, the district lost about 2,300 students between October and May. For the current school year, the loss was 1,600.

The key element is that the percentage of students who remained in the district generally matched the percentage in the years immediately before the integration plan was put into effect.

What the figures suggest, officials said Wednesday, is that losses due to court-ordered desegregation have slowed much more than expected.

Officials had predicted that next fall's enrollment in kindergarten through 12th grade would be about 50,000. That would have been a drop of about 3,000 from last fall's total.

Of those 3,000 officials believed that about 1,300 would be attributable to "abnormal" factors, namely school desegregation.

Officials came up with the prediction of 3,000 by comparing what has happened in recent years.

Now it appears that the decline will be about 2,400. And since a decline of 1,700 could be normally expected because of such things as the falling birth rate, only about 700 students fall outside the "normal" loss category.

Union Pacific sets dividend

Omaha (UPI) — The Union Pacific Corp. board Thursday declared a quarterly 42.5-cent per share common stock dividend.

The railroad said the dividend would be payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 8.

Union Pacific noted it has paid dividends on its common stock for 77 consecutive years.

Mrs. Abbott named to panel investigating election charges

Omaha (UPI) — City Council member Betty Abbott has been named the fifth member of an Omaha Board of Education citizens committee to investigate alleged election irregularities by school district employes.

Mrs. Abbott, who will leave the city council next week, replaces Vicki Krecek, city director of neighborhood improvement.

Ms. Krecek resigned after a school board member cited a possible conflict of interest because her husband works for Ms. Krecek.

The allegations to be investigated by the committee will focus on preferential services rendered certain board of education candidates by school district employes in last November's election.

Mrs. Abbott was defeated in the recent mayoral election by former City Councilman Al Veys.

Omaha youths face charges in beating death

Omaha (AP) — Two teenagers were charged with first-degree murder Wednesday in connection with last week's beating of an Omaha construction worker.

Ordered held without bond by Municipal Court Judge Walter Cropper were Lonnie Woodruff, 17, and Mandrell A. McGowan, 19.

They are accused of killing Harold D. Hay, 38, who was found bleeding and unconscious last Thursday in an abandoned cattle chute in South Omaha just north of the Wilson packing plant.

He died at a hospital the next day.

Police said that after receiving information from several persons in South Omaha Monday, they arrested McGowan, Woodruff, Woodruff's older brother and a 17-year-old girl.

Woodruff's brother and the girl were released Wednesday.

Police are accusing Woodruff and McGowan of using a prostitute to lure Hay to the cattle chute area and attacking him from behind.

Detectives said they believe Hay was robbed of about $1,200 in cash, a watch and a ring.

Boston Opera plans 'Orfeo ed Euridice'

Boston (UPI) — The Opera Company of Boston will present Gluck's "Orfeo ed Euridice" for four performances at the Orpheum Theatre June 2, 5, 7 and 10.

The opera, to be directed by company artistic director Sarah Caldwell, will star Shirley Verrett as Orfeo, Benita Valente as Euridice and Marianna Christos as Amor. "Orfeo ed Euridice" had its first performance in Vienna Oct. 5, 1972.

Jackie and prince both deny rumors of romance

New York)up) — Jackie and the prince both said "no" Thursday.

Mrs. Aristotle Onassis has absolutely no romantic interest in 50-year-old German Prince Johannes Von Thurn Und Taxis, who has a fortune of over $200 million, the official spokesman for the former First Lady said.

"I can assure you there is no truth in the story," said the spokesman, Nancy Tuckerman, a confidante of Mrs. Onassis who was a member of her Kennedy White House staff.

The bachelor prince was equally adamant in denial. He directed a spokesman at his vast, 64-room palace in Regensberg, Bavaria, to say:

"His highness authorizes his court marshal to deny he is seeking a liaison with Mrs. Onassis. He has known Mrs. Onassis for a long time, but the ties are social ties and ties of friendship."

German's largest circulation newspaper, Bild Zeitung of Hamburg, started the tale of romance Wednesday in an article headlined: "Does Jackie Love Germany's Richest Prince."

The newspaper said Mrs. Onassis had found the prince, who boasts both Austrian Hapsburg and Portugues Braganza royal blood, "charming" and that he had spent a weekend visiting her in New York. Miss Tuckeruman said flatly, "He has not stayed with her."

Mrs. Onassis' name has been linked more often in recent months with syndicated newspaper columnist Peter Hamill, who has lived for five years with actress Shirley MacLaine. They have been seen at dozens of public events together, the theater and movies.

Iowa historian tells 'rebels' to forget recapturing flag

Des Moines (UPI) — The Civil War is over, the Union won and it's time a group of Mississippi Sons of Confederate Veterans forget about it.

Jack Musgrove, director of the Iowa Historical Department, Thursday had that advice for the Mississippi organization which announced plans to launch an armed assault on the Iowa Historical Museum to retrieve a Confederate flag captured in the Civil War, if it cannot be done through legal methods.

Musgrove thinks the flap over the flag has "gone much too far."

"It's all pretty childish I think," he said in an interview Thursday. "It's their problem, there is nothing I can do about it."

At a news conference Wednesday, The Mississippi group asked the secretary of defense to retrieve the flag from the Iowa museum. Walter Bevins, a past commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans camp, said Congress passed a law in 1905 which directed the secretary of war to return captured flags to the states from which they came.

Later, a Mississippi attorney general issued an opinion that cited the 1905 law and said the flag actually belonged to Mississippi.

Bevins said members of the Mississippi Sons of the Confederate Veterans have promised to "to march to Iowa, strom the museum, (and) re-capture our flag." However, the former commander said he would ask the Mississippi attorney general to pursue the matter in the courts first.

"The war is over, We won the war and I think they should forget it," Musgrove said.

Pithy Sevareid ending television news career

Los Angeles (AP) — Eric Sevareid, one of the last of the CBS News team assembled before World War II by Edward R. Murrow, will give his final nightly news commentary in November.

Sevareid will turn 65 on Nov. 26. His last commentary will be Nov. 30.

In a farewell address to CBS-TV affiliates, he said, "Someone asked me what I'd do after 45 years of daily deadlines."

Severeid, who joined CBS in London in 1939 after working as a newspaperman, added, "I have two contrasting temptations. One is to sit in a rocking chair for two weeks, after which I will slowly begin rocking.

"The other is to go fishing. Charlie Brown may say that happiness is a warm puppy, but I can tell you that happiness is a cold trout."

Severeid said he does not think television has the awesome power some believe it has. He said he has spent the past few years trying to deflate some of the myths about the medium, especially that it is destroying American life. He said, "As far as I can see Americans are just as ornery and independent as ever."

Sevareid said he was sorry that television newsmen become personalities and even stars.

"People think we have great power and I don't think we have," he said. "Newsmen are not leaders of the body politic and they are not statesmen. We should try to restore a sense of perspective to our view of newsmen."

Dale Ashmun has many faces

Frippinino the clown

Rooty Toot Koodzy

Fast Eddie is ready

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

Remember Fast Eddie Frippinino? Hey, come on, sure you do, your eighth grade class, everyone's eighth grade class, had one.

He was the tough young dude who sullied the reputation of the Future Homemakers of America president and the Church of Christ minister's daughter. He usually spent his lunch hour out in the parking lot smoking unfiltered Camels. If you passed Fast Eddie in the hall, he smelled of Penzoil and more than one dab of Brylcreme.

There isn't a for-real, flesh-and-bones Eddie Frippinino, of course; you know, a dude who really has that name and Social Security number.

But he comes to life when Dale Ashmun oils back his hair, rolls up his Levis, puts on his shades and gets onto a stage, grabs a microphone, and, in a voice that sounds like it is being digested halfway down his esophagus, tells what it is like to be a young punk who could never leave the eighth grade.

Fast Eddie isn't the Fonz, Ashmun says. Because Fast Eddie never wins. He is a loser.

Dale Ashnun returned to Lincoln to visit the city where he grew up and graduated from high school and college. He looks like a slender version of half of the comedy team Burns and Schreiber, and he speaks with the shyness of a Clark Kent waiting for a costume to spring him from the Metropolis life into something uncivilized.

Fast Eddie isn't Asmun's only creation. There are others, characters forged from years of listening with the right ear tuned to Peter Sellers and the left ear to the Rolling Stones.

Ashmun has also created Rooty Toot Koodzy, the rock n' roll guru; Rodney Slingenheimer, a roadie for an English rock band, and J. Melvin Prufroque, a refugee from the beat generation who thinks that page 17 of Jack Kerouac's "On the Road" is the heaviest thing in literature.

Ashmun, 25, recently sat on the patio of his parent's home overlooking Pine Lake, and talked in transcendental tones about making it, which, to him, means being able to make a living by doing what he wants to do.

What Ashmun wants is to be a comedian, or, as he describes it, "a solo comedy act with musical backup." The music, he said, helps a comedy act last longer.

"James Taylor can sing 'Fire and Rain' and people still want to hear it," he said.

But Ashmun wants more than a living. He wants to be a star.

Ever since he can remember, Ashmun said he has been a stargazer.

He lives a world-is-a-stage sort of life. Except to him, the world is a movie screen, his daily affairs blown up into Technicolor diminsions.

"Life is like a movie," he said. "We are our own auteur. We are our own actor, set designer, light director, makeup artist. I write my own scenario each day."

Prufroque on bongoes

Scene 1, Take 24

Ashmun once lived in Los Angeles, where he was a regular performer at the Ala Carte, a small club where hopeful comedians perform and find out if they have what it takes to make other people laugh.

Ashmun now has left Lincoln for New York City. He says he is going to get all greased up, grab his guitar and head for the CBGB Club, the place where all the hip, tough rockers make music.

Maybe he'll get a chance to play. Maybe the people will dig his act. Maybe an agent will discover him. Maybe . . .

Scene 2: Take 4

Ever since he was 12 years old, Ashmun has wanted to be a rock star.

Isn't that every American kid's dream these days, Ashmun said. To have the glitter and glamour and adulation that rock musicians have.

When he was 12 Ashmun was a student at Irving Junior High School, leading a life Fast Eddie Frippinino would have admired. He was one of those crude and rude kids who lived for the weekend, because weekends were the best time for drinking and fighting.

Ashmun says he is not proud about that phase of his life. But at least he got out of it, he said. Fast Eddie didn't.

At age 12, Ashmun heard his first Beatles record.

Ashmun said he became a closet Beatlemaniac. He didn't tell his friends about his obsession. He thought his friends would think him uncool if they knew he collected Beatles posters, Beatles bubblegum cards and Beatles magazines.

Then, one day, a friend walked into his room, unannounced, and there Ashmun sat in a room with Beatles posters papering the walls, reading a Beatles magazine and listening to a Beatles album.

After that, Ashmun tried to mellow his Beatlemania. He later picked up on the entire British rock invasion . . . the Stones, the Kinks, the Who, the bands "that had the real drive that the Beatles had."

And, he listened to comedy records, such as Spike Jones and Jonathan Winters.

Ashmun graduated from Southeast High School in 1970 and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1974. He majored in speech and drama.

He moved to California to teach in a suburban school. He decided to shop around for another profession after the day a 6-year-old boy spit in his face.

So, Ashmun decided to follow his inner drum and try to accomplish the dream he has had since he was 12 — to be a star.

He moved to Los Angeles, which was an ego-blowing experience.

"I went through one of these 'where am I?' stages. I'd wake up nights and dream I was still in Lincoln."

But all dreams have their price. Ashmun said he was reduced to a "struggling nobody."

He worked odd jobs. He was a security guard at Universal Studios. He wrote articles about California musicians for the L.A. Vanguard, a Los Angeles underground paper.

He was an extra in movies requiring a cast of thousands. In his last role, he was one fleshspeck in a hysterical fleshpot of people fleeing from King Kong.

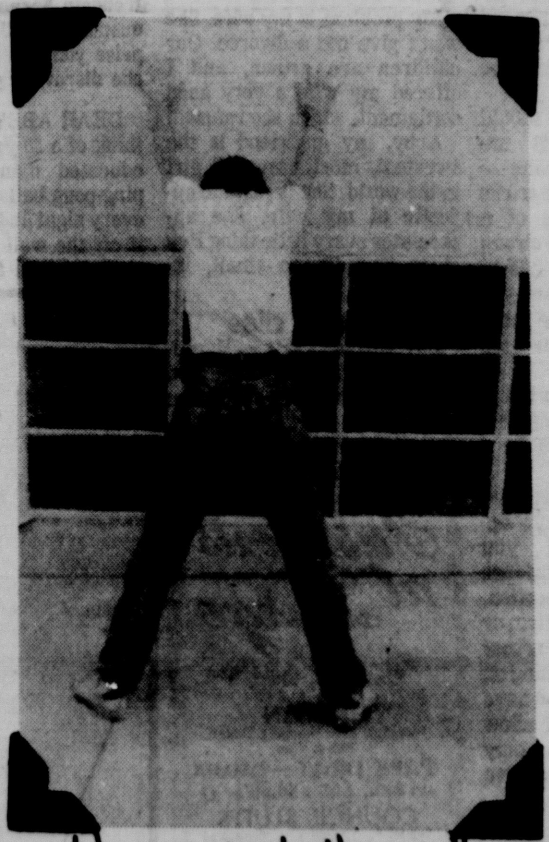
While hanging around the movie lot, he listened to other extras and their fame-starved stories — about hassles getting an agent, hassles getting a part.

Ashmun did not yet have an agent. He didn't have a steady gig. But, to him, big deal.

Ashmun admits that he isn't a good guitarist. He doesn't credit himself with much more than "fair" ability.

He was 20 years old when he began learning guitar. But, he said, even if you know a few chords, you can shatter the world.

"If you know only three or four chords, you can play 'Sympathy for the Devil' " Ashmun said. "I can write a rock song as good as Kiss."



Up against the wall

Scene 3: Take 22.

Of all Ashmun's characters, the best defined, in his own estimation, is Rooty Toot Koodzy, the rock and roll guru.

Rooty Toot was born during Saturday matinees that Ashmun used to attend with his older brother.

Ashmun didn't learn until several years later, at a comic book convention, that Roody Kazoody really existed, a comic book character somewhat like Howdy Doody.

Ashmun picked up additional bits of the guru's character along the way. The voice came from a Peter Sellers record where he uses an Indian dialect.

Then a friend gave him some weird wraparound glasses that looked like the Lone Ranger's mask. Then he tied his hair on top of his head. Things clicked. The rock and roll guru was born.

Rooty Toot Koodzy is a satire on the spirituality supermarket, Ashmun said. So many philosophies and religions abound which proclaim the "true way to enlightenment" that no one knows what to select, he said.

The guru preaches the doctrine of Gurock, which, basically, is to release inhibitions through any music you can dance to.

Not just disco or reggae, but also "surf rock, acid rock, oldies, newies, rhythm n' blues, rockabilly, ruffabilly, glitter rock, space rock, swing jazz, rock n' sock, rock n' bop and be-bop."

The guru would tell you that he made up the word Gurock at the New Delhi Sock Hop, where he was playing all different sorts of dance music.

Da peoples would always say, 'Wut is dat music, Guru . . . rock?' So I called da whole mess Gurock." That was Rooty Toot Koozdy speaking.

Ashmun doesn't know how much longer he can keep up the guru routine, for Rooty Toot Koozdy is aging. The guru first appeared at an amateur night at the Cornhusker Hotel several years ago. If he continues for much longer, he could become stale, Ashmun said.

But after the guru dies, after he reaches his limits, Ashmun hopes the word Gurock will remain. The term itself started out to mock attempts by critics to catalog music into catch-all terms: the Liverpool sound, the Nashville sound, the L.A. sound.

But, in his fantasies , Ashmun imagines that the word Gurock will catch on, people will use it to mean almost any type of music that's danceable, that has a driving beat.

So, brothers and sisters, whaddya say? From now on, when you play anything from the wind to Earth, Wind and Fire, you are not listening to rock or to soul or to boogie. You are listening to Gurock. A music uniting all musics.

You might be injecting a new word into the English language, Ashmun says. Can you dig it?

Family strong in mathematics

A family tradition of mathematicians is continuing at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dr. Sylvia Wiegand, associate professor of mathematics at UNL, is the granddaughter of Grace Chisholm Young and William Henry Young, an English mathematical team which produced a substantial amount of mathematical research early in this century.

Dr. Wiegand's grandmother, Grace, was the first women to receive a Ph.D. in any discipline in Germany. Her father, Laurence Young, retired last year from the University of Wisconsin, and her husband Roger is also a professor of math at UNL.

"In my family mathematics was a natural thing to do and it was natural for a woman to do," said Dr. Wiegand, who recently presented a paper about her grandmother at the annual meeting of the American Mathematical Association.

Unable to get a Ph.D degree from a university in her native England, Grace Chisholm received permission from the German government to earn her doctor of philosophy degree from Gottingen University. She received the degree magna cum laude in 1895 and one year later married her tutor from Girton College, the women's school at Cambridge University.

William Young, her husband, was also a mathematician. Both became internationally known in their time and their results are still widely quoted today.

Together they produced 220 mathematical articles and several books. Most of the articles were published under William's name, when actually the ideas were conceived jointly, and it was always Grace who filled in the details and wrote up the articles for publication, said Dr. Wiegand.

A letter William wrote to Grace confirmed this: "The fact is that our papers ought to be published under our joint names, but if this were done neither of us get the benefit of it . . . mine the laurels now and the knowledge. Yours the knowledge only."

William never held a professorship at any research-oriented university, but served as president of the London Mathematical Society from 1922-24 and as president of the International Union of Mathematicisns in 1929.

While raising six children, Grace continued to carry out research plus pursue her interests in medicine, languages and music. She completed all the requirements for a medical degree except the internship, so her medical practice was limited to the family, said Dr. Wiegand.

She knew six languages and taught them to her children when they were young. The children also played musical instruments and the family gave informal concerts.

One of the Young's daughters would later write that her father had ideas and a wise grasp of subjects, but was only stimulated by the "reactions of a sympathetic audience," while her mother had the "decision, initiative and stamina" to carry a project to its end.

"If she had not had that skill, my father's genius would probably have been abortive, and would not have eclipsed hers and the name she had already made for herself."

A geometry book for children was published in 1905 under both names, but Dr. Wiegand said it was probably written by Grace, since the German edition was published only in her name. Her 7-year-old son, Frank, helped her with the book.

Grace also wrote two biology books for children called "Bimbo" and "Bimbo and the Frogs." The books explained the principles of cell division for children in short story form, with a family of characters much like the Youngs.

Of the Young's six children, two became mathematicians — Sylvia's father Laurence, and his sister Rosalind. Another daughter, Helen, studied math but did not complete a Ph.D. The oldest son, Frank, also called Bimbo, died in World War I. A daughter, Jeant, fulfilled her mother's dream of being a medical doctor, the youngest child, Pat, is a chemist.

Dr. Wiegand never met her grandmother, who died in 1944, before she was born.

"Everything I have heard about her indicates she was a wonderful person, so extremely talented, but also kind and loved by everyone."

Bridge

It's now your bid

By B. Jay Becker

Your partner opens One Notrump (16 to 18 points), and your right-hand opponent bids Two Spades. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1.♠9 ♥AJ83 ♦AJ83 ♣K982
2.♠752 ♥J8 ♦93 ♣AKJ943
3.♠J6 ♥A5 ♦Q872 ♣J8542
4.♠3 ♥AJ9874 ♦K985 ♣86
5.♠10 ♥62 ♦K743 ♣QJ7643

1. Three spades. Obviously this is a game-going hand — with 13 high-card points facing a notrump bid — but you're not in position at this point to determine the best final contract.

Naturally you prefer to play the hand in a suit rather than in notrump, because the singleton spade is a liability in notrump. But rather than name one of your suits, which could easily prove to be the wrong one, it is better to cuebid spades, thus requesting partner to choose a suit.

Partner may, of course, respond three notrump, indicating a double-stopper in spades. If that occurs you should pass. Notrump may be best after all.

2. Three notrump. You should have no qualms about undertaking a notrump game — holding six probable club tricks — despite the absence of a spade stopper. There is a strong probability that partner has at least one spade stopper, and you should brush aside the bare possibility that he is wide open in that suit.

Note that a three club bid is not forcing in this sequence. It is merely a competitive bid for a part score.

3. Two notrump. That is what you'd have bid had your opponent passed, and you shouldn't vary your response because of the intervention. Two notrump does not affirm or deny spade strength. Partner may pass or go on, depending on his hand. He will think you have 8 or 9 points, but should allow for the possibility you have only 7 points in this competitive situation.

4. Four hearts. You can't afford to stop below game with this layout, and it is best to bid it at once. This is not just an 8-point hand, though that's all you have in high cards. The 1-6-4-2 distribution is worth at least 4 points more. Stated differently, you have six or seven probable winners opposite a notrump bid, and you'd have to be very unlucky not to make four hearts.

5. Three clubs. This is the type of hand where you'd like to compete for a part score without having your partner treat the bid as forcing. You can probably make three clubs, and partner is highly unlikely to be able to make three notrump.

Bulldog might be able to bring malpractice suit

Postcard

By Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — I retained a lawyer Jill recently for the household dachshund. Not much extra money coming into the scatter.

I said to the Lawyer: "Keep an eye out for a malpractice suit."

I said: "I backed into a post at the supermarket. The dog's been shaking her head. It may be whiplash."

Lean days at Sinking Inn. Too poor for caviar, too rich for food stamps.

In the Midwest, a bulldog name of Caesar was not feeling good. So he went to the vet.

"Maybe something I ate," said Caesar.

The vet put Caesar under and opened him up.

Lo and behold, he took out three pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. (Several pieces were missing, but it looked like it might have been "Washington Crossing the Delaware.")

He found a metal road building toy with a scoop shovel. (Made in Japan and as good as new.) He found a plastic bottle top and a golf ball.

"I shouldn't have let go, it's bad for the bulldog image," said Caesar. "But the medic had me high on ether."

Now there was a dog with a malpractice suit. Was the golf ball still playable?

The world changes. What's happened to that kindly old character who saved the marriage by showing the young housewife how to make a cup of coffee?

Young Housewife: "I don't know why it is. He won't drink my coffee."

Kindly Old Character: "Here let me show you. This coffee is better because it's mountain grown."

Husband: "What wonderful coffee! Can I have a nother cup?"

With coffee at today's prices, he asks for another cup, she breaks the cup over his head.

If we could afford the coffee, we can't afford the water. Water is still short in the Golden State.

Unfortunately, it was just at this time that we went into tie-dying. The tie-dyers are neighborhood friends of my moppet. They tie-dye girls' undershirts.

Name of the company was Cat Corporation. Upgraded to French: "Chats Creations."

Place of business: my scatter.

I advanced money for the cotton undershirts. Also for the dye. "We'll pay you back out of our profits," they said.

What do you mix dye with? Water. Where does the water come from?

I said: "How about mixing the dye with my beer? It's cheaper."

"We use it with our shampoo. It makes your hair set better," they said.

☆ ☆ ☆

"What do women want?" asked the great Dr. Freud, reaching for the cooking sherry.

He can't get divorce to marry young girlfriend

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 53-year-old man who is very much in love with a 22-year-old girl. I know you think I'm crazy, but this girl really loves me. She even broke up with a young, good-looking man just for me. She worked for me for a short time, but we didn't want any talk around the place, so I had her quit.

My problem is my wife. She won't give me a divorce. Our children are grown, and I offered my wife a very good settlement, which she refused.

Abby, my girlfriend is the sweetest, most unspoiled girl in the world. She is just the opposite of my wife. She appreciates every little thing I've given her, like a small, inexpensive car, some clothes and taking care of her mother's hospital bill. I would gladly give up my last dime to be free to marry this girl. How can I get my wife to give in?

LONG ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: Make her a better offer. She might surprise you. But don't "give up your last dime" for your freedom because that "sweet, unspoiled girl" might also surprise you and disappear when she discovers you're broke.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 28-year-old, college-educated man who takes a ping-pong ball to bed with him every night and keeps bouncing it off the wall and catching it until he gets tired enough to fall asleep? That's my husband.

He claims it "relieves tension." We have been married for two years, and he started this foolishness about six months ago. I have even considered leaving this nut!

PING-PONG PROBLEM

DEAR PING: Your husband is inconsiderate to relieve his tension in a manner that adds to yours. Suggest that he tell his troubles to a doctor before you tell yours to a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and our daughter were too close to suit me. They were cutting me out, so I solved it by telling my husband a few things about her, and they are no longer close.

Then he developed a closeness with our son, and I used the same method, and our son left home.

Someone in our family who knew how I solved this problem sent me an article in which there was a similar situation. It said the wife was jealous of her own children.

I admit I'm jealous where other women are concerned because when he has had to go out of town on business, I always go with him. I trust him IN town, but not OUT of town. I think that kind of jealousy is normal, but I don't think it's possible to be jealous of my own children, do you?

DEAR JEALOUS: Yes. And from where I sit, I would say that you are. I would also say that the "method" you used to break up the "closeness" between your husband and your children was underhanded and nothing to be proud of.

Jazz pianist dies

It's Your Money

By Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — The vast majority of Americans have just had their taxes cut, thanks to the tax-simplification law signed last week. You'll see the results in your paycheck starting June 1. Withholding rates will be reduced a little, giving you more cash to take home.

But if you have a strong desire to save more money, consider asking your employer to continue withholding taxes at the old rate. When you file a tax return next year, you'll then get a nice refund. It's like taking your tax cut in a lump sum, rather than in dribs and drabs.

If you don't use the standard deduction, definitely consider having taxes withheld at the old rate. Taxes have not been cut for the 21% of taxpayers expected to itemize returns next year. So the lower withholding could result in a higher cash payment due the government next April 15.

Here are details on the new tax law:

Better Standard Deduction for Married Couples: The old deduction ranged from $2,100 to $2,800, depending on income. The new deduction is a flat $3,200 for everyone. (Incidentally, it won't be called the standard deduction any more. The new jibber-jabber is "zero bracket amount." Does that make things simpler?'

Better Standard Deduction for Most Singles: The old deduction ranged from $1,700 to $2,400, depending on income. The new deduction is a flat $2,200 for everyone. This means a tax cut for about 16 million others. The tax increase is concentrated among those earning more than $15,000.

Smaller Working Wife Penalty: Married couples, where both husband and wife work, still have to pay a higher tax than if they were single and filing separately. But the penalty has been reduced a little. Married couples where only one spouse works continue to pay less than a single person earning the same amount.

Tax experts say there's no way to tax the income of single and married people exactly alike, and at the same time apply higher tax rates to higher incomes. You have to choose one or the other.

Tax Simplification: The tax forms introduced last year forced taxpayers to make a number of new calculations. That made tax filing more complicated and vastly increased the number of mistakes. Next year's form will eliminate all calculations for people taking the standard deduction (unless they take one of the special credits, like the child care credit or retirement income credit). It will also introduce a simple tax table for the people who itemize deductions.

One-time Break for Retired People: A change was made in the retirement-income credit last year. It lowered taxes for older people with small incomes and raised taxes for those with larger incomes (generally speaking, those making more than $11,400). This change is still in effect. But people who were hurt by the new law have been given one year of grace.

If the new retirement income credit forced you to pay more taxes for 1976 than you would have otherwise, you can refigure the tax according to the old rules and apply for a refund. Ask for help, if you need it, from an office of the Internal Revenue Service or a tax preparer. File form 1040X, for an amended return, plus schedule RIC. Next year, however, you'll be stuck with the new rules.

One-time Break on Sick Pay: Last year's tax law wiped out the provision that allowed the first $100 a week of sick pay to pass untaxed. But the million or so taxpayers hurt by this have a one-time chance to get some money back. Congress has decided not to apply this change to 1976 taxes, so if you didn't deduct sick pay on the 1976 return, you can file for a refund.

You'll need form 1040X and form 2440 — but the latter form won't be available until late June. So make a note right away to check with an IRS office at that time. Also, mention this tax windfall to anyone who you think might be entitled to it. The average refund is estimated at around $327 — and some of you may get $1,000 or more.

Benefits climbing for city workers

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — Fringe benefits for municipal employees have been growing 12 to 14% a year.

Now the employees, after being paid in cash for the hours they actually work, receive about 50% more in the value of fringes.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, in announcing these findings, doesn't say whether the fringes are too high or too low. But they are better than the fringes offered by private industry — and they are expensive.

"This report underscores the need to understand that fringe benefits are no longer a matter involving just a few dollars," said Kenneth A. Gibson, mayor of Newark, N.J., and president of the Conference of Mayors. "The amount of fringes indicates the results of state-mandated benefits and union demands.

"This report is not published to discourage or encourage benefits, but to give both employees and local governments a moe realistic understanding of the implications of their growing costs."

He said that persons comparing the respective salaries paid by cities and private industry should take into account the more liberal fringes paid by cities.

The Conference of Mayors sponsored a survey of fringe benefits paid in 1975 by 777 American cities, and compared the results with a similar-survey of 581 cities for 1973. The conference found that between 1973 and 1975, fringes for policeman and firemen increased 14.2% a year; for other employees, 12.2%.

In 1972, the survey found, fringe benefits amounted to 46.4% of the pay for hours worked by policemen and firemen, and 41% for other city employees. The average for industry was 39.8%.

The report estimated that for the current fiscal year ending June 30, the nation's municipal policemen and firemen are receiving fringes worth 48% of their pay for hours worked; other employees, 43%.

All of these figures are three to six percentage points too low, the report said, because the survey, computing the value of pension rights, counted only the money that cities actually paid into the pension funds. But many cities are not putting up all the money they will need to pay for the pensions they have promised.

The report listed these fringe benefits in their approximate order of cost:

Pensions and Social Security; personal time expense allowances, including payments for guaranteed work-days or work-years, wash-up and travel time, and paid lunch periods; paid sick leave; uniforms; non-production bonuses such as Christmas bonuses; death benefits; long-term disability insurance; paid time off for military training or jury duty; unemployment compensation; and education.

Pensions and Social Security payments represent about 32% of the cost of fringes; personal time expense allowances, 15%; and paid vacations, 13%.

Cities in the Northeast and West pay the highest percentages in fringe benefits, with the South paying the lowest percentage.

7.3% increase in patient costs seen in hospital board action

By Gracia McAndrew
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln General Hospital board of directors Thursday night approved a proposed 1977-78 hospital budget calling for rate adjustments which could result in a 7.3% increase in the daily cost per patient.

While the average cost per patient day is projected to be $172.72 for the current fiscal year, the cost for 1977-78 is expected to be $185.39.

However, allowances for Medicare and Medicaid discounts, bad debts, free care, operating and other expenses, will reduce the hospital's net revenue to $3.82 per patient day, compared to the current year's $1.98 per patient day, said Bob Brungard, hospital director.

The cost per patient day is based on a projected average daily census of 195 persons in the adult and pediatric units, 10 infants in the nursery, 20 patients in the Independence Center and 51 daily emergency room visits.

Major factors contributing to increased costs to patients, Brungard said, are prediction of increases in the hospital's operating expenses.

Among those is a 30% or $98,000 increase in the hospital's utility costs for 1977-78. Increased salaries to the tune of $462,000 more than budgeted for the current year also will contribute to the higher cost per patient, Brungard said.

Proposed changes for individual room rates include: private rooms from the current $84 per patient per day to $92 per day; semi-private from $74 to $81; three-bed room from $67 to $73; intensive care from $180 to $195; delivery room from $186 to $205; nursery from $60 to $65; and emergency room from $15 to $16.

The rate changes will become effective Sept. 1, provided the proposed budget is approved by Mayor Helen Boosalis and the Lincoln City Council.

Also at the meeting, the board approved a $30,000 expenditure for the purchase of a house and lot, 2445 St. Mary, from the Lincoln Hospital Association.

The board hopes to construct a grounds building to house the hospital's vehicles and equipment and develop a 24-stall parking lot on the newly-purchased property, which adjoins two lots currently owned by Lincoln General Hospital.

Board Chairman Breta Dow announced to the board that the hospital's Independence Center has been certified as a alcoholism treatment center by the Nebraska Division on Alcoholism Services.

Dissidents' 'safety' at stake

Washington (UPI) — Mrs. Alexander Solzhenitsyn, wife of the Nobel Prize winning Russian author, said Thursday the Soviet government recently decided to declare war on political dissidents in an effort to stamp them out.

She called on the West to intervene for their safety — although she did not say precisely how.

"It is extremely important to the international situation that this be brought out now," she said in a statement read at a news conference held by Rep. James M. Jeffords, R-Vt.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn and his wife live in Cavendish, Vt.

Jeffords, Vermont's only member of the House, said he formed a friendly relationship with the Solzhenitsyns in helping them overcome a number of bureaucratic problems, and he found them "very level-headed, just very concerned about Russia."

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said Soviet authorities conducted a wide spread campaign across the Soviet Union to stamp out political dissidence.

"Not long ago," she said, "a Soviet journalist of Novosti (a Soviet feature agency), in a private conversation, stated that the Soviet government has declared war on the Soveit dissidents. People witnessed this and I have complete confirmation."

Dissidents are being jailed and held incommunicado, she said, prison conditions are deteriorating, investigations are conducted in total secrecy and the KGB police are warning Soviet citizens against public activity on pain of arrest.

Area carpool strategy posed

John Bicknell offered to contact apartment- and townhouse-dwellers in his southeast Lincoln neighborhood and give them computer cards now used to line up carpools.

That stretegy — contacting persons living in the same area — contrasts with the practice used so far of organizing carpools at places of employment. Eighteen of the city's largest employers are being encouraged to participate in the program.

About 20 persons, representing a variety of businesses and organizations, attended the session. Suggestions to encourage energy saving through carpooling included:

—Encourage businesses to provide premium parking spaces to carpoolers.

—Organize carpools through churches, schools and community organizations.

—Encourage housewives to shop for groceries together.

—Set up special points where drivers, on random trips about town, can pick up riders.

—Engage in a public relations campaign to let people know that cars and parking are a convenience, not a God-given right.

Director Shirley Maly said carpool participants at the County-City Building, the program's first target, should start meeting with each other next week.

Criticism storms on choice of Dayan by Israeli bloc

Tel Aviv, Israel (AP) — Selection of Moshe Dayan as foreign minister in a government led by the Likud bloc touched off a political storm Thursday. One party broke off coalition talks and another denounced Dayan as a "political prostitute."

A spokesman for the Likud bloc, which won the May 17 elections and will likely head a new government, said the choice of the former Labor defense minister — a hero of the 1967 Mideast war — "will strengthen the government both inside and out."

Likud leader Menahem Begin, likely choice for prime minister, announced Wednesday he had selected Dayan "to enhance the diplomatic prestige of Israel." Dayan said he had agreed "in principle" to serve in the government and would resign from the Labor party, under whose banner he won a seat in the new parliament.

Dayan, 62, resigned the Defense Ministry after Israel was caught by surprise in the 1973 Middle East war. He has been identified with the right wing of the Labor party since but has been relatively inactive.

The surprise choice angered the leader of the centrist Democratic Movement for Change, Yigael Yadin, who had been holding coalition talks with the Likud.

"This is a very serious step," said Yadin, whose party won 15 seats in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament. "The assignment of important government ministries must be . . . part of coalition talks."

He said he would not resume discussions with the Likud unless Dayan's appointment was withdrawn.

The Likud, which will have 43 seats in the new Knesset, must collect 18 more seats from other parties to form a coalition government.

The Labor party, which has ruled Israel since its founding 29 years ago, denounced Dayan's defection.

But Rabbi Alexander Schindler, president of the American Union of Hebrew Congregations, praised the selection as a "moderating force" in the Likud.

"Dayan is very much of a familiar person," said Schindler, in Israel to brief Likud officials on American Jewish opinion. "This brings the government of Begin much closer to the perception of the American community and therefore will be welcome."

Holiday travelers to pay 5¢-6¢ more for gasoline

Washington (AP) — Motorists traveling over the Memorial Day weekend will pay 5 to 6 cents more for a gallon of gas than they did a year ago, the American Automobile Association reported Thursday.

An AAA survey of 3,600 gasoline stations showed the average nationwide price of a gallon of regular gasoline was 64 cents. The average price for premium fuel was 68.9 cents; unleaded, 66.6 cents, and diesel, 56.6.

The report divided the nation into seven regions, with motorists in the West paying the highest average prices: regular, 65.4 cents; premium 69.9, and unleaded, 67.4.

Average selling prices in New England were 63.7, 68.4 and 66.5; Midatlantic, 63.9, 69.4 and 67.1; Great Lakes, 63.8, 69.2 and 66.9; Midwest, 64, 68.3 and 66.4; Southeast, 63.5, 68.1 and 66.3.

Hawaii reported the highest average prices, with regular selling for 73.5 cents; premium, 77.1 and unleaded, 75.2. Texas had the lowest prices: 60, 64.2 and 61.9.

The survey also checked whether stations would be open during the Memorial Day weekend. Nineteen per cent said they would be open 24 hours a day the entire weekend. Sixteen per cent planned to be closed Sunday and 8 per cent on Monday. About half the stations will be closed by 10 p.m. each day.

Child nearly hurt as vandals damage Air Park residences

Two picture windows were broken at the home of Sheryl Evasco, 5000 W. Loring, shortly before midnight Wednesday. Minutes later, two more were broken at the home of George W. Davis, 5101 W. Vale, where the child was nearly struck.

Police recovered the hammer head used by the vandals, who fled on foot. A neighbor said he saw three males running from the area at the time of the incidents.

Stocks and week-long slide

Dow Ind. +4.83

New York (AP) — Some cautious buying in blue-chip issues helped the stock market halt a week-long slide in a mixed session Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 4.83 to 908.07, after a 38.67-point drop over the past five trading days.

But Dow Jones' transportation and utility averages both declined, and losers held a 6-5 edge on gainers at the New York Stock Exchange.

The average has not closed below 900 since Jan. 7, 1976, when it finished at 898.69.

Also on the agenda for Friday was the government's monthly report on the index of leading economic indicators.

Insurance officer raps federal intervention

Alliance (AP) — The newly-elected president of the Professional Insurance Agents of Nebraska says the possibility of additional federal government intervention in the insurance business could become the biggest single factor in causing inflation in the cost of insurance.

Loren Solberg of Alliance said that "dual regulation — by both the federal and state government — causes additional work, reporting and effort by insurance companies and by agents. This adds to the inflation factor and the cost is passed on to the consumer."

Solberg said the U.S. Justice Department is studying the pricing and marketing of insurance and may develop recommendations which would threaten to drive independent agents out of the market.

Firms may get fire rate cuts

Hastings (AP) — Fire insurance rates for some Hastings businesses may be reduced by as much as five per cent as the result of a reclassification of the city by the Insurance Services Office in Omaha, Fire Chief Monte Kehoe said Thursday.

Kehoe said the city's classification had been changed from Class 6 to class 5 as a result of new firefighting equipment the city has obtained and an increase in personnel.

He said homeowners' insurance rates will not be affected.

Sites for power plant narrowed to 5 choices

Grand Island (UPI) — Hall County Regional Planning Commission Director Nelson Helm has narrowed to five the number of sections of land he is recommending as possible sites for the proposed Grand Island power plant.

Helm is recommending one area which includes four sections of land one mile south of Grand Island and one section one and one-half miles north of U.S. Highway 34 near the Hall County-Merrick County line.

Of the 10 original areas proposed, Helm said the five he is suggesting are more suited for the coal-fired unit, with easy railway access and good water supplies.

The $80 million, 100-megawatt plant eventually will be placed on a 300-acre site. The unit is expected to be in operation in the early 1980s.

Pollution acts changes urged

Hastings (AP) — The Executive Vice President of the American Industrial Development Council said Thursday that developers should lobby in Congress for changes in the federal air and water pollution control acts.

Barrow, gilt prices rise at Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Barrows and gilts weighing 200-275 pounds were 25 to 75 cents higher and those over 270 pounds were 50 cents to $1.00 higher in fairly active trade on the Omaha Livestock Market Thursday.

Sows were unevenly firm to 75 cents higher.

With 3,500 hogs on offer, 250 head of U.S. grades 1-2 weighing 200-230 pounds sold for $44.50. U.S. grades 1-3 weighing 195-230 pounds brought $44.00-$44.25. Sows weighing 300-600 pounds rang up $38.00-$39.25.

There were 400 cattle and calves on offer. A small supply of slaughter steers was 25-50 cents higher. Heifers were steady to 50 cents higher. Trade was fairly active on both classes, but the supply was not enough to test trade fully.

Cows were moderately active, with prices steady.

A few lots of good and choice 975-1,150 pound steers brought $40.00-$41.00. A package of choice 1,087 pound steers sold for $41.75.

A load of choice and prime and a load of 983-1,031 pound heifers sold for $41.00-$41.50.

Ambassador charges IT&T with defamation

New York (AP) — A former U.S. ambassador to Chile is suing the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. for $4.6 million for damaging his reputation by allegedly implicating him in covert actions in Chile.

Edward M. Korry filed the suit in U.S. District Court on Thursday against IT&T and Harold S. Geneen, IT&T's board chairman and chief executive.

Germans develop 2nd engine

Detroit (AP) — A new generation of fuel-efficient rotary piston engines is being developed in Germany, says an auto company official.

General Motors Corp. in this country gave up development of a rotary engine on the grounds it could not be made as efficient and pollution-free as conventional reciprocating engines.

Robert Brooks, a consultant for the German automaker Audi-NSU, told the Engineering Society of Detroit that the new engine has 50% larger displacement and power than the old one but has fuel economy equal to the reciprocating engines of comparable power.

More plastics seen in cars of future

New York (UPI) — Increased use of plastics in the 30- to 40-pound range, annually, can be expected in 1978-1980 car models, reports Modern Plastics Magazine.

The reason, explains the McGraw-Hill magazine: need to improve mileage by reducing car weight.

About 10 more pounds of plastics will go into each 1977 model, bringing to about 180 pounds per car the average use of plastics.

Plastics, says the magazine, will replace steel in large exterior body components, structural support members, gas tanks, even wheels.

Astrological Forecast

By Sidney Omarr

Friday, May 27, 1977

Vivacious Arlene Dahl is knowledgeable about astrology, is skillful at "guessing" signs, especially those of persons born under Taurus. If Arlene met Barbra Streisand, she probably would be able to tell her in a moment, "You are a Taurus!" And Barbra probably would just as quickly reply, "Yes, and I am glad of it!" Taurus and Leo often experience conflicts, especially on first encounter. Miss Dahl is a Leo who apparently has learned to understand Taurus.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on "celebrating" with co-workers, those who share goals, interests and problems. Leave fine points, details for another time. Social activity accelerates. But do remember resolutions concerning nutrition and health. Moderation is key!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get results from creative endeavors. You're given more to do — and encouraged to do it your own way. Accent on children, affairs of heart, significant changes, the breaking away from restrictions. Yes, love and romance are also part of picture!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Be analytical. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. If you ask, you will obtain answers. Key is to display courage of convictions. Another Gemini, a Virgo and Sagittarian figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Adjustment in domestic area is indicated. Family members make requests. Be diplomatic. Consider needs, possibilities and potential. Visit proves enlightening. Message clarifies much that had been obscured. Taurus, Libra figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Fast-talking individual may be interested in getting something for nothing — at your expense. Know it and don't open yourself to threats or false flattery. Keep eye on valuables. Insist on definitions, terms, facts as contrasted to fantasy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Now you can get what you seek, need. Cycle is high and it spells money. What had appeared to slip away is recovered. You gain in material sense, in prestige and title. You work hard, but reward is ample. In personal life, love is very much in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You "pick up steam" as day progresses. What seems to be indifference is merely lack of immediate recognition. You'll be vindicated. Cycle is high and your judgment and inner feelings are on target. Aries and another Libran figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on pleasure principle. You feel revitalized. Hopes, wishes, romance are all intensified. You win friends and influence people. You can get to heart of matters. Be independent. Dare to be original. You'll succeed!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow through on hunch. Your career advances if you are not ultra-sensitive. Means makes some accommodation to common sense. Get off high horse. Intelligent concession can mean solid progress. Number "1" figures prominently. Aquarian has story to tell — and it's valid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on education, dissemination of information, publishing, travel. End to loneliness possible if you enlarge horizons, open yourself to experiences, feelings. Gemini, Sagittarius figure in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get details straight — understand basic material. Be familiar with legalities. Partner or mate is concentrating on finances. Know about costs, income potential, budget. You could become involved with fascinating person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain hint from Aquarius message. Be direct, specific. Get thoughts, ideas on paper. Definite gain indicated through written word. Read, write, make changes, revise, ask questions, find reasons for recent happenings. Number "5" crops up more than by coincidence.

IF MAY 27th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are a dramatic, versatile, dynamic person. You can act, you draw people to you with their problems, you are concerned with language and justice. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. June will be a memorable month. In 1977, you plant seeds for future. You become emotionally involved — if single, you are likely to marry. If married, there could be an addition to family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

76ers down Portland

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Playmaker Henry Bibby contributed 15 points and six assists as the Philadelphia 76ers built an 18-point halftime lead and then coasted to a brawl-filled 107-89 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night in their National Basketball Association championship series.

A near-riot was precipitated with 4 minutes, 52 seconds left in the final period when Philadelphia's 6-foot-11½ Darryl Dawkins, who weighs 245 pounds, squared off first with Portland's Bob Gross and then with the Trail Blazers' 6-9, 218-pound Maurice Lucas. Dawkins and Lucas were expelled from the game after a dozen security guards eventually cleared the floor of players and spectators.

Doug Collins scored 27 points and Julius Erving 20 as the 76ers took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, which continues Sunday afternoon and next Thursday night in Portland.

The 76ers exploded in the second period, building an 18-point bulge, 61-43, at halftime. They shot 54.1 per cent from the floor to an atrocious 22.2 per cent for the Western Conference-champion Blazers in the first half.

Portland was forced by the pressing Philadelphia defense to take shots from the perimeter and made only five field goals in the second quarter.

Philadelphia had an 11-point margin three times in the second quarter, the last at 49-38, with 3:31 left in the half. The Sixers then outscored the Blazers 12-5 to the end of the half, unleashing a devastating fast break.

Bill Walton and Lucas, the Blazers' top scorers, each managed just one basket in Portland's futile second period.

Portland broke fast in the third period, outscoring Philadelphia 8-4 and reducing the 76ers' lead to 65-51. But the Blazers couldn't cut into the margin any further and wound up only one point better off at the end of the three periods, trailing 81-64.

The Sixers took a 10-8 lead after four early ties on a 17-footer by Bibby. They boosted it to five points, 15-10, with 6:52 left in the opening period, but Portland whittled it to one point in the next 52 seconds on a tap-in and an 18-foot jumper by Lucas.

Philadelphia got its lead back to five points three times, but the persistent Trail Blazers reduced the 76er lead to one point again on an 18-foot jumper by Walton, with 1:24 remaining.

Philadelphia shot 55 per cent from the field to 44.4 for Portland in those first 12 minutes.

Indy drivers get final practice

Indianapolis (AP) — The cars hurtled around the track once more on Thursday, the final day of practice before 33 drivers go at it for real in Sunday's 61st running of the Indianapolis 500.

About 100,000 fans bustled around Indianapolis Motor Speedway, drawn by the dramatically high speeds of the last two weekends of qualifying, by pit-crew competition promoted by a beer company and by perfect weather with the cloudless skies and temperatures in the mid-80's.

The speed was there again. Johnny Rutherford, the defending champion, whipped his McLaren-Cosworth around the 2½-mile banked track at 194.553 miles an hour, the fastest of the day.

"I'm satisfied," Rutherford said. "We made a few minor adjustments, a little fine tuning, and I think we'll be as competitive as anyone on race day."

Conversely, A.J. Foyt put on his typical glum public face. "Nope, not all that happy," the three-time Indy winner drawled after his Coyote-Foyt was clocked at 192.513 m.p.h., second only to Rutherford's speed. "You're always looking for some more speed, for a little more."

Tom Sneva, the pole-sitter as a result of a 200.535 m.p.h. lap that led to a track-record 198.884 qualifying average, was clocked at 191.489 in his McLaren-Cosworth on Thursday. "We'll be ready Sunday," he said. "We'll be in there."

Tom's brother, Jerry, clocked close to 180 m.p.h. in his McLaren-Offenhauser, then commented: "I think we'll be able to turn that pretty consistently Sunday. If we do, we've got a heck of a chance."

Jerry is one of the seven rookies in the field. He thinks one of the others, Danny Ongais, has and even better one. "If he doesn't blow up his car, he's got a tremendous chance to win this thing," Sneva said. "Danny's got this thing of either winning his races or destroying his cars trying." Indy's last rookie winner was the late Graham Hill, in 1966.

Other top speeds clocked during Thursday's Carburetion Day, a name lingering from the past since Indy racers haven't had carburetors for about three decades, were Bobby Unser's 192.349 m.p.h., Mario Andretti's 190.678, Gorden Johncock's 190.355, Pancho Carter's 188.482, Al Unser's 187.478 and Ongais' 187.071.

Jim McElreath's crew won the $4,000 top prize in the pit competition, beating Wally Dallenbach's crew in the final round.

It involved the speed in the changing of two tires.

Rodgers' Rolls Royce seized by customs agents

San Diego (UPI) — Customs agents have seized a $38,000 automobile belonging to San Diego Chargers wide receiver Johnny Rodgers for non-payment of import duty.

The 1974 Rolls Royce silver blue shadow was brought into the United States from Canada without duty being declared on it, an official said Thursday.

Rodgers, who played last year for Montreal in the Canadian Football League and won the 1972 Heisman trophy after an outstanding career at the University of Nebraska, signed with the Chargers in December.

Rodgers was the Chargers' No. 1 draft choice in 1973.

Reports had it that Rodgers drove another of his cars, a Mercedes, into the country and declared it, but his friends drove his Rolls Royce into the U.S. through Detroit with no duty paid.

Huskers return ticket money

All advance payments for 1978 Nebraska football tickets sent to the Nebraska ticket office are being returned to the senders, Helen Ruth Wagner, acting Husker ticket manager, announced Thursday.

"Because none of the proposed additions to Memorial Stadium or the proposed new stadium can be completed in time for the 1978 season, Bob Devaney asks that fans be patient as it will take time to get all the payments returned," Wagner said. "But the Nebraska Athletic Department thanks everyone for yet another indication of the great continuing interest in Husker football."

Raymond signs NU letter

Randy Raymond, Fremont pole vaulter, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Nebraska, NU track coach Frank Sevigne announced Thursday.

Raymond, who holds the all-time Nebraska prep best of 15-6¼, will join Fremont teammate Larry Meyer at Nebraska.

Huskers' Nicodemus resigns

By Dave Sittler
Staff Sports Writer

Citing organizational problems, Nebraska women's athletic director, June Davis, announced Thursday that NU girls basketball and softball coach George Nicodemus has resigned.

Nicodemus, who handled the basketball team for the past two seasons while softball duties were added this year, was the only fulltime coach on the Nebraska women's staff.

"We are having some problems in organization in the program," Davis said. "So we thought that this (resignation) would be in the best interest of the program at this time."

Davis, named to the athletic director's spot Saturday by the Board of Regents replacing Aleen Swofford, said the Nicodemus resignation was a "mutual decision."

Contacted at his home Thursday, Nicodemus said he was notified of the decision calling for his resignation Monday.

"It came out of the blue," Nicodemus said. "I was, and still am, in complete shock."

During his stint with the women's cage team, Nicodemus compiled a 44-25 record, including a 23-9 and 21-16 records and a state championship this past season.

In his only season as the Husker softball coach, Nicodemus led Nebraska to a state softball title and finished the year with a 12-15 record.

Prior to his coaching duties at Nebraska, Nicodemus guided the women's basketball team for five years at now defunct John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo.

Nicodemus confirmed that he had applied for a similar coaching position at an unnamed Big Eight Conference school and a university in the Southwest Conference.

"I really don't have much of a comment at this time," Nicodemus said. "All I can say is that I am seeking a college coaching position."

With the resignation effective June 30, Nicodemus indicated he would still hold his basketball camps scheduled for early June at the University of Nebraska.

NU-Creighton cage game set for Dec. 9

A Dec. 9 game against Creighton University in Lincoln is one of the highlights of the 1977-78 Nebraska basketball schedule, announced by Husker Head Coach Joe Cipriano Thursday.

Overall in the NU-CU series, Creighton has won four games while the Huskers have won three. The last time the teams met was in 1932, when the Bluejays defeated Nebraska 28-26 in Lincoln. In 1978, the teams will meet in Omaha.

Nebraska will again participate in the Big 8 Preseason Basketball Tournament, held in Kansas City's Kemper Arena, from Dec. 27-30. The Cornhuskers then open league play on Jan. 7 at Kansas State.

Following the conference season, the league will hold its second annual Big 8 Postseason Basketball Playoffs, with the first round on Feb. 28 at the top four schools campus sites. The semifinals and finals will be held again at Kansas City's Kemper Arena, on March 3-4.

The schedule:

December 2, Missouri Southern State, at Lincoln; December 9, Creighton University at Lincoln; December 10, South Dakota University at Lincoln; December 12, University of Nevada-Reno, at Lincoln; December 17, University of Mississippi, at Lincoln; December 19, University of Minnesota, at Minneapolis; December 21, Western Illinois Univ., at Lincoln; December 23, Montana State University, at Lincoln; Dec. 27-30, Pre-season Big 8 Tournament, at Kansas City; January 7, Kansas State University, at Manhattan; January 11, University of Colorado, at Boulder; January 14, Iowa State University, at Lincoln; January 18, University of Oklahoma, at Norman; January 21, University of Missouri, at Lincoln; January 25, University of Kansas, at Lincoln; January 28, Oklahoma State University, at Lincoln; February 1, Univeristy of Colorado at Lincoln; February 4, Iowa State University, at Ames; February 8, Kansas State University, at Lincoln; February 11, University of Missouri, at Columbia; February 15, University of Oklahoma, at Lincoln; February 18, University of Kansas, at Lawrence; February 25, Oklahoma State University, at Stillwater; February 28, Play-off, First Round; March 3, Play-off, Semifinals; March 4, Play-off, Finals.

Detroit (UPI) — Fidgety Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers will make his long-awaited 1977 debut Friday night against the expansion Seattle Mariners.

A capacity crowd of more than 50,000 fans is expected at Tiger Stadium to cheer for "The Bird," unexpected hero of 1976 who has been awaiting his first start of the season even more anxiously than the public.

Fidrych has been cranky and short-tempered at times this spring, as well as his usual bubbly self, while recuperating from knee surgery. The 22-year-old right-hander tore cartilage in his left knee in mid-March and underwent surgery.

"The knee is fine. It doesn't bother me. Now maybe you'll leave me alone about it," Fidrych snapped after a tune-up May 19 in an exhibition game against the Cincinnati Reds. "I don't want to hear any more questions about my knee."

That outing — he went seven innings, gave up one run, four hits and made just 78 pitches — showed Tiger fans the 1976 rookie of the year was ready to roll. It was the same type outing that produced a 19-9 record and best-in-the-majors 2.34 earned run average for Fidrych last season.

Detroit manager Ralph Houk can be accused of withholding Fidrych from the free-agent enriched California Angels so he could face the softer expansion Seattle team in his first start. Glen Abbott, 1-4, will pitch for Seattle.

Martin's job is secure

New York (UPI) — Billy Martin, despite all the commotion on his New York Yankees team in the past few weeks, is secure in his job.

Amid all sorts of rumors about Martin's job, New York Yankees General Manager Gabe Paul affirmed, "His job is secure."

However, there was an implication it would not be so secure if there were more incidents like those of the past week.

Martin was fined $2,500 two weeks ago for missing a meeting with Paul and then sounding off in the press about not being allowed to call up Elrod Hendricks from Rochester as the team's third catcher.

There's method to madness of bat with hole in it

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The bat looks very routine. It is narrow at the handle, round at the top, thick where it should be thick, and thin where it should be thin.

It is, for all the world, an ordinary baseball bat. Except for one important extra. There is a hole in it . . . a great big, built-in hole.

Now more than one major leaguer strolls up to home plate swinging his bat so futilely that it seems to have a hole in it. Joe Martino's bat, however, is the only one we have seen so far that has an honest to goodness hole, deliberately built into it.

Martino is a warden with the Brooklyn, N.Y. Grand Jury, serving as a liaison between the court and the district attorney's office. That is his vocation. His avocation, however, is bsaeball and his major contribution to the sport he loves is his bat. The one with the hole in it.

"It's really very simple," said Martino. "There's nothing complicated about the idea."

And, in fact, the simple idea makes very good sense. Martino has cut his hole into the meat part of the bat-the section where the best contact is made, where line drives and extra base hits are created. When the batter swings, that is the area where he wants his bat to make contact with the pitch.

But with a hole in that section, there can be no contact. And that is precisely the point. If a batter using Martino's invention swings and catches the ball in his bat's opening, he knows that he is swinging properly and that, with a regulation bat, the same swing would have propduced a solid hit.

That sounds logical and Martino will tell you it works.

"I read once that an inventor should concentrate on the things he's most familiar with," he said. "And for me, that's baseball."

Martino was an outfielder with major league ambitions but a bat that didn't match.

I played a lot of semipro and service baseball," he said. I always liked to hit and I always wanted to be a better hitter. I wanted to hit .350 or .400. I tried to figure out a way to improve my batting and I thought this might be the answer."

Martino has dabbled in other inventions including a leg exerciser for football players. But the bat with the hole in it is his prize. It is patented and the Kessler Sales Corp. represents the product in the United States. It carries the name "Prac-Bat."

One of Martino's teammates on his Army team was Lt. Jack Reed, who made it to majors with the New York Yankees in the early 1960s as Mickey Mantle's caddy. Reed, an outfielder, was strictly a defensive player and survived strictly because of his glove. His career batting average for three major league seasons was .233. But if Martino's Prac-Bat had been available to him, who knows what Reed might have accomplished?

Originally, Martino's bat included a net arrangement that would catch the ball as it passed through the hole. More recent designs have altered that and the current prototype is engineered in such a way that the ball lodges in the bat's opening, much as it would in a lacrosse stick.

Martino convinced the Yankees to take a supply of the bats to spring training one year but the experiment failed because the bats shattered.

Back to the drawing board.

"The problem was the wood," said Martino. "But we solved it."

A chemist friend, Orest Berlings, came up with a high density plastic that made the Prac-Bat all but indestructable. According to Arthur Rogovin, president of the A.R. Mold and Die Co. of Younkers, N.Y., the Prac-Bat made from that plastic would be "strong enough to withstand the impact of a regulation size and regulation weight baseball thrown by a professional player."

The bat can also be manufactured from lighter weight plastics for youngsters and that is where Martino thinks it will succeed.

"Frankly, I think its future is in the toy market," the inventor said. "But it would also be practical as a teaching device for professionals as well."

There are a few professionals who could use that kind of teaching. If you don't think so, take a look at the weekly batting averages . . . from the bottom up.

Dorsett signs Dallas contract

Pittsburgh (UPI) — Now that he's officially a Dallas Cowboy, Tony Dorsett sees his professional future as an intriguing mystery that only his hard work can solve.

"I'll tell you, it's a little insecure," Dorsett said happily. "When I was at Pitt, I knew I had a starting job. Now I don't know. I'm going down there knowing that it's going to take a lot of work."

The contract terms for the Heisman Trophy winner and National Football League's No. 2 draft choice were kept in confidence, but published reports said he would not sign for less than $1 million.

"Tony just won the sweepstakes," laughed Cowboy's vice president Gil Brandt in an obvious reference to the multi-year pact that had been signed only hours earlier by Dorsett.

"We are highly elated to have him," Brandt said, "and that is to say the least."

Dorsett, a 5-11, 192-pound running back, is the all-time NCAA rushing champion with 6,082 yards. He scored 58 career touchdowns and was the first college player to run for more than 1,000 yards in four college seasons.

His record-setting performances led Pitt to an undefeated season and National Championship in 1976, and he would like nothing better than to make the same contributions to a Dallas Super Bowl bid. If, he says, he gets the chance . . . be it as a halfback, fullback or whatever. Dorsett will report to camp with the rookies July 20.

"They (Cowboys) haven't told me yet what plans they have for me," he said. "When I went down there for rookie orientation, most of what they used me for was the running game. So I guess that's the way it is for now . . . as a running back, but I don't know where."

No matter what, the Aliquippa, Pa., native says he is ready — both physically and mentally — for the responsibilities and challenges of a professional football player.

"Mentally, I just have to accept the fact that I'm going to be starting all over with the Cowboys," he said. "I won't have a starting position when I get there. I'll be working up from the bottom all over again. I can accept that.

"Physically, I'll be as ready as possible. I'll tell ya, I'll be prepared to do whatever I have to to play pro football."

Misty, Val's capture wins

Misty Lounge and Valentino's triumphed Thursday night in Lincoln AAA Softball League action at Ballard Field.

Misty continued undefeated with a 7-2 win over Arnold's Tavern in a five-inning game shortened by rain. Rick Waldrop earned three RBI as Rich Furasek improved his pitching mark to 2-0.

Misty is 6-0 while Valentino's, with an 8-6 win over Falstaff, gained sole possession of second place with a 5-1 mark.

Valentino's was led by Al Schmidt with three RBI and catcher Scott Schneider had three hits. Ross Stephenson and Rick Kahler slammed homers for Valentino's.

Evert to compete more

"Then I'd like to get married, and having kids would be a joy. I come from a close-knit family," she says.

Pillen will head north

Omaha (AP) — Nebraska University all-Big Eight linebacker Clete Pillen will sign a two-year contract with Calgary of the Canadian League Friday, his agent, Al Vacanti of Omaha said Wednesday.

Vacanti said Pillen will receive a "modest bonus" for signing. He said the contract is contingent on Pillen making the team.

Pillen who was not drafted in the recent National Football League draft, will be tried at middle linebacker.

NU trackmen to USTFF

Five members of the University of Nebraska track team, along with former Husker star Bob Unger, will compete in the United States Track and Field Federation (USTFF) National Championships May 27-28.

The USTFF Championships, to be run at Wichita State University, will be more than just a tune-up for the NCAA Championships June 2-4 at the University of Illinois. The top six athletes in USTFF events will be awarded medals and All-America status.

Competing for Nebraska will be freshman Scott Poehling in the 800-meter run; senior Keith Whitaker in the 1500-meter run; senior Scott Sorchik in the javelin; sophomore Lee Kunz in the discus; and junior Dean Ross in the pole vault. In addition, Unger, who set the Nebraska records in the mile, two-mile, and three-mile runs between 1972 and 1974, will run in the 5,000 meters.

Also competing at the USTFF, at the high school level, are two Fremont High School Athletes who have signed national letters of intent to compete in track at the University of Nebraska — Larry Meyer and Randy Raymond. Meyer holds the state record in the high jump (6-11), and Raymond, with his vault of 15-6¼ earlier this year, is the all-time leader in the pole vault.

Edwards to Beatrice

Beatrice (AP) — DeWitt Tri-County High School head basketball and golf coach Jim Edwards has been named to the same position at Beatrice High School.

Edwards succeeds Neil Nannen, who recently resigned as head basketball coach and athletic director to assume basketball duties at Grand Island Senior High.

Edwards brings to Beatrice a 10-year basketball career record of 108 wins and 68 losses.

Sanders to head baseball school

John Sanders, Nebraska's assistant baseball coach, will be the school director for the University of Nebraska Big Red Baseball School, held on the Lincoln campus, from June 19-25 (first session) and from June 26-July 2 (second session).

The school will be open for athletes between the ages of 8-17. The one-week session will offer personal instruction on individual techniques.

High ratings skid on economy, Russia

By Louis Harris

Harris Poll

Although he still receives high marks from the American people on the overall job he is doing, President Jimmy Carter appears to be running into trouble on the key issues of the economy at home and handling relations with the Russians abroad.

Carter's overall rating is 65-32% positive, down slightly from his April standing of 69-27% according to this latest survey of 1,540 adults. A substantial 62-31% majority still credits him with "inspiring confidence in the White House." Nevertheless, this represents a drop from the 75-15% margin who felt the same way in March.

President Carter is clearly having problems with the public on domestic issues:

—On "cutting the rate of unemployment," he is given 59-32% negative marks, despite a recent improvement in the job picture.

—On "keeping down the cost of living," he is rated 57-37% negative. While this is hardly a good showing, it is not as bad as the rating the last three administrations received on their handling of inflation. The public continues to worry that inflation is heating up again and that it could get out of hand.

—On "handling the economy," a slim 47-46% plurality gives him favorable marks. This is down from a 49-30% positive rating he received in March.

—On "canceling his request for a $50 rebate to each taxpayer," Carter receives negative marks of 51-42%.

There are also signs of an erosion in the way the public regards Carter's foreign policy, although he still receives a healthy 64-32% positive rating on "working for peace in the world":

—His "handling of relations with Russia" gets a 43-41% negative rating, down from a 48-24% positive rating in March.

—His "handling of the SALT talks with Russia" gets a negative rating of 42-37%.

—On his "handling of relations with China," the President scores no better than 38-36% positive

There are a number of areas, however, on which President Carter is rated well by the public:

—By 61-22%, a sizeable majority continues to like his press conferences.

—By 75-14%, a lopsided majority gives him positive marks on "his seizure of Russian fishing trawlers in American waters."

—By 67-25%, a majority gives him high marks for "running an open government," although this is down from 77-13% positive in March.

—By 71-23%, he is rated positively for "cutting back frills in the White House," down, however, from 85-9% in March.

—By 56-37%, he receives positive marks for "his program to conserve energy." However, by 60-31%, a solid majority gives him a negative rating on "his call for a 5-cent standby tax per gallon of gasoline."

—By 48-31%, he is well regarded on his "handling of relations with our western allies."

—By 41-25%, he is credited with doing a good job of "handling the crisis in Zaire."

—By 51-35%, he receives a positive rating on his "appointments to high office."

—By 52-25%, the public expresses a positive reaction to his fireside chats, although this is down from a 65-17% positive score in March.

—By 49-30%, a plurality liked his "call-in radio program," although enthusiasm has cooled from the 61-22% majority who reacted favorably in March.

In short, some of the edge is clearly off President Carter's popularity, although his overall standing is strong and confidence in him is still high. Whether the public's doubts about the way he is handling certain important substantive areas will undermine this confidence and regard remainds to be seen. The last occupant of the Oval Office whose personal popularity seemed to be unaffected by his day-to-day performance was Dwight Eisenhower. However, if Carter cannot improve his standing in the key areas of domestic economy and foreign policy, he may find his emphasis on open government and style could well run thin in the months ahead.

Realism pervades simulated disaster

By Jim Camden
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln emergency and rescue personnel put their training and procedures to the test Thursday and discovered they needed a little practice.

Like a scenario straight from a Hollywood disaster film, fire and ambulance units, police officers, sheriff's deputies and Red Cross and Civil Defense planners converged on the parking lot of the State Fairgrounds.

Amid clouds of gray smoke created to simulate a helicopter crash, the 150 "victims" were sorted, diagnosed and carted off to local hospitals.

Norm Francis, civil defense director and drill coordinator, called the mock disaster a learning experience.

"We expected to make some mistakes and we did," Francis said. There were problems with communication and getting the "victims" to hospitals and with slow responses.

The mock disaster called for a simulated helicopter crash at the fairgrounds in what might have been the middle of an average State Fair weekday. Calls to all law enforcement agencies and rescue units were made and the "injured" were sorted into critical, walking wounded and not seriously hurt categories.

The "victim" makeup was donated by the Lincoln Community Playhouse.

The best actor award would have to go to a small boy, depicting a decapitated victim, who laid immobile on the hot asphalt for more than an hour and a half.

Several of the "victims" actually suffered minor casulaties from inhaling too much of the billowing gray smoke. All were treated and released after short observation periods. In one sense they were lucky — there was probably no better place to be in Lincoln if you needed medical attention.

The "victims" were transported to hospitals via Lincoln Transportation System buses.

Francis said the mock disaster was an attempt to see how plans on paper actually work. He said Lincoln probably can look forward to at least one major drill a year to keep honing local emergency systems.

Francis estimated that several hundred persons were involved in the drill.

Crash kills farm wife

Lincoln Star Special

Hebron — A Hebron farm wife, Mrs. Arthur (Lois K.) Daringer, 57, was killed three miles north of here Thursday morning when the pickup truck she was driving collided with a tractor-trailer, the Thayer County sheriff's office reported.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Daringer, who had been northbound on U.S. 81, turned around at an intersection in an attempt to head south, an investigating officer said.

The southbound tractor-trailer, driven by David E. Nelson, 26, of 3712 N.W. 49th St., Lincoln, hit the pickup broadside, the officer's report revealed. Both drivers were traveling alone.

A can of the chemical Treflon in the Daringer pickup exploded and caused minor injury to the Lincoln trucker when he attempted to help the Hebron woman, it was reported. Nelson was treated and released from a Hebron hospital.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Daringer is survived by sons, Arthur A. of Reynolds and Don R. of Lincoln; daughters, Mrs. Dean (Karen) Hume of Lincoln and Mrs. Don (Marilyn) Hooper of Omaha; three brothers, four sisters and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Daringer will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Hebron.

Omaha woman dies in collision

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha woman was killed and another woman injured in the collision of an automobile and semi-trailer at an intersection in southwest Omaha Thursday, police said.

The dead woman was identified as Mary Mohr, 54, who was a passenger in a car driven by Betty Smyth, 46. The driver was hospitalized in serious condition with multiple injuries, police said.

Investigators said the car was making a left-hand turn from 132nd Street to L Street when it was in collision with the semi driven by Maximel Velasquez, 23.

PUBLIC NOTICE

RE: Dissemination of Noxious Weeds

Lancaster County Weed Control Authority has dedicated itself not only to noxious weed control, but also to the prevention of dissemination of noxious weed seed. The Director of Agriculture has determined that noxious weed seed may be disseminated through the movement of machinery and equipment, grain and seed, hay, straw, nursery stock, fencing materials, sod, manure, and soil as well as articles of similar nature. Methods of treatment have also been prescribed by the Director and may be obtained from the Lancaster County Weed Control Authority.

With the harvest season approaching very rapidly, please keep in mind the provisions of the law requiring owners of harvest equipment to clean prior to movement to another field. This machinery and equipment being used in the harvest of crops should be treated or cleaned as follows:

1. Removal of all material from the tops and sides of all parts of the machine by sweeping and the use of forced air and water.
2. Opening the lower end of all elevators returns, and measuring devices and removal of all noxious weed seeds and seedlings from shakers, sieves, and other places of lodgment.
3. Run the machine empty for a minimum of five minutes, alternately increasing and decreasing the speed.
4. Follow the manufacturer's detailed instructions for cleaning the machine.

These treatments should be performed while the article or the machine itself is still on the land in which it became infested if at all possible. This will not only prevent spreading noxious weed seed from one field to another, but also from one land owner to another.

Dale S. Trausch, Superintendent, Lancaster County Weed Control Authority, 475-4238.

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska has been designated by the U.S. Department of Labor as a Prime Sponsor under provisions of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). The City of Lincoln has recently been advised that additional funds under Title VI, Public Service Employment (PSE), of the Act have been released to local Prime Sponsors to combat the continuing shortage of employment opportunities for persons experiencing long term unemployment and a low economic standard of living.

Title VI legislative requirements place emphasis on providing employment for the long term unemployed, veterans, and recipients of Welfare Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). Thus, eligible participants will be selected from these groups of people. The specific eligibility requirements for participants are as follows:

First: Live within the corporate limits of the City of Lincoln.

Second: Be a member of a family which has a total family income equal to or less than the allowable lower standard income level as follows:

Family Size	Annual Income	Family Size	Annual Income
1	$2420	4	$6710
2	$3960	5	$7920
3	$5440	6+	$9260

Third: Fit any one of the additional criteria:

a. Be a member of a family receiving Aid to Families to Dependent Children (AFDC); or,
b. Have been receiving unemployment compensation for fifteen weeks or more; or,
c. Be determined ineligible for unemployment compensation and have been unemployed for fifteen or more weeks; or,
d. Have exhausted all unemployment compensation benefits; or,
e. Be a veteran who ha served for 180 days of active duty, was discharged or released from active duty for a service connected disability, providing such a veteran has not obtained employment between the time of discharge and the time the application for participation into Title VI project is taken.

The certification of eligibility is being accomplished by the local Job Service office, 1410 "Q" Street, Lincoln, Nebraska. All applicants found eligible will be placed in an applicant pool and referred to approved sub agent work sites, after matching job skills and abilities requested by the sub agent with those possessed by eligible clients.

If you feel that you meet any of the above criteria for eligibility, please contact the local Job Service office, 1410 "Q" Street, for a determination of eligibility.

This program is being administered by Lincoln CETA and is totally funded from allocations by Congress through the aforementioned legislation.

See our features.
Because there are just too many great features to list, you're invited to a special Open House, where you can see them for yourself. Some will be obvious, like beautiful ceramic tile baths and rugged Weyerhaeuser siding. Others will be less obvious, like super-dense insulation and 100% copper plumbing. But all will demonstrate Wausau Homes quality materials and workmanship.

Hear our price.
One of the nicest features about a Wausau Home is its value. Dollar-for-dollar, you won't find a better home. So stop in at our Open House and let us help you find all the home you've been looking for.

Lockheed payments told

Burbank, Calif. (UPI) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. said in a court-ordered report Thursday that it made "questionable" payments of $30 million or more to foreign countries and officials but has stopped the practice and is enjoying higher profits overseas.

The payments, which caused shock waves in several countries when they were first revealed, were blamed on two top Lockheed officials who resigned early last year but were retained as highly paid consultants pending outcome of a 14-month investigation which led to Thursday's report.

The chairman of the investigating committee said in a long news conference no names would be disclosed and no specific amounts paid to individuals would be released.

Carter to inspect sub

St. Simons Island, Ga. (UPI) — President Carter Thursday climbed into blue jeans as soon as he got to the retreat where he will spend the weekend, adding that he was "looking forward" to a nine-hour trip on a nuclear attack submarine.

Carter said the trip Friday aboard the USS Los Angeles was another of his efforts to get first-hand knowledge of American weapons and fighting men.

Small car boom seen

Detroit (AP) — The chairman of American Motors predicted Thursday that the domestic small-car market will triple or quadruple in the next few years and ensure a future for small-car specialist AMC.

"To be able to fish in a pond of 6 million new small cars instead of 2 million is infinitely better," Roy D. Chapin Jr. said as AMC previewed a display of experimental design cars for the 1980s.

Tanker standards pass

Washington (UPI) — The Senate voted tough new standards Thursday in an effort to stem the "epidemic of tanker accidents" which have led to huge oil spills in American waters.

Although sought for many years, the legislation was finally pushed through the Senate partly as a result of recent tanker accidents, including the grounding and break up of the S. S. Argo Merchant near Nantucket which spilled 7.3 million gallons of heavy heating oil into the sea.

Don't be alarmed

Brisbane, Australia (UPI) — Thieves broke into a bulk food warehouse in suburban Slack's Creek and stole a $2,860 burglar alarm, police reported.

Joint chiefs not asked

Washington (AP) — The joint chiefs of staff were not asked for a formal group opinion before President Carter decided to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday.

"There was not a request for a formal collective judgment by the chiefs," spokesman Thomas B. Ross said at a briefing.

Automakers win House victory

Washington (AP) — The House approved a major revision of clean air rules Thursday after handing the automobile industry a major victory by agreeing to postpone and weaken a scheduled tightening of car-exhaust standards.

On a 255 to 139 vote, the House approved an industry-backed amendment that puts off for two years some tailpipe emission standards due to take effect later this year. Others would be put off permanently.

Then the House approved the clean air legislation, 326 to 49, and sent it to the Senate.

In going along with the industry-backed tailpipe amendment, the House rejected both a tougher auto pollution timetable proposed by the Carter administration and a last-minute attempt at a compromise.

Although backers of the amendment said it would mean consumers wouldn't have to pay as much for cars as under the existing law or under the administration proposal, the action drew immediate opposition from environmentalists.

"The House has chosen to protect the $4-billion-a-year profits of the American automobile industry rather than the lungs of the American people. It is now up to the Senate to protect the breathing public," said Rafe Pomerance, a lobbyist for the National Clean Air Coalition.

The House narrowly rejected, 202 to 190, a proposed compromise that would have given the industry an initial two-year delay and then gradually would have phased in the tough standards called for by existing law.

This compromise was offered as an alternative to a tougher administration-backed proposal that would have delayed the scheduled tightening of the exhaust standards for just one additional year.

But the administration measure faced heavy opposition, and House leaders abandoned support for it at the last minute.

The Senate is expected to vote next month on its version of the amendments, which extend the tougher standards for just one year.

The House vote came as the members neared completion on a revision of clean air rules affecting automobiles, factories and power plants.

The industry-backed proposal was also supported by the United Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO. The labor unions feared that the tougher standards, requiring more costly pollution control equipment, would have hurt car sales, leading to unemployment.

But Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., said auto companies could have already met the tough standards if they had really wanted to. He accused them of waging "one of the most incredible lobbying campaigns that Congress has ever seen."

The action represents a major delay for the auto standards of the 1970 Clean Air Act. The law called for a 90 per cent reduction in auto emissions of three pollutants — hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides.

The standards were originally scheduled to take effect in 1975 and have already been postponed three times, to 1978-year models. But the industry contends it cannot possibly meet the standards this year and may never be able to achieve some of them.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who sponsored the industry-backed amendment along with Rep. James Broyhill, R-N.C., said the rejected compromise would have added up to $350 to the sticker price of new cars. The measure that was approved would add about $170, beginning with 1981 models, he said.

Dingell complained the compromise would have caused autos to be less efficient than those currently produced.

Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., chief sponsor of the bill, said the compromise would still protect public health and would acknowlege complaints of the industry that automakers can't meet the standards now set to take effect this year on 1978 models.

"We're going overboard" in trying to apease automakers, Rogers said.

Automobiles account for about 45 per cent of the nation's air pollution.

Existing law permits cars sold now to emit no more than 1.5 grams per mile of hydrocarbons, 15 grams per mile of carbon monoxide and 2 grams per mile of nitrogen oxides.

But these are scheduled to go to .41 grams per mile of hydrocarbons, 3.4 grams per mile of carbon monoxide and 0.41 grams per mile of nitrogen oxides on 1978 models' which will soon be rolling off Detroit assembly lines. Under existing law, automakers face fines up to $5,000 per car for not complying.

Under the Dingell-Broyhill amendment approved by the House, cars would have to meet the .41 gram-per-mile standard for hydrocarbons begining with 1980 models but would never have to reach the statutory standards set for the other two pollutants.

Instead, a new standard of one gram per mile would be set for nitrogen oxides beginning with model year 1982 and a new standard of 9 grams per mile of carbon monoxide beginning with model year 1980.

Both the rejected compromise and the administration measure would have brought all the original statutory standards into effect by model year 1983.

The automobile industry contends that cars now being sold remove more than 80 per cent of these exhaust pollutants, but that removing the remaining 10 per cent will be extremely difficult and costly.

It claims that nitrogen oxides, in particular, are difficult to remove from auto exhausts without hampering fuel efficiency.

However, industry critics claim that cars sold in California are already reducing about 90 per cent of these pollutants because of tough state laws that require special pollution-control equipment.

At least three tornadoes touch down

Severe weather raged through much of Nebraska Thursday with at least three tornado touchdowns. Property damage appeared to be minor and no injuries were reported.

Rain, generally light but accompanied by hail in some localities, fell across the entire state.

A tornado touched down briefly about four miles south of Cedar Bluffs in an open field during the afternoon, according to the Saunders County sheriff's office. Trees were reported down in the town, but there was no major damage.

In central Nebraska, a small twister hit the ground one mile south of Callaway, a Custer County community. A witness said tree branches were downed and the storm dumped marble-sized hail on the area.

Two inches of rain fell in a 30-minute period at Pleasanton, located in Buffalo County 19 miles north of Kearney. Minor lowland flooding was reported in Pleasanton, also drenched by heavy rains Wednesday.

A tornado was reported by the National Weather Service to have touched down briefly at North Bend Thursday afternoon, but observers attributed downed tree limbs to strong winds and not a funnel cloud.

Shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday, a funnel cloud was reported 10 miles southwest of North Platte. About an hour later, a funnel was sighted 12 miles northwest of there.

At 9 p.m. a spotter reported to the NWS seeing a funnel six miles southeast of Ogallala.

Marble-sized hail with heavy rain was reported at Fremont, while Beatrice received strong winds with heavy rain.

Roads between Hemingford and Alliance in the Panhandle were under water Thursday from two to five inches of rain in the Hemingford area Wednesday night. Crop damage was also reported there, the Associated Press said.

Hemingford received three inches of rain in town, but farmers around the community reported rainfall of three to five inches.

A similar storm hit the Hemingford area 2½ weeks ago, destroying the sugar beet crop that had been planted. Some farmers reported their newly planted sugar beet crop was washed out again Wednesday night.

A violent storm was reported in the Melbeta-Bayard areas late Wednesday. Three inches of rain accompanied considerable hail in those localities.

Early Thursday up to three inches of rain was reported 50 miles southwest of Valentine in Cherry County.

County to file 281 complaints against cinema

The Cinema X Theater and Adult Book Store faces 275 counts of operating amusement devices without permits, according to Bob Gibson, deputy county attorney.

Gibson said the charges stem from a failure of the establishment's management, Tara Enterprises Inc., to obtain state permits for some 40 coin-operated projectors. Each machine must have a sticker and every day the machines are without a sticker is a separate offense, Gibson said.

Six counts of exhibiting obscene materials will also be filed against the business, Gibson said. The charges should be filed in Lancaster County Court Friday, he said, but noted there may be a delay due to the mechanics of preparing such a large complaint.

The charges are a result of police investigations on eight separate days. Gibson said some of the machines were not working every day.

Failing to obtain a permit is a misdemeanor and carries a penalty of $25 to $500. A conviction on all 275 counts could result in a fine ranging from $6,875 to $137,500.

Cinema X is also facing 16 counts of selling obscene materials from a previous police raid. A hearing on those charges is set for June 7.

Shorthanded guard may lose money

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

A lag in Nebraska National Guard manpower may result in a loss of federal funding, guard officials said Thursday.

"What they'll (the feds) be doing is redistributing funds among states with National Guard units closer to full strength," said Maj. Leonard Krenk, public information officer with the adjutant general's office in Lincoln.

A drop from 99% to 73.7% of authorized manpower between January of 1975 and now, despite annual recruiting drives, is endangering funds, Krenk said, although he didn't know how much. The percentage of funding cuts won't parallel the percentage of manpower lag exactly, he said.

The lag may be caused by the lack of pressures or incentives to get recruits, Krenks said, such as a discontinued enlistment bonus or the draft which drove men to the stay-at-home military service.

The guard has 3,313 members, down from 4,047 at the end of April 1976 when 10 guard units faced relocation or deactivation despite a 90-day recruiting drive.

The Nebraska Air National Guard may be luckier from a funding standpoint, according to Col. Lloyd Johnson, commander of the Lincoln-based unit.

He contemplated no funding loss even though his unit is down to 83.1% of its authorized manpower, about 813 persons. That's a drop from 97.3% in January 1974.

What he's really worried about is the base's combat readiness, he said.

"The thing we're worried about is the lack of trained people," Col. Johnson said. He said qualified persons are lost at a rate of about three per month.

"It could be a concern," Krenk said. "Whether we're combat ready or not depends on our ability to perform the particular mission. It's a matter of did you get the job done?"

The Nebraska guard will use a media saturation and public relations campaign while the air guard is pushing a word-of-mouth campaign.

Radio offer sure to shock drivers

Wheeling, W. Va., (UPI) — Winners of the "Grim Reaper" contest are really losers, though they get free funerals for their trouble.

Radio station WNEU is offering free funerals to any listener killed in a traffic accident during the official Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Not your everyday contest, but the Wheeling radio station wants to shock its listeners into driving carefully.

"The contest is morbid," said program director Mike McVay. "But if we save only one life, it's worth it."

Carter sees veto as tool to keep budget in line

Washington (UPI) — President Carter warned Congress Thursday he reserves the right to veto bills that threaten his drive for a balanced budget, and named three that might hit his chopping block.

In a conciliatory statement that left room for maneuver and stressed his desire for "harmony," Carter sent the legislators an early warning signal against prospective passage of water project funding he opposes, higher farm price supports than he wants and education aid he is trying to reduce.

"I will work day and night to work out a solution to these potential threats to (White House-Congress) harmony, but I'll reserve the right to say no when necessary," he said.

Even as he spoke to a televised news conference, the House Appropriations Committee approved $800 million in aid to so-called "impacted" school areas, or twice what Carter requested.

At the news conference, Carter also:

— Said he had not "fired" or "punished" Maj. Gen. John Singlaub for his criticisms of planned Korean troop withdrawals, but merely transferred him to duty equivalent in stature to his former post as U.S. chief of staff in South Korea. He said Singlaub was guilty of a "serious impropriety" in publicly challenging presidential policy.

— Restated his intention to withdraw all U.S. ground troops from South Korea over the next four to five years, and claimed South Korea's President Park Chung Hee supports such a withdrawal. He said the United States will make clear to North Korea, China and the Soviet Union that "our (defense) commitment to the Republic of Korea is undeviating and staunch."

— Said the Soviets made "a sincere effort" in Geneva to make progress toward a second stage strategic arms agreement, although "substantial differences" remain. He summarized the three-part agreement negotiators will be considering and said he hopes it might still include "significant reductions" in strategic arsenals, plus "restraints" on the U.S. Cruise missile and the Soviet "Backfire" bomber.

— Conceded the prospective selection of right-winger Menahem Begin as Israel's prime minister "might create a question" for Middle East peace prospects, "But I think a large part of that question can be answered when Begin meets with me."

He declined to state specific U.S. proposals for territorial settlements required for Middle East peace, but said he assumed it would include Israeli withdrawal "partially or in their entirety" from occupied West Bank areas. Begin opposes any West Bank withdrawal.

The warning to Congress on spending marked Carter's strongest effort yet to deal with increasing congressional opposition without rocking the boat too much.

Calling Congress' cooperation "very good" to date, he said there is "one potential problem that is evolving that causes me some concern" — support for bills that will increase deficit spending and jeopardize his goal of balancing the federal budget by 1981.

He put some bite in his warning by naming three bills dear to many legislators' hearts as examples of excessive spending.

They were the House Appropriations Committee's approval of funding for 17 water projects Carter wanted stopped, potential Senate approval of higher farm price supports than he wants and congressional refusal to reduce aid to school districts with high concentrations of children of federal employes.

Asked whether he would veto these bills if Congress passes them in their present forms, he said he would rather not commit himself to a veto yet.

But I certainly reserve the right to veto bills if I think they are excessive," he said.

He also said he would exercize his power to recommend that Congress rescind money already appropriated, " and use all the proper and legal prerogatives to defend my position."

Toy maker scales Trade Center

New York (AP) — A daredevil toy maker conquered the quarter-mile-high World Trade Center like a human fly Thursday, using an invention he fashioned from about $100 in material to scale the aluminum-faced monolith.

"The only sense of fear I had was at the beginning," said George Willig, 27, after police freed him on charges of criminal trespassing, disorderly conduct and reckless endangerment following his 3½-hour ascent. "I thought I would get stopped."

Thousands of spectators thronged the plaza at the base of the twin 110-story towers to cheer on the amateur mountaineer in a climb that began at about 6:30 a.m. and ended 1,350 vertical feet later.

"Don't arrest him. Don't arrest him," the crowd chanted when two police officers rode a window-washer's scaffold parallel to Willig mid-way up the building — the world's second-tallest.

"What are you, crazy or something?" were their first words to him, Willig said. Then they tried to get him to halt. One of them, Officer DeWitt Allen, said that Willig agreed to join them only if he got tired.

But the St. John's University graduate, who said he had climbed El Capitan in Yosemite National Park, kept climbing up a six-foot-wide strip on the northeast corner of the building's south tower.

Munching candy bars, sipping from a plastic water-bottle and resting periodically, he could make one story in 55 seconds. His only complaint was that the weight of the gear he carried was a strain on his shoulders.

He said he had planned the ascent for a year and designed the devices that hooked into grooves used to guide scaffolds from which workers clean the building's aluminum sides. The device was built to expand in the grooves under his weight, and he simply pulled himself up like a man climbing a utility pole.

A spokesman for Ideal Toy Corp. said the bearded climber was, and remains, "well-regarded" by his employer as a model maker of toys planned for future production. He had asked for the day off in advance, the spokesman said, and had given a pint of blood on Wednesday to the company blood bank..

Asked why he did it, Willig replied: "I did not expect anything. I just wanted the prize of the first ascent . . . I climbed it because I thought it was an exciting thing to do."

His achievement recalled the tightrope walk between the roofs of the twin towers by aerialist Phillippe Petit three years ago and the parachute jump from atop the north tower by skydiving instructor Owen J. Quinn nearly two years ago.

Like them, Willig was hailed by the crowd that gathered in the police stations to which he was taken in handcuffs. But, unlike them, he was handed a notice by the city's corporation counsel of a $250,000 civil damages suit.

"It's about time something was done to make people pay for these amusements," Corporation Counsel W. Bernard Richland said.

Willig was asked whether Mt. Everest was his next goal.

"Mt. Everest is not as exciting as this to me," he responded. "Too many logistics and too expensive."

Arrested before Willig had vanquished the building, on the same charges, were four companions, including his brother, Stephen, 22, and his girlfriend, Randy Zeidberg, 24, of Queens.

Willig additionally was charged with a violation of the city's administrative code for climbing a building without a permit.

All were released to answer the charges in court on June 22.

Moluccan terrorists free 105 hostage children

Assen, The Netherlands (AP) — The 105 children held by Asian gunmen were freed from a cramped village schoolroom after dozens of them developed stomach infections during the four days of terror, a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

The children were freed late Thursday and early Friday.

Wim van Leeuwen said the more than 50 sick children — all aged 6 to 12 — were taken by a fleet of ambulances to Wilhelmina Hospital in Assen, 15 miles away. Buses were called in for the other children.

"They are going to be all right," he said.

Van Leeuwen said the terrorists continued to hold six teachers, including school principal Eef van de Vliet. The school was ringed by heavily armed troops and police.

Ten miles from the village school of Bovensmilde, another group of terrorists held a hijacked train with 55 passengers. On Thursday, a young man was thrust onto the tracks in the lush Dutch countryside to stand for 20 minutes dressed as the symbol of death, with a noose around his neck.

Six militants from the Dutch community of South Moluccans have held the school and train since Monday, when they were seized in simultaneous maneuvers to back demands for the independence of the South Moluccan Islands and release of fellow gunmen jailed after a similar terror campaign in 1975.

The siege first showed signs of crumbling soon after noon Thursday, when the gunmen released a 7-year-old girl suffering the infection that eventually struck more than half of her companions.

In the next few hours — after prolonged negotiations — they freed three other children, two suffering from the mystery ailment and one from a heart condition.

There was a lull until around midnight, then the gunmen released two pairs of children, all hit by the infection.

At that point, officials said, the gunmen apparently decided it was time to free the rest of their terrified captives, who on Thursday had chanted desperately from the school windows, "We want to live!"

Holland harbors 40,000 South Moluccans, traditional warriors who were an important element of the Dutch colonial army. The terrorists want independence for their Pacific island homeland, once a Dutch colony and now part of Indonesia.

On Thursday, Johan Alvares Manusama, president of a self-styled South Moluccan government in exile, disavowed the terrorist actions and said on Dutch television his community was "deeply shocked" by the kidnaping of the children..

He claimed the terrorists belonged to an extreme minority.

"It defies belief that they can hold children hostage to get the release of prisoners," he said. "This has nothing to do with the South Moluccan cause. It is horrible. It is even worse if you think what the fathers and mothers of those children must be going through. I feel helpless when I see something like this happening."

The father of a 7-year-old held captive said before the release, "I feel a hatred against the Moluccans which I would not have believed possible. When I heard what had happened my first impulse was to take a gun and shoot my way into the school. Now I only feel empty."

Both groups of terrorists also agreed to accept food supplies after their refusal earlier Thursday, the Dutch Justice Ministry announced. The food helped alleviate conditions at the two siege sites, ringed by hundreds of police and troops, including sharpshooters and antiterrorist specialists.

The delivery of food and clean underwear to the train was the first in more than 50 hours. The school food delivery was the first in 24 hours

At the train, where the hijackers have 55 hostages, they pushed a bound and blindfolded man out onto the tracks. He was dressed in white — the color of death in the Orient — and had a noose around his neck. He stood for 20 minutes and then was yanked back inside.

A spokeswoman for the Justice Ministry said the terrorists, who displayed three blindfolded captives Wednesday night, were clearly trying to show authorities the seriousness of their threats to kill hostages unless demands were met.

The spokeswoman said she did not think they were about to kill anyone.

The gunmen have demanded that the Dutch government free 21 South Moluccans jailed for political violence in a campaign to force the Dutch to help them win freedom from Indonesia, which became independent of Holland in 1949.

The extremists have also demanded a jumbo jet to fly them, their freed countrymen and at least some hostages to an undisclosed location.

The South Moluccas are a cluster of islands midway between Australia and the Philippines. They and the rest of Indonesia were the former Dutch East Indies colony.

Government officials, using a psychiatrist as an intermediary, continued "general conversation" by telephone with the terrorists at the school, the Justice Ministry spokesman said. The two groups of gunmen were linked to each other by a special telephone hookup.

Dutch Premier Joop den Uyl reaffirmed that the government would not negotiate a deal with the gunmen until the children were released.

He and Justice Minister Andries van Agt met in The Hague, the Dutch capital, with five leading members of the 40,000-strong South Moluccan immigrant community in the Netherlands. The purpose of the meeting was not disclosed.

"There is no concrete solution in sight," Den Uyl later told reporters. "We continue discussions. So far there have been no calamities."

Fourteen of the prisoners whose freedom the terrorists demanded are serving term for a similar double terrorist strike in December 1975, when they seized a train and the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam. Four hostages were killed.

There was more bitter talk of reprisals among the villagers in Bovensmilde, where South Moluccans make up about half of the 3,000 population.

"They've picked on our kids," said one middle-aged villager at a police barricade 500 yards from the school. "If that's how they want it they had better know we can play that game, too. They had better be damned careful. If they harm a hair on the head of one of our kids, blood will be spilled and it won't be ours."

West uneasy over Cuban presence in Africa

Maputo, Mozambique (AP) — The Cuban presence in Africa, a cause of growing anxiety in the West, has spread to 10 black countries. An estimated 20,000 Cubans are running farms and hospitals, training black armies and preaching Marxist revolution.

The latest African country to welcome Cuban assistance is Ethiopia, whose Marxist military government expelled a large number of Americans last month.

According to the U.S. State Department, 50 Cuban military technicians have arrived in Ethiopia, although President Fidel Castro claims they are only diplomatic personnel and doctors.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III says it "could be a serious development" if the Cubans are an advance party for hundreds more. However, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young says the Cubans "might be a little more rational" than the Ethiopians and help cool down internal disorders that have claimed hundreds of lives.

Cubans are also believed in Mozambique, Guinea-Bissau, Tanzania, Guinea, Equatorial Guinea, Sierra Leone, the Congo Republic, Somalia and Angola. Some are working as doctors, others as technicians, military advisers and teachers.

"We are not only a Latin American nation," Castro boasted recently. "We are a Latin African nation."

Cuba's influence in Africa has been gradually increasing since 1964 when Castro began assisting a liberation movement in Guinea; it grabbed the world's attention in 1975 when some 15,000 Cuban troops helped the Marxist Popular Movement win the Angolan civil war.

The Cuban presence remains most visible in Angola, a former Portguese colony.

"Currently Cubans can be seen everywhere working as advisers and experts," according to an eyewitness account distributed by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

"Besides the 10,000 to 15,000 Cuban soldiers, officers and instructors, now Cuban experts and advisers can be seen in every rank in the (government) apparatus and in the economy. They are present everywhere and very active."

Western journalists find it difficult to obtain entry permits to visit most African countries where Cubans are active.

Tanjug said Cubans "even sit on business desks as Angolan representatives when deals are negotiated with foreign firms."

"The Yankee imperialists say that the Cuban comrades come to exploit Angola," said Angolan Prime Minister Lopo do Nascimento. "But Cuba has no concessions in Angola, no oil, no mines, no forests.

"They are here with clean hands. The Americans have concessions in our country, not the Cubans. The Cubans don't have them and never will."

Western diplomats in Mozambique say they have yet to see a Cuban, although about 150 are reported working on sugar plantations, in hospitals and in other public services.

In Guinea-Bissau, they help run medical services in the steamy capital city of Bissau. Diplomats there say the facilities are well-run by African standards.

There is a blanket of secrecy, however, over Cuba's role in providing military advisers to black nationalist movements fighting white governments in Rhodesia and South-West Africa — Namibia.

Guerrilla training camps in southern Angola, Mozambique and Tanzania — believed supervised by Cubans — are off limits to journalists. Western diplomats can only assume Cubans are there.

Castro told a recent meeting in Havana that aid to Africa "has taken different forms. Sometimes we give weapons, on other occasions we have sent men. We have sent military instructors, or doctors or construction workers."

Like black American diplomats, the Cubans stress their ties to Africa, pointing out that one-fourth of Cuba's 9.5 million people are black.

Cuban support of black nationalist movements in Mozambique, Angola and Guinea-Bissau paid off when those groups took over the governments.

But the history of Cuba's role in the continent is not without its setbacks. Cuba befriended the leftist regime of Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, but he was ousted by a coup in 1966. The Cubans were expelled.

Two years later, the Republic of the Congo threw out most of several hundred Cuban advisers, claiming they were meddling in internal affairs. They returned in 1973 after a leftist regime took power.

Castro's friends in Africa claim the Cubans are no threat to their sovereignty.

"They will return to their land one day when we decide so, the same way they came, as friends of our people and without dollars in their pockets," Angolan Prime Minister do Nascimento said.

Pope condemns vendetta

Vatican City (UPI) — Pope Paul VI condemned Mafia customs of vendettas and silence Thursday in an address to bishops of the regional conference of Italy's poverty- and crime-ridden provinces of Basilicata and Calabria.

The 79-year-old pontiff said:

"We have only to consider that twisted concept of honor which is the vendetta, the obligatory repayment of an insult, or that underground conspiracy of delinquency which — taking advantage of a certain custom of silence — offers suitable ground for spreading crime."

The pope said migration from the poor provinces in recent years had spread "certain new customs which, because of the amorality and even immorality resulting from them, cannot be considered a step forward."

Peruvian tenor to star in opera

Lima, Peru (UPI) — "The Secret Marriage," an opera first performed in Lima 158 years ago, opens again this August with the well known Peruvian tenor Luis Alva in the leading role.

Alva had had a long career in European opera houses, but he is singing for the first time in his native Peru in the opera by Italian composer Domenico Cimarosa.

Strict cigarette regulation sought

Washington (AP) — Two former U S surgeons-general and 10 organizations opposed to cigarette smoking petitioned the federal government Thursday to regulate cigarettes more strictly than saccharin and to require doctors' prescriptions for cigarette sales

The petition filed with the Food and Drug Administration asked the agency to assert jurisdiction over cigarettes on the ground that tobacco contains drugs and therefore is under FDA's authority

The FDA has proposed rules which would ban the use of saccharin as a food additive but permit its sale as a single ingredient, non-prescription drug The FDA is now soliciting comment on the proposal and may make the rule effective perhaps in July

After the petition was filed, FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said "Tobacco is not within our jurisdiction This is supported by legislative history and several court cases "

Pines said it is clear "that Congress never intended FDA or any other regulatory agency to regulate cigarettes "

The spokesman said the petition, "no matter how worthy it is, is misdirected to this agency The only way cigarettes will be restricted is by mandate by Congress '

FDA officials will study the petition, however, before giving the group a formal response, the spokesman said

The anti-smoking petition said there is less risk of getting cancer through the use of saccharin compared to the 300,000 premature deaths attributed each year to smoking cigarettes

"Saccharin has been implicated in only one disease, smoking in well over half a dozen," the petition said "Taking action against saccharin but none against smoking would be like grounding a Piper Cub for excessive noise while permitting Concordes to take off and land "

The two former surgeons-general joining in the petition were Drs Luther Terry and Jesse Steinfeld.

Terry said it was completely inconsistent for the federal government to warn about the hazards of cigarette smoking while it also spends money to support tobacco

Under price support programs enacted by Congress, the federal government has paid about $57 million since the 1930s for tobacco, including money to cover the government's losses when sales of farmers' tobacco were not enough to cover federal price-support loans

Between 1965 and 1973, there was a subsidy program to help finance tobacco exports by making tobacco more competitive on the world market That program cost between $25 million and $30 million a year

John F Banzhaf III, executive director of Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), one of the petitioning groups, accused the FDA of declining to act on cigarettes because of "folk myth and some political pressure "

Banzhaf said that if the agency does not take action on the basis of the petition, his organization will take the issue to federal courts.

FDA has taken the position that Congress did not intend to give it authority to regulate the sale and use of cigarettes A spokesman said the basic act does not define cigarettes "as food, drug or cosmetic — if Congress wants to give us this authority, it can do so "

Banzhaf replied that the FDA's basic act empowers it to regulate any drug that includes "articles other than food intended to affect the structure of any other function of the body of man or other animals "

He argued further that if the FDA declines to take responsibility for cigarettes as drugs, the FDA should assume jurisdiction on the ground that cigarettes are "devices "

Banzhaf said that under its power to regulate devices, the FDA has asserted jurisdiction over a surgical nail, surgical devices, a comb labeled for dandruff and scalp infections, a product intended to hold false teeth in place, rubber prophylactics and even a phonograph record supposed to induce sleep

Frost plans 5th show

David Frost said Thursday there will be a fifth television interview dealing with the 18½-minute gap and why Richard Nixon did not destroy the Watergate tapes that ultimately drove him from office.

Scouts honor Ford

Former President and Eagle Scout Gerald R Ford received an award Thursday for "distinguished service to the youth of the world" from the World Scouting Committee.

Mrs. Allende in Paris

Hortensia Allende, wife of the late Chilean president, met briefly with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Thursday at the Elysee Palace in Paris. What they spoke about was not immediately known

Wednesday, she met with Gaston Deferre, head of the Socialist bloc in the National Assembly, who proposed a rally in Marseilles in September of all those who "oppose the Pinochet regime and stand for the reestablishment of civil rights in Chile."

Cancelation hurts Anita

Singer Anita Bryant was "saddened" that the State Bar of Texas canceled her convention performance because she had taken controversial political positions, her husband and manager said Thursday.

"Texas has always been one of her favorite states," Bob Green said. "John Connally (former governor) made her an honorary Texas citizen. She sang at Lyndon Johnson's Funeral."

Mao soon in final rest

The late Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's body, in a crystal sacrophagus, soon will be placed in a Peking Memorial Hall completed in record time, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said.

Haldeman will challenge

H.R. Haldeman said Thursday he would "challenge" President Nixon's explanation of the Watergate cover-up with "gloves off and no holds barred" in a book to be released this fall

"I feel now that I have to challenge President Nixon's explanation of the cover-up and that it's time to deal with many things that have been left unsaid. So I've made the decision to put aside the book I've been working on the past several years and to go ahead full steam on the personal inside story of Watergate."

Protest follows judge's ruling rape 'normal'

Madison. Wis (UPI) — When a 15-year-old boy raped a girl in a stairwell at West High School, Judge Archie Simonson ruled, he was reacting "normally" to prevalent sexual permissiveness and women's provocative clothing

The judge decreed that the youth — who was found delinquent — should be permitted to stay at home under court supervision rather than placed in an institution or other rehabilitation center

Thursday, about 40 women, one wearing a bikini, paraded outside Dane County Courthouse demanding the judge s resignation

' Rape is a crime, not a normal reaction the women shouted "Archie must go '

In his ruling Wednesday, Simonson mentioned newspaper advertisements, prostitution arrests, sex stories, several bars with nude dancing and young women who appear in public and "even in court ' wearing revealing clothing

"This community is well-known to be sexually permissive," Simonson said "Should we punish a 15 or 16-year-old boy who reacts to it normally?"

Anne Gaylor of the Madison Chapter of the National Organization for Women was among the demonstrators She said Simonson's remarks were examples of ' blatant sexism" and "unbelievable callousness "

"Rape is a violent crime, a terrible crime and here is a judge calling it a normal reaction," Ms Gaylor said

' No woman, including women attorneys, should ever have to appear before him for any reason And this is the man who is hearing prostitution cases Resignation is his only viable alternative "

The sentence also brought protests from the district attorney's office

"This is probably the most serious crime in the history of Madison public schools," said Assistant District Attorney Meryl Manhardt "We're talking about a personal assault on a 16-year-old girl "

She said the judge's remarks about clothing were "particularly sexist " She said he was expressing the "general male philosophy that the way a woman dresses provokes a sexual attack "

Public interest in the boy's rehabilitation and in preventing such crimes in the future require he be sent to a residential treatment center, she said

The youth and two others were charged with second degree sexual assault in the rape last November A 14-year-old boy was sent in March to a home for boys and charges against another 15-year-old were dropped The boy sentenced Wednesday pleaded no contest in January

Simonson said a year of court supervision would best serve the boy and the public He ordered the youth to continue treatment through a youth program and to study at home with a public school teacher until he is re-accepted in school

He warned that the boy would be sent to a school for boys if he commits another crime or violates terms of his supervision

Simonson is 52 He is married and the father of four children — three girls and one boy

Michael takes matters, and car, in own hands

Ionia, Mich. (UPI) — Michael Ward, 3, decided he was going to school Thursday He took his dog, hopped into his parents' car and drove off

The youngster eased the car out of the driveway without disturbing his mother, weaved down the road and then veered off through a wheat field, a grove of oak trees and across several ditches

The car finally stopped and overturned at an embankment about two miles from where it started

Ionia County Sheriff's deputies, alerted to a "reckless driver" by nearby residents, investigated and caught up with Michael at the crash scene. They found him, uninjured, still in the car with his dog

"He wasn't going so fast, but he sure knew how to drive," said Sheriff William Bensinger.

"He'd get down on the floor and operate the pedals, then get back up in the seat, once he got the vehicle moving, and steer it "

Circus helps things grow

New York (UPI) — "You're guaranteed of getting a seat on the subway during rush hour with a bag of that stuff," Sid Ehrlich, a Madison Square Garden Guard said Thursday

Ehrlich was talking about some 2,000 pounds of elephant, camel and horse manure given away by Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus in pre packed "Ponderous Pachyderm Powdered Pooo Fertilizer" bags

"It's the best thing next to bat manure for gardening," Eric Jablin, a city gardener, said of the elephant dung

Jablin and a friend, Adolph Strassheim, are members of a cooperative garden, and together they hauled off seven of the 20-pound bags on a hand cart and a dolly to their greenery across town

About 30 others who showed up for the giveaway loaded their bags into cars and shopping carts or just carried them off slung over their shoulders

"The mind boggles at the spectacular results circus manure can provide!" a circus publicist advertised. "Zebra manure can produce striped tomatoes A plant treated with camel manure can go days without water!"

Grand jury talks to NPPD people

North Platte (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District's board of directors confirmed Thursday that a federal grand jury in Omaha is conducting an investigation involving some district personnel

NPPD general counsel Gene Watson said, "Because of the grand jury proceedings, I will make no comment other than to read the following statement on behalf of the district and which I make as general counsel to the district "

The statement read by Watson said

"Certain personnel of the Nebraska Public Power District and others have been served with a subpoena from a federal grand jury convened in Omaha The district said that it is fully cooperating with the grand jury in Omaha in an orderly and appropriate fashion On advice of counsel, there will be no further comment by the district in view of the grand jury proceedings "

Watson had no comment when asked whether or not the district itself or any individual board member had been contacted by the grand jury

Earlier, board president Robert Peterson of Lincoln was asked about reports that certain NPPD personnel would be asked to take leaves of absence because of the grand jury investigation

"No one has been asked to take a leave of absence and no one has requested a leave of absence," Peterson said

He said the board met in executive session Wednesday night to discuss "sensitive matters "

He said the state's open meetings law permitted such closed-door sessions It had been reported that the session dealt with personnel matters arising from the investigation

Peterson declined to say what was discussed in the session

Peterson said during Wednesday's board meeting that he had been advised the grand jury hearings were conducted in confidence to protect "innocent parties appearing before them "

He said that in light of "speculative statements" appearing in the news media Watson was asked to draft a statement for the board

"I personally plan no further comment," Peterson told reporters

Omaha television station KMTV first reported the grand jury probe Wednesday

The television station said the grand jury investigation comes on the heels of a year-long FBI investigation

KMTV said lobbying activity by NPPD personnel may be among the matters under investigation

Investigation surprises senators

Associated Press

Nebraska state senators Thursday said they were surprised at reports that the Nebraska Public Power District may have been the subject of a year-long investigation by the FBI

Reports of an investigation came in the wake of the Legislative council executive board s approval of a contract to hire Adam Kubik, a Syracuse, N Y , engineer, to perform a three-month study of Nebraska public power

Also Thursday, the chairman of the subcommittee to oversee that study, Sen Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, resigned that position, but retained membership on the subcommittee

He said he had not heard of the investigation reports until he talked with a newsman and that they could not have influenced his decision to resign the chairmanship Kelly said the subcommittee, the executive board and the Public Works Committee have not insisted upon strict enough procedures for the study and its oversight

He said he "has had difficulties ' with the subcommittee s ground rules for the study

It appears the subcommittee would recommend that ' something more ' than the study would be done after its projected three months of work is complete, Kelly said

' I could not be an effective chairman when I don t know when it starts, where it would go and when it would be completed

Sen Maurice Kremer, chairman of the Public Works Committee and a member of the power study subcommittee, said he was "very surprised" by the investigation reports The reports said NPPD lobbying activity may be one of the matters under grand jury and FBI scrutiny

Those reports also said NPPD personnel had been subpoenaed and may be requested to take leaves of absence

The Aurora lawmaker said there had been ' a little apprehension" among nppd representatives during early stages of discussion on the study prpoject, but later there was "no direct lobbying against it and it appeared ' they would be willing to cooperate '

But Kremer said there was one state senator who, while publicly was favoring the study under the table, was not '

Kremer declined to name the senator and said he could not say whether NPPD s and the senator's attitudes toward the study were related to the reported investigation

No charges filed in baby's death

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County Atty Donald Knowles said Thursday no charges will be filed in connection with the death of a newborn baby whose body was found in the closet of the mother s bedroom Tuesday night

Knowles said the case was an instance of self-delivery and the mother panicked

"I don t think we could get a conviction for any kind of crime," he said

A preliminary autopsy indicated that the newborn baby died after birth, Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan said

Keenan said more tests are needed to determine what might have caused the death He said there were no signs of physical abuse

Police were called after a rescue squad was sent to a home in Omaha's near Northside area on the report of a woman bleeding Squadmen said they found an 18 year old girl in her bedroom hemorrhaging They took her to a hospital and notified police

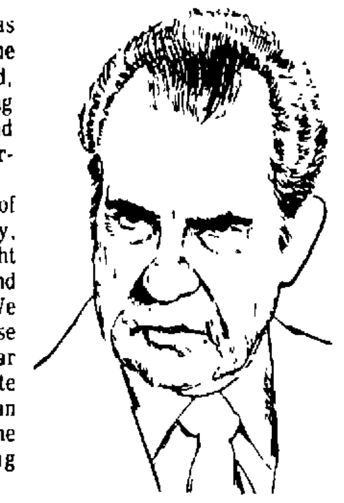
Same old Nixon

Jack Anderson

Washington -- There he was back in our living room, the same Richard Nixon as of old, with the unfortunate sloping nose, the marionette hand gestures and the awkward personality.

At times, we felt a twinge of sympathy for this lonely, suspicious man who had fought so hard for public approval and had been rebuffed so often. We caught an occasional glimpse beneath the psychological scar tissue at the deeply private Nixon, a shy, sensitive man who used to wake up in the White House wondering whether he was president.



"I would have a feeling," he told a friend, "that I had something to tell the president. Then I would suddenly shake myself awake and realize I was the president."

His fall from the pinnacle into the black pit and the awful agony that followed, according to intimates, devastated the inner Nixon. Only the attentions of his wife, they told us, saved him from total collapse.

We have now listened to him defend his record for six hours before the television cameras His former aggressiveness and his harsh features have been softened by the ravages of time and tribulation. Yet he came across as the same dogged, dauntless Nixon we had known of yore.

There were the standard Nixon distortions. His predecessors had not, as he implied, misused the FBI and CIA the same as he did In fact, the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover refused to carry out Nixon illegal operations. This was the reason Nixon established the notorious White House plumbers.

Nor did he intervene in the India-Pakistan war to save West Pakistan, as he claimed. He dispatched a naval task force into the Bay of Bengal, where India and Pakistan were fighting over Bangladesh. This is separated from West Pakistan by more than a thousand miles of the Indian subcontinent. To reach West Pakistan, the task force would have had to steam all the way around the tip of India into the Arabian Sea.

Contrary to the Nixon version of events, it was also Meade Alcorn who fired the unhappy Sherman Adams for President Eisenhower in 1958. And Nixon's claim that his Watergate conduct was not criminal put political is disputed by a 19-0 vote of the Watergate grand jury, and unanimous statement by the House impeachment panel.

This goes to the heart of the Watergate horror. Nixon looked upon himself as the sovereign, who was above the law. This is the Nixon who tried to bring pomp and flourish to the White House, who wanted to dress up the White House police in gaudy, Gilbert-and-Sullivan uniforms. His entry into the East Room for state dinners was sometimes heralded by the blast of trumpets.

As the sovereign, Nixon felt he couldn't violate the law because he was the law Extra-legal and illegal operations became legal, therefore, if he sanctioned them.

When Nixon swore to uphold the Constitution, he should have read it For under the Constitution, it's not the president but the people who are the sovereign. The president is merely the sovereign's salaried employee

Farm bill problem remains one of high production

The problem with the farm bill now working its way through Congress is about as old as farming itself. Congress very likely would come up with a bill containing higher loan and target support prices than are currently the case for wheat and corn and other products.

It very well may do just that. But if it does, the measure seems destined for a presidential veto. From the farm supporters' point of view, government supports should at least equal the cost of production.

From President Carter's point of view, supports must be low enough so as not to create higher federal deficits. If Carter sticks to his guns, he will win the battle and grain producers will face the same problems that have plagued them for years.

One is perplexed to figure out what the best answer might be. Even farmers themselves are far from accord on the subject. If a vote were taken, it is possible that the President might chalk up a victory.

A lot of agriculture runs with an anti-government attitude, which means you produce at your peril. There is no question of what happens in the process. With production's exceeding demand, prices stay low and profits for corn and wheat are skimpy or non-existent.

As this year's wheat nears maturity and the corn begins to grow, there are already huge supplies in storage from the past two years. Farmers who want to store their wheat this summer, waiting for a better price, are likely to find no means of doing so .

That kind of situation can do nothing but push the price down in the market place. Adding to the problem are reports that production throughout the world may hit record highs this year.

The matter is not one to be viewed lightly. It is not necessarily good news that farm crops will be at low price levels. For one thing, we know that low farm prices do not necessarily mean low consumer prices in the grocery store. In fact, they seldom mean that.

And if the ultimate end of things is the bankruptcy of sufficient numbers of farmers to bring supply into balance with demand, the process will be a harsh one for us all. When the process would be completed, controlled prices of farm products would boom the cost of food for all Americans.

Little wonder that the position of the secretary of agriculture is one of the least envied in every administration that comes to Washington.

Is Carter starting war?

Will the eventual withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea really lead to war, as Army Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub states? For saying so, the general lost his job in Korea.

Subsequently, he has gone on to tell the same thing to the House Armed Services Committee. His reasoning is that North Korea will take the withdrawal as a sign of U.S. weakness and invade their neighbor to the south.

The issue is not quite as simplistic as it sounds, but it is a matter of basic principle. The principle of the Carter administration seems to be that this nation is not going to be an international watchdog.

Additionally, Carter seeks to turn away from military confrontations as a means of settling disputes. He is heading that way in the Middle East as well as in Korea.

We are not abandoning Israel by any means but Carter has made it plain that he does not intend to back up the Jewish state unless it involves a matter of fundamental existence. He would like to settle Arab-Israeli differences through negotiations, not war.

In Korea, he is telling the South that this nation is not forever going to sink large sums of money into a foreign military presence. We do not intend to abandon South Korea but we expect it to stand on its own two feet and we hope that North Korea can see the value of peace as well as war.

It is not an easy process to define and it is even a harder path to follow but it does seem that if the world is ever going to peacefully settle its problems, something has to give. If nations go on forever with the threat of war as a major part of their diplomacy, no real or lasting peace can be achieved.

We doubt there is any greater risk in the Carter approach than in the one inherent in Gen. Singlaub's criticism. Manning front battle lines throughout the world does not seem to us to be the most promising posture the nation could assume.

Part of the reason Carter was elected was that the American people were looking for some new approaches and that is what they are now getting in both foreign and domestic affairs. There is some risk but we think it is worth taking.

No MacArthur case for this president

Jack Germond
Jules Witcover

Washington — If there had not been a Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, President Carter might have been excused if he had invented him The case of the dissenting general provided one of the rare opportunities for the President to take an action that is essentially beyond challenge — and, at the same time, politically rewarding.

Few would argue that a president, any president, should allow a military officer in Singlaub's position to publicly challenge established national policy, particularly on something as touchy as the plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea and its potential consequences. The general couldn't be permitted to speculate that the withdrawal could lead to war, if only because that is just the sort of speculation that can become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

But Carter has options about how he would act in the case, and the course he chose to follow is another demonstration of the natural political "feel" he brings to the White House—a quality that seems to have been conspicuously missing recently in some of his dealings with Congress.

At the one extreme, the President might have directed Secretary of Defense Harold Brown to quietly recall Singlaub without the White House itself becoming directly involved. Whether or not that received any prominent attention in the press, the message would have been flashed along the grapevine to everyone in the military: Don't trifle with this president. Indeed, in his initial irritation at the Singlaub interview, that was the course Carter began to follow, there was no plan from the outset to bring the general to the White House. But that was also a course that might have let the political opportunity slip by, and Jimmy Carter didn't get where he is today by missing openings.

Maj. Gen. Singlaub

At the other extreme, Carter could have made more of a circus of the affair by not only summoning Singlaub back to the United States but by, for example, going before the television cameras himself to announce the decision in the case. That was an excess he avoided.

What Carter managed to do instead was send word not only to the military but to the public at large that he was very much in command here, and secure enough about it to handle it personally, if not quite routinely.

The display of firmness was essential for Carter for several reasons — not the least being the reputation he has been gaining here for caving in to Congress in critical confrontations. The President's advisers and supporters inevitably credit him with showing "flexibility" in such situations, but one man's flexibility can be another man's white flag. And Carter had been displaying little of the political toughness for which he had now such a reputation in dealing with the Georgia legislature.

Beyond this, however, the Singlaub affair gave Carter what one adviser called "an opportunity to reestablish the principle of civilian control of the military" when the White House is looking ahead to intensive national debate later this year over such things as another Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, and the direction and amount of federal defense spending, the kind of issues on which outspoken military lobbying has been the rule rather than the exception even after administration policy has been determined.

The danger of a backlash from the right was obvious, even before Ronald Reagan weighed in from Buffalo with his judgment that Carter's handling of the affair was "disgraceful" and that the President had shown "petulance" in choosing to "humiliate" Singlaub. And Carter's handling of the case, however adroit, has not insulated him against carping from the right.

But he has avoided giving the conservatives a chance to make John K. Singlaub into another Douglas MacArthur.

Ted Kennedy's power play based in OTA

William Safire

Washington — Sen. Ted Kennedy, champing at the bit part he has been assigned during a Democratic administration, has begun his campaign for a far more impressive role in the play of American power.

The stage he has chosen is science and technology — with its reach into domestic health programs and international agreements — and the vehicle is the steadily growing Office of Technology Assessment.

That is the group Congress set up five years ago to help congressmen make sense out of the blur of scientific facts and figures whizzed past it by the Defense Department and HEW. Like the General Accounting Office and the new Congressional Budget Office, the OTA is set up to be bipartisan: its board is half House and half Senate, half Democrat and half Republican.

Under the new chairmanship of Ted Kennedy, however, the Office of Technology Assessment — with its $8 million annual budget for 154 staffers and scores of consultancy plums — has become the happy hunting ground for Kennedy apparachiks.

Quietly, last week, former Democratic Congressman Emilio Daddario, who has been Director of the OTA since its start, quit — effectively forced out by Chairman Kennedy, who will tell the board this week that his choice for successor is his longtime aide, Ellis Mottur.

Bitterly, this week, the vice chairman of the OTA board, Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., told House leaders she intended to resign in protest.

"Senator Kennedy has taken over this office," the respected Mrs. Holt charges, "and has made it his personal political vehicle. This was never supposed to be a device for publicity and grandstand plays "

What troubles Mrs. Holt and other believers in the need for a responsible, bipartisan group to study technology for the Congress is the "quickie" studies rammed through by the Kennedy men, such as a saccharine report that duplicates much other work in the field but is well timed for television news.

More troubling to some scientists is the way Kennedy is trying to arrange for permanent dominance by the "Charles River Gang" of liberal technocrats. He seeks to have the OTA's tail — its outside advisory council — wag the dog, by turning the advisory council into a self-perpetuating club. He also wants the council to "study" (which means purge) the OTA staff.

As might be expected, the head of the advisory council — who replaced Harold Brown, now secretary of defense — is an old Kennedy hand: Jerome Weisner, whose job as science adviser to President John Kennedy helped move him to his present spot as president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Kennedy-Weisner faction, over the protests of the conservative minority, has already dumped J. Fred Bucy, president of Texas Instruments, from the advisory council. Although the outspoken Bucy has written and sent in more critiques of proposed projects than any other member, Kennedy claims he is being dropped for poor attendance at meetings.

The senator's real reason for blocking the reappointment of Bucy is personal and ideological: The Texan dared to oppose some spending on Kennedy pet projects, and wanted a study of the impact of selling certain integrated circuit technology to the communists.

Testifying before the Jackson subcommittee this week, Bucy outlined the danger of handing over our six-year lead in circuitry know-how, vital to missile sophistication. An objective study of that subject is the last thing the "Charles River Gang" wants to finance.

How can Kennedy take over an operation so carefully balanced between two houses and two parties? Easy: While the senators usually vote as a bloc, Rep. Morris Udall on the House side votes as a liberal with Kennedy, giving him automatic control.

Ordinarily, the House speaker would resist this subjugation of the House by the Senate, but the House speaker happens to come from the "Kennedy district" in Massachusetts, and Tip O'Neill is not about to cross his patron saint for something as foolish as institutional equality.

As a result, the Kennedy power play will probably succeed. Mrs. Holt's protest will cause the matter to be investigated by the House Committee on Science and Technology, which is headed by Olin E. 'Tiger" Teague, the redoubtable Texan whose recent hospitalization made possible the Kennedy power grab. Some "oversight" will come from that quarter.

But we can expect a flow of reports from the politicized Office of Technology Assessment in the future that will show how right Kennedy is on everything from medical research to mass transit with the scientific community's seal of approval on everything that puts consumerism over the fight against inflation, environmentalism over employment.

That's too bad: Congress had a good idea in trying to cope with legislative decisions requiring reliable, expert knowledge. But students of the classic political power play must salute the Kennedy performance, and eagerly await the drama ahead when this actor stars opposite the power player in the White House.

Correction on Devaney's exercise views

Today's Mail

Misunderstanding cleared

Lincoln, Neb.

We recently received a long-distance phone call from the United Press International writer who originally wrote the article: "Nebraskans are too fat and it could just kill you," wherein it was implied that Mr. Bob Devaney was against exercise for people who are beyond the age of 30. The UPI writer explained that Mr. Devaney's statements were "edited down" by the Chicago news bureau and further edited by The Lincoln Star. The resulting statements which reached the Nebraska public implied something totally unintended by Mr Devaney.

Due to this editing, a misunderstanding occurred between Mr. Devaney and us. As stated in our first letter to the editor, we know that Mr. Devaney is definitely a promoter of exercise and we apologize to him for this misunderstanding We would hope that future statements by a person of the fame of Bob Devaney, and which are to be released to a large public audience, will be more carefully scrutinized by the media to insure their accuracy

We do not retract our statements concerning the value of exercise nor do we retract our statements concerning the poor physical education and coaching models of fitness that all too often roam the fields and gymnasia of our schools

It should again be emphasized that exercise by people over 30 years of age is generally very good. Such a statement is supported unequivocally by the scientific community. However, such exercise programs should be initiated in moderation, under the supervision of a knowledgeable person, and with the endorsement of a physician.

Physical education and athletic programs are important for all Nebraskans and we hope that the influence of both will increase the quality of life for our citizens.

What violations?

Lincoln, Neb.

When newly elected council chairman, Richard Baker, took office on Monday, May 16, he read a statement referring to the City Council and to the mayor saying, "In the past we have both been guilty of overstepping our legal authority "

It's hard to understand why such a dramatic accusation with such serious implications could receive so little follow-up attention from the media. What were these occasions when either the council or the mayor violated legal bounds? The city attorney must be equally puzzled and concerned since it is his job to see that all actions taken by either body are in conformance with the city charter and the ordinances that implement the charter.

In summing up the powers of the City Council, the charter says: "In addition to exercising its general legislative, investigatory and audit powers, the council shall make or confirm appointments as provided by the charter, adopt and (sic) budget, set the taxes and assessments, and take such other actions as it deems necessary and as are consistent with this charter."

In addressing the power of the mayor in relation to the council, the charter says: "The mayor shall have the right to attend council meetings and to appear before the council for the purpose of expressing his views on matters pending before the council He shall have the power to present messages, reports, and other communications to the council, to propose legislation, and to call special meetings of the council "

I am unable to recall any violation of either of these charter laws on the part of either the council or the mayor during the four years I served on the City Council Don't we all have a right to know what "legal authority" the two bodies are "guilty of overstepping?"

Charity at home

Wilber, Neb.

This country is really something else. It is so unfair to some of its people, especially when it comes to welfare programs and other such aid, state, local or whatever.

I have nothing against other people settling in this country and then getting on welfare, but I cannot understand why so many people and programs are willing to jump in and help them and then turn their backs on the needs of the native-born. Some are in situations similar to those of the new Americans — Vietnamese, Cambodians, etc.

The average American struggles all his life here to make ends meet and a foreigner comes in and in less than a year, there is a story in the paper about how he has a big business going and a $100,000 home

Meanwhile the poor American pays for it, and goes without a lot

Zoo party

Lincoln, Neb.

There are times when words can't express true feelings. The Zoo Party, sponsored by the Sowers Club on Saturday, May 21, was one of those times

The support the residents of this city and surrounding towns gave us by taking part was fantastic. Everyone looked as if he were enjoying himself, and the Sowers members were very gratified to be able to make so many people happy.

It was a total effort on the part of a lot of people, but I would like publicly to recognize the news media, who did a fine job of promoting the event, especially KOLN-TV and radio stations KLMS, KLIN and KFOR Also, the cooperation we received from Alan Beitz and his staff at the Children's Zoo was outstanding.

I feel very fortunate to be associated with the Sowers Club and to provide an event such as this party Our thanks to all for giving it the support it needed to become a success

Moral obligation?

Lincoln, Neb.

Much has been written about Joe Hampton's vacating his Airport Authority seat, but no mention has been made about his successor to that seat

Isn't the mayor at least morally if not legally obligated to appoint one of the other authority candidates in the recent election to that seat?

She remembers legislative first

Albion (AP) — Nell Krause of Albion was 30 years ahead of her time when she made Nebraska history in 1946 by becoming the first woman to serve in the Unicameral.

Gov. Dwight Griswold had called a special session in an effort to secure legislation providing better treatment of Nebraska's needy, aged and blind persons and dependent children. The school lunch program was one product of that history-making meeting.

When the elected representative from the 27th District resigned, Griswold asked Mrs. Krause if she would serve the remainder of his unexpired term during the special session.

The Krauses were vactioning at their summer home in Evergreen, Colo., when the governor's telegram arrived. Mrs Krause, who is 82, remembers her initial reaction.

"I was startled," she said. "My lord, why did they want me? I called the governor and told him, 'I appreciate the courtesy you're extending to me, but why me? I don't know anything about the Unicameral' 'Nell,' he told me, 'you'll never learn any younger.' "

Mrs Krause chuckled when she told how they had to make a special trip to Denver to buy clothes befitting a legislator before she took a train directly into Lincoln.

Although the special session lasted only two weeks, Mrs. Krause said she thoroughly enjoyed it.

The governor had proposed two bills, one to establish a school lunch program, the other to raise assistance payments to elderly persons. Both were passed.

"I was very definitely in favor of both of them," Mrs. Krause recalled. "We accomplished the two things we went into session for."

Serving in the Legislature, she said, "gave me a great knowledge of the legal process involved in passage of a bill. I had always been familiar with constitutional law. I definitely got more out of the session than I gave."

Mrs Krause was the darling of the news media at the time. She recalled telling one reporter, "Don't accuse womanhood if I make a mistake, but blame it on Nell Krause. I have a suspicion many things rest on my shoulders unseen at present."

From her male colleagues, Mrs. Krause said, she received nothing but cooperation.

"I have watched since, and some of the women in politics have done some rough sledding. I never encountered any of that. I met with nothing but gentlemanliness in all the fellows.

"My thinking was my own and I voted as I thought my constituents wanted.

Associated Press

Nell Krause enjoyed Unicameral.

"I feel I was considered for the position because I was Nell Krause. I've never been an aggressive person but I've always spoken my thoughts.

"Some women push too hard," she said. "If you're capable of doing a job, you'll be asked. The job always sought me, not I the job."

Mrs. Krause's term expired in January 1947 and she did not seek reelection.

"I didn't consider running for office because my husband's health was poor. My first love was my husband, and his health was more important," she said

Today, Mrs Krause remains active in the American Legion and its auxiliary. She was the first woman named an honorary commander and currently is the Legion's state historian.

"I'm not at all ashamed of the fact that I'm 82. The Lord has been good to me," she said.

"I think one thing that has kept me young is my association with young people. I'm always happy to be included."

Safeway in Havelock to become Misty

By Gerry Switzer
Star Staff Writer

By the first 1977 Big Red home football game, the Misty Lounge is expected to open a new restaurant and lounge in Havelock. And by the first of the year, four small shops will also be opened adjacent to the new Misty.

Bob Milton, owner-operator of the Misty II at 6232 Havelock, confirmed Thursday that he has purchased the Safeway property on the southwest corner of 63rd and Havelock for $200,000.

He said he will gain possession of the building and parking lot by July 1 and expects to begin remodeling immediately in order to open the new facility in early September.

The Safeway store located there for several years will close down at the end of business Saturday.

According to Milton, the Safeway chain decided six years ago to phase out the existing Havelock store because the facility "was not in keeping with Safeway's new image."

He said he had put his name on the interested list several years ago and the present owners contacted him in February to see if he still wanted to buy the store, which adjoins the site of the original Misty Lounge destroyed by fire last winter.

Also planned for the 200 by 175-foot area purchased by Milton are four shops to be located at the south end of the property along the alley. Milton said the shop area will be 30 feet deep with the 175-foot frontage divided into four.

Verbal agreements have already been made for a greeting card shop and beauty shop to locate in half the space.

Jan. 1 has been set as a target date for completion and occupancy.

The new Havelock location does not cancel plans for building another Misty at 70th and Pioneers, Milton said. However, that proposal will be delayed at least a year and a half.

With the widening of both 70th and Pioneers and an 18-month delay in sewer installation, Milton said he didn't think it would be practical to attempt to open the business there sooner.

Milton said he anticipates spending about $400,000 in remodeling the Safeway building and constructing the addition for the four shops.

The new Misty I will include a football-shaped cocktail lounge which will seat 75, a regular dining area to seat 150 and three party rooms. The parking lot will be lined with gas lights and the center will be landscaped.

After opening the new Misty at 70th and Pioneers, Milton said he plans to close the present Misty II.

Hotel owner disappointed

Omaha (UPI) — The owner of the condemned Hamilton Hotel said Thursday all he was able to salvage from the building was "the lock and hinge, a refrigerator and two fire nozzles."

"I didn't have much time to get anything out," George Nahas said. "It's terrible."

Nahas tried to stop the city from tearing down the hotel, but Wednesday Douglas County District Court Judge Samuel Caniglia lifted a restraining order he issued last week.

Thursday workmen were at the hotel to tear it down.

A few carpets and doors were taken out by M. G. Andersen of Omaha, who said he paid Nahas for the salvage rights.

Bob Rock, owner of Associated Wrecking Co., said everything else in the hotel "is going to the dump."

Beds and furniture were piled in the lobby of the hotel Thursday afternoon. Rock said that would be the first part of the hotel demolished.

Boy run over by grandmother

Omaha (AP) — A little boy died Wednesday evening after a car driven by his grandmother ran over him in a parking lot in North Omaha.

George E. Haynes, 2, son of Debbie Haynes, apparently fell from the car about 6 p.m. as Helen L. Baker backed the car at a dairy store.

ConAgra to buy elevators

Omaha (AP) — ConAgra Inc. announced Thursday that it has reached an agreement in principle to buy 90 of the stock of the McMillan Co., a Minneapolis-based grain elevator operator.

The Minneapolis firm will become a wholly owned subsidiary of ConAgra, a food-processing conglomerate, it was announced.

Involved in the purchase are a 2.5 million bushel grain elevator in Superior, Wis., and the 3.2 million bushel Shoreham Elevator in Minneapolis, which ConAgra has leased since March, the firm said.

Hotel harbors old mysteries

By Michael Holmes
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Greenwood — All the guests are gone.

The last one checked out around the turn of the century, never to return to the old hotel just up Main St. from the railroad depot.

Now the depot is gone, too, a relic they moved over to the park for display.

The trains still pass, rumbling and roaring, up and down, between Omaha and Lincoln. Mostly freights, they often roll right through tiny Greenwood. No depot, no passengers, no guests.

Apparently there weren't too many passengers stopping here even when they could climb down from the coaches and walk up the tree-lined avenue to the Greenwood Hotel.

At least the hotel still stands, green and white and towering over a long, thick lawn.

But the Greenwood Hotel suffered hard, hard times — changing hands almost yearly between 1884 and 1901, when the Cass County sheriff sold it at a tax auction.

"It just seemed like the old place wouldn't make it," said Homer Gebo Jr., as he leafed through the yellowed pages of the official abstract that traces some of the hotel's background.

Homer and Rejane Gebo own the place now, own it and love it.

For five years, they've been working to restore some of the past splendor. And they've been wondering about what happened back then.

"There sure was a lot of human activity that surrounded this place," Homer said. "I suspect that in its day it was rather colorful. I wish there was some way of knowing for sure."

But all that remains, apparently, are some yellowed documents with a few cryptic notations.

A. T. Andreas, in his 1882 history of Nebraska, noted that there were two hotels in town — "The Fouts House and the Greenwood House."

John W. Bellinger and his wife bought the hotel in the early 1880s after a lumber yard had taken legal action against the former owner. It seems there were too many vacancies even then.

The Bellingers got the grounds, the building and, according to the abstract, "such furniture as John McNeil left in the hotel."

The abstract charts a long roll call of innkeepers, each selling out in turn. Shortly after 1900 the building no longer was listed as a hotel, having lapsed into use as a private dwelling.

And history chugged on by, clacking down the Burlington Railroad tracks, leaving the Greenwood Hotel in its smoke.

By 1967 the good ladies of the Greenwood Federated Woman's Club had written a 239-page town history that completely ignored the hotel. Not a word, not a picture, nothing.

The ladies weren't to blame. Most of the hotel's past faded out with the lonesome train whistles.

Wayne Landon, whose father Emmet purchased the hotel in 1925, sold the place to the Gebos five years ago.

Landon said he doesn't know much about the earlier era except "it hadn't been a hotel for a good many years when my father bought it."

The woman's club history says Greenwood swelled from a tiny 1860s village to a thriving city of 840 by 1880. "It was really a 'swinging' town," the ladies wrote.

As Homer Gebo roams through his big old house, he thinks about those days.

Questions are everywhere in the hotel, like so many empty rooms awaiting another night's guests.

Climbing the huge front staircase that branches out in two directions, Gebo can walk down a hallway lined with old doors, look into rooms and speculate about who slept there.

Pipes and jets for gas lamps remain, but cast no light on the mysteries; tiny closets with too-low doorways still enclose puzzles; riddles float in the aging communal bathroom with the bear-claw tub.

The basement hides another secret: An old tunnel that runs under the building.

"You want to know where that comes out?" Homer laughs. "I don't know. But I tell you this, I'll be glad to tie a rope around you and you can crawl in there and see. Okay?"

But seriously, he said, he plans to clean out the tunnel one day and perhaps learn the reason it was dug.

He's also tried to understand the tiny upstairs room that's too small for anything except the chest of drawers built into the west wall; the stories about part of the hotel burning down when the livery stable next door went up; and the attic that seems too well lit and ventilated to be just an attic.

Meanwhile, the Gebos are struggling to put things right within their house. But the trains that speed past 150 yards away rock the sandstone foundation so much, Homer said, that one end of the house droops.

And it's a big place, almost too big for the pharmacist and his wife. "But we plan to live in all of it, every bit."

As a cool evening breeze slipped in and out of the slender white porch columns, the Gebos smiled.

One oldtimer has told them that as a boy he walked by the hotel on many summer evenings and saw guests rocking in chairs on that wide front porch, rocking and feeling the breeze.

Attorney to serve at public expense

Grand Island (UPI) — The attorney for a Grand Island youth charged with first degree murder has asked to be allowed to withdraw from the case as a private attorney.

Hall County District Court Judge L. W. Kelly Jr. Thursday allowed Tom Wagoner to withdraw as a private attorney for Bernard R. Schaeffer, 16, and then appointed Wagoner to defend Schaeffer at public expense.

Kelly also authorized Wagoner to utilize "such additional legal personnel" in Wagoner's firm as are necessary to defend Schaeffer, who was held in the Hall County jail without bond.

Wagoner declined comment on his reasons for asking for the change.

Schaeffer and George A. Lanzendorf, 16, Grand Island, are charged in the shooting death of Ace Hardware assistant manager Donald Beery Jr., 28, Grand Island, whose body was found last week near a sand pit northwest of Grand Island.

Lanzendorf was held without bond in Merrick County jail in Central City. He was moved to Central City in order to provide separate facilities for the two juveniles.

$2,600 fellowships go to UNL grad students

Three University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate students from Lincoln have been awarded Maude Hammond Fling Fellowships.

The Lincolnites are Michael A. Day, who is working toward a master of science degree in physics; Gwen Nugent, who is working toward a doctoral degree in education; and Patrice A. Watson, who is working toward a doctoral degree in psychology.

The fellowships, which are administered by the University of Nebraska Foundation, provide an annual stipend of $2,600, plus tuition and fees for a year beginning August 1, 1977.

Other recipients include Larry L. Berger of Hanover, Kan.; Richard H. Kennedy of Alton, Ill.; Ronald W. Mayle of Plattsmouth; and Linda J. Huffman and Victoria F. Roche, both of Omaha.

Veto would cut school aid

The Lincoln Public School District may lose as much as $600,000 in state aid next year if an expected governor's veto is not overridden.

The school system would receive $4.9 million next year, instead of the current $5.5 million if the state aid to education funding is cut by $20 million by the governor's veto, according to State Education Department estimates.

At the heart of the money loss or gain for the local district is LB532, the appropriation bill. The bill currently includes $55 million in state aid, which then would be combined with $20 million from LB33 — the bill spelling out the new state funding formula. This would bring the total state aid package for next year to $75 million. Lincoln would get an estimated $6.7 million of that.

But an anticipated governor's veto will take out $20 million from the appropriation bill, leaving only $55 million in total state aid. Lincoln's share would then drop to an estimated $4.9 million.

The new funding formula decreases the percentage of dollars flowing to larger school districts, and any cut in the appropriation would have a greater effect on these districts.

NU grants to aid science training

Associated Press

Grants totaling $316,500 have been awarded to the University of Nebraska for training and research in science, the National Science Foundation announced.

The School of Life Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will get $185,000 to support graduate training in life sciences.

The College of Medicine department of anatomy will receive $131,000 for research on how hormones affect reproduction and development.

The three-year grant at UNL will enable the university to substantially improve the research environments for the modern education and training of scientists in ecology and cell biology, said Russel Meints, director of the School of Life Sciences.

Field sites for long-range ecological studies will be prepared on an 80-acre tract 19 miles from Lincoln and at a 1,300-acre tract at the Life Science's Cedar Point Biological Field Station near Ogallala.

The cell biology program will involve development of learning experiences for graduate students with new technologies and instruments. In addition, cell biologists will be brought to Lincoln to offer workshops closely coordinated with laboratory courses Meints said.

Boy's court fate upheld by judge

York (AP) — York County District Court Judge William Norton Thursday upheld a county court action binding over Ricky A. Johnson for trial in district court.

Johnson, 17, is charged with first degree murder in the shooting death April 22 of York police officer James N. Richardson II.

Norton set another hearing for Friday morning to hear arguments on a defense motion concerning a county court refusal to allow neurological and psychiatric examinations of Johnson before the preliminary hearing and before rejecting a defense motion to transfer jurisdiction to juvenile court.

Norton also took under advisement a defense request for bond for the youth. County Atty. Michael Murphy has asked either that no bond be set, or that it be at least $500,000.

State retains construction grads

Almost two-thirds of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's construction management graduates work in Nebraska or with Nebraska-based firms, according to a recent survey.

The survey, conducted by construction management professors Eva A. Winter and Robert G. Zilly, indicates that 70 of the 123 graduates who responded are employed in Nebraska. An additional eight graduates are employed by Nebraska firms in other states.

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieves Pain And Itch...

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When hemorrhoidal tissues swell, become inflamed and infected—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But doctors have found a remarkably successful medication which is so effective that it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues. And it does more. In many cases, it also gives prompt relief for hours from the pain and itching in hemorrhoidal tissues.

This medication is obtainable without a prescription under the name—Preparation H®. Tests by leading doctors on hundreds of patients in New York, Washington, D.C. and at a large medical center verified Preparation H gave similar successful results in many cases.

When you consider Preparation H offers so many benefits—it's no wonder millions of sufferers buy it each year to obtain this relief. See if it doesn't help you.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

Exon schemes to stop aid hike

Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon says he wants to avoid a hike in the state sales tax rate and simultaneously sidestep a special session of the Legislature.

Exon said Thursday he is trying to find a way to use a line-item veto so the State Board of Equalization won't have to consider a $20 million state school aid increase when it sets tax rates.

The $20 million would boost the state sales tax from 3 to 3.5%, Exon said.

The governor said he previously thought he would need a special session to accomplish his goal, but now hopes he can avoid it and the higher sales tax. But he would be no more specific.

Because the vote on LB532, the major appropriations bill which contains the state aid spending authorization, won't occur until Wednesday, the last scheduled day of the 1977 session, Exon can veto the state aid section and the Legislature won't have a chance to override the veto.

Exon also acknowledged that he would not have had the chance to stymie state aid were it not for the very leaders trying to pass it.

"They had the votes and they couldn't get it together," Exon said. "It just mystifies me how they always seem to do it to themselves."

A minority of lawmakers prevented passage of LB532.

He said there would be "millions upon millions of dollars worth of vetoes" in other appropriations measures.

If LB532 were not passed by July 1 there would be no appropriations to run mental institutions, prisons or other state operations.

Rule changes title of power study head

Associated Press

Members of the Legislative Council's Executive Board decided Thursday that the man hired for the $50,000 study of Nebraska's public power should work as a consultant.

Adam Kubik of Syracuse, N.Y., an engineer on leave from a firm there, was to be retained on a contractual basis under an original plan calling for him to be a temporary state employe.

The initial phase study, preparing for a more widespread analysis, was to last 90 days and Kubik's portion of the $50,000 was set at $5,500 a month.

However, Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson told board members Thursday that funds could be obligated for a consultant, but not a temporary employe, into the next fiscal year.

The board voted 7 to 0 to revise the contract agreement with Kubik, though the engineer had requested designation as a state employe. The state will provide office space, equipment and phone service for Kubik.

In other action, the board decided the $172,000 for legislative research assistants of senators who don't chair committees would be used under a flexible system at the virtual discretion of Dr. Jack Rodgers, head of research.

Rodgers said 18 full-time or 36 part-time researchers could be hired. The board indicated full-time researchers would work out unless more than 18 lawmakers sought them.

The board also heard a report on the Crime Commission's 1978 comprehensive criminal justice plan for Nebraska.

Utica Sen. Douglas Bereuter suggested a commission revision aimed at stopping any appearance of conflicts of interest in the grant review process regarding Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funds.

"Right now there's a lot of law enforcement people, particularly outstate, who feel that Lincoln and Omaha are getting more grant money because they are more heavily represented on the commission," Bereuter said.

The lawmakers also discussed Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler's proposed policy language on interim expenses, which would include mileage, meals and lodging for senatorial business matters. That included research by lawmakers.

"I'd love to have it," said Scottsbluff Sen. William Nichol, who honestly was skeptical of potential problems. "I could work that to death."

"I think senators are responsible enough to handle this," countered Fowler. The matter was deferred for more study.

In other work, the board referred some interim study resolutions to committees for summer and fall analysis and hired some legislative pages to work over the interim and next session.

State humanities group gives $65,000 in grants

Kearney (AP) — The Nebraska Committee for the Humanities has approved five grants totaling more than $65,000.

The committee awarded the division of continuing studies at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln $36,323 to continue the "Nebraska Forum on Human Values." Also, the committee issued the division a challenge grant, offering to match any amount up to $5,000 that can be raised in contributions.

Nebraskans for Peace were given $3,090 for a symposium on citizen participation in international policy development.

The Community Resource and Research Center of the College of Architecture at UNL was given $12,725 for a multimedia production proposed to tour 30 Nebraska county fairs this summer. The production is to deal with future alternatives for the family, farm, community, energy and natural resources.

The Lincoln Chess Foundation received $2,990 for a conference to examine the uses and values of leisure activities.

The humanities division at Doane College in Crete and representative departments of several other state colleges and universities will receive $10,365 to present a "Conference on the Humanities and Public Life."

Gentry Limousine applies to be Lincoln taxi firm

The Nebraska Public Service Commission is considering Mike Grieger's application to start a third taxicab company in Lincoln.

Grieger, owner of Gentry Limousine Co., has applied to carry passengers in Lancaster County and between cities in Saline, Gage, Otoe, Cass, Saunders and Seward counties and Omaha.

Earlier this year the PSC clarified its order authorizing Grieger to operate a limousine company. Because of the omission of several words in the written PSC order, Grieger contended the order also authorized him to run a cab company in Lincoln. The PSC set the record straight and said that if Grieger wanted to have a taxicab company he would have to make a separate application.

The public may submit written comments on the application to the PSC until June 25. A public hearing will be scheduled if there is enough interest.

Currently, Lincoln has Yellow Cab Co. and Capital Cab Co., which are jointly owned.

Accountants to elect officers

Omaha (UPI) — Election of officers is scheduled for the annual meeting of the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants June 5-7.

The program for the event includes an opening address by James Herbert of Omaha, president of the society, and speeches by such individuals as Gov. J. James Exon.

Ambulance proposal sets off debate again

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

The chronic controversy on emergency ambulance service in Lincoln has flared up once again in preliminary work on city and county budgets.

Triggering the last spat is a proposal that the city buy four ambulances. Two would be staffed and housed in fire stations and two would be backups.

The proposal, which would cost an estimated $326,616 in its first year and about $200,000 annually from then on, was requested by a joint budget committee of the city and county.

No action has been taken on the proposal and any final decision would be up to the City Council and County Board. Budgets will not be set into final form until late this summer.

The joint budget committee asked that the Fire Department and City-County Health Department draft the proposal because of concern about the rising subsidies to the Bryan Memorial Hospital mobile heart team and Shurtleff and Eastern private ambulance companies.

The Bryan heart team receives about $60,000 a year. Last year the ambulance companies received a combined total of $34,000. They have asked that the figure be upped to $55,000.

In recent years the idea that firefighters could take over more emergency services than they now provide has been considered from time to time, but nothing concrete has ever come of the idea.

From time to time there were allegations that friction between firefighters and ambulance personnel was creating an unhealthy atmosphere at emergency scenes, but those allegations have largely disappeared in recent months.

The latest proposal drawn up by the Fire Department and Health Department is once again opposed by the ambulance companies.

Don Shurtleff Jr. says flatly that the plan would put him out of business, even though his firm handles ambulance services other than emergency tasks, such as transporting patients from hospital to hospital.

Another person unhappy about the latest proposal is Dr. Stephen Carveth, chairman of the Emergency Medical Services Council.

Carveth says that the joint budget committee's handling of the matter amounted to going behind the back of the council, which has been studying alternatives to the present ambulance setup.

Making the ambulance question more complex is that the city franchises the two companies and requires them to provide certain services and levels of training that the companies might not otherwise provide.

The ambulance companies contend that these government requirements are what makes it necessary for them to receive a subsidy to operate.

Asked to comment on the proposal, Mayor Helen Boosalis said that her administration is not pushing it and that it was drawn up merely at the request of the budget committee.

EPA's dust expert will visit with Thone

Washington — U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Douglas M. Costle Thursday promised Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., the person at EPA in charge of drafting dust emission standards for grain elevators will visit Thone before rewriting the proposed regulation.

Costle's telephone call to Thone came after the House Thursday passed a bill exempting grain elevators with less than 2.5 million bushel capacity from EPA regulations.

"This amendment I successfully supported would free nearly all country elevators from federal controls," Thone said.

EPA is completely abandoning proposed grain elevator regulations published in January, Thone said. At Costle's direction, Walter Barber, director of EPA's Office of Air Quality Planning and Standards, will visit Thone before drafting proposed new regulations.

The previous regulation proposal would have provided federal controls for any grain elevator that could take in more than 10,000 bushels per hour. Based on telephone conversations with Costle and Barber, Thone believes the new proposals will leave smaller elevators completely under state controls.

"Elevators of larger capacity would be subject, under the proposed new controls, to EPA emission standards only in case of new construction or reconstruction equaling half the capital cost of an elevator," Thone said.

"In the case of reconstruction, only the part of the elevator that was modified would be subject to the emission regulation," Thone said.

The Nebraska First District congressman said he also hopes EPA will abandon its proposal for zero opacity. "I am hopeful that a revised regulation will permit building or constructing large new elevators that have occasional 5% to 10% opacity from dust," Thone said.

EPA plans to complete a new draft of proposed regulations for elevators in June, Thone said. This will be circulated informally to all who commented on the January proposal. Only after comments from the informal circulation have been digested and reacted to would EPA publish a new set of proposed regulations in the Federal Register.

In Lincoln, Bob Anderson, executive vice president of the Nebraska Grain Dealers Association, said, "This decision by the House, if agreed to by the Senate, will save farmers from five cents to 10 cents a bushel on the price of their grain."

Anderson said very few country elevators in Nebraska are likely to exceed the 2.5 million bushel capacity called for before an elevator would come under federal regulations.

"As we understand it, this is per house (elevator). If one company or cooperative owns several houses, each one is treated separately," he said.

"Only the major terminal elevators would still be under federal control. We think the EPA regulations on dust for elevators are still ridiculous, but this is a vast improvement," he said.

"A farm tractor in the field puts out more dust than most country elevators will," Anderson commented.

Fewer leaving Omaha schools

Omaha (AP) — Omaha School District officials have revised enrollment projections for next fall and it appears the district isn't losing as many students this school year as it did last year.

Last year, the district lost about 2,300 students between October and May. For the current school year, the loss was 1,600.

The key element is that the percentage of students who remained in the district generally matched the percentage in the years immediately before the integration plan was put into effect.

What the figures suggest, officials said Wednesday, is that losses due to court-ordered desegregation have slowed much more than expected.

Officials had predicted that next fall's enrollment in kindergarten through 12th grade would be about 50,000. That would have been a drop of about 3,000 from last fall's total.

Of those 3,000 officials believed that about 1,300 would be attributable to "abnormal" factors; namely school desegregation.

Officials came up with the prediction of 3,000 by comparing what has happened in recent years.

Now it appears that the decline will be about 2,400. And since a decline of 1,700 could be normally expected because of such things as the falling birth rate, only about 700 students fall outside the "normal" loss category.

Union Pacific sets dividend

Omaha (UPI) — The Union Pacific Corp. board Thursday declared a quarterly 42.5-cent per share common stock dividend.

The railroad said the dividend would be payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 6.

Union Pacific noted it has paid dividends on its common stock for 77 consecutive years.

Mrs. Abbott named to panel investigating election charges

Omaha (UPI) — City Council member Betty Abbott has been named the fifth member of an Omaha Board of Education citizens committee to investigate alleged election irregularities by school district employes.

Mrs. Abbott, who will leave the city council next week, replaces Vicki Krecek, city director of neighborhood improvement.

Ms. Krecek resigned after a school board member cited a possible conflict of interest because her husband works for Ms. Krecek.

The allegations to be investigated by the committee will focus on preferential services rendered certain board of education candidates by school district employes in last November's election.

Mrs. Abbott was defeated in the recent mayoral election by former City Councilman Al Veys.

Omaha youths face charges in beating death

Omaha (AP) — Two teenagers were charged with first-degree murder Wednesday in connection with last week's beating of an Omaha construction worker.

Ordered held without bond by Municipal Court Judge Walter Cropper were Lonnie Woodruff, 17, and Mandrell A. McGowan, 19.

They are accused of killing Harold D. Hay, 38, who was found bleeding and unconscious last Thursday in an abandoned cattle chute in South Omaha just north of the Wilson packing plant.

He died at a hospital the next day.

Police said that after receiving information from several persons in South Omaha Monday, they arrested McGowan, Woodruff, Woodruff's older brother and a 17-year-old girl.

Woodruff's brother and the girl were released Wednesday.

Police are accusing Woodruff and McGowan of using a prostitute to lure Hay to the cattle chute area and attacking him from behind.

Detectives said they believe Hay was robbed of about $1,200 in cash, a watch and a ring.

Boston Opera plans 'Orfeo ed Euridice'

Boston (UPI) — The Opera Company of Boston will present Gluck's "Orfeo ed Euridice" for four performances at the Orpheum Theatre June 2, 5, 7 and 10

The opera, to be directed by company artistic director Sarah Caldwell, will star Shirley Verrett as Orfeo, Benita Valente as Euridice and Marianna Christos as Amor. "Orfeo ed Euridice" had its first performance in Vienna Oct 5, 1972

Man sought in slaying captured

Omaha (AP) — Wesley Massey, a Colorado prison escapee sought in the slaying of a young Iowa businessman here Monday, was captured Thursday afternoon in Colorado Springs, Colo., Omaha police said

An Omaha homicide detective said Colorado Springs police reported that Massey was found hiding in the home of a woman believed to have been involved in his escape from the Colorado State Penitentiary April 25.

He was captured shortly after Colorado Springs police Wednesday found the car of a former Omaha policeman whom Massey allegedly forced at gunpoint to drive him to Colorado, police said.

The former policeman, Richard Lee Gilliam, 34, was found walking down a farm road in a remote area of Colorado early Thursday. He said he had met Massey at a bar and offered him a ride. In the car, Gilliam told authorities, Massey pulled a gun on him and told him to drive to Colorado.

The Omaha detective said Massey was captured at the home of a Lisa Williams. One report said Ms Williams was Massey's ex-wife, but the detective said he did not know their relationship.

The detective said Omaha authorities are already preparing an extradition request.

Massey was charged in a warrant with first degree murder in the slaying Monday night of Gary Damron, 20, of Urbandale, Iowa. Damron allegedly was lured to a Ramada Inn Central motel room by a woman he met in the motel's bar, and then beaten and robbed by a man who was hiding in the room

Damron was shot in the chest in a motel elevator and collapsed in front of the lobby desk. He died shortly afterwards in an Omaha hospital.

A woman believed to have been traveling with Massey was arrested shortly after the incident and charged with first degree murder in the commission of a felony (robbery) She is Mary Katherine Larson of Cannon City, Colo.

Massey escaped April 15 with four other inmates. Only he and another inmate, David Anderson, remained at large Anderson, who Omaha police say apparently was not involved in the slaying of Damron, is still at large.

Apparent drowning victim Kenneth Hoskinson, 17

Missouri Valley, Iowa (AP) — A 17-year-old Omaha youth was believed to have drowned in the Missouri River near Missouri Valley Wednesday evening. Authorities identified him as Kenneth Hoskinson

Missouri Valley Fire Chief Tom Moorman said the youth was with a group of teen-agers near Wilson Island in the DeSoto Bend area. The chief said they were playing on pilings when, it was believed, the youth fell into the river.

Annexation vote requested

Hastings (AP) — Four property owners have asked the Adams County District Court to let voters decide whether the City of Hastings will annex two nearby school districts.

In a writ filed this week, the property owners ask the court to force County Clerk Anita Hawes to put the question on the ballot in the next primary or general election. The request involves a decision by the Hastings City Council to annex Adams County Districts 15 and 16.

Teachers pact okayed

Omaha (AP) — A salary agreement announced Thursday will provide school teachers in Omaha School District 66 with a 4.5% increase in base pay for the 1977-78 school year. School officials said the pact should maintain the district's teachers as the best-paid in Nebraska.

Hospital vote planned

North Platte (AP) — About 300 employes of the Great Plains Medical Center in North Platte will vote June 8 on whether they want bargaining representation by the Teamsters Union. The board earlier turned down a Teamsters request for the election.

The National Labor Relations Board, after a hearing, decided the hospital was a private corporation and not a government subdivision, and ruled the NLRB had jurisdiction in the matter.

Klein cited for service

Washington (AP) — Robert N. Klein of McCook, Neb., Red Willow County Extension agent, Thursday was one of 11 persons to receive the U.S. Department of Agriculture's second highest honor, the Superior Service Award.

Joslyn fund drive told

Omaha (AP) — The Joslyn Art Museum Thursday announced a $4 million fund raising drive to finance a remodeling program and lift the museum out of inflation-induced financial doldrums. The drive will be headed by W.A. Strauss, a trustee of the museum and chief executive of Northern Natural Gas Company.

The planned $1 million remodeling will change the north entrance to the museum to allow access to both gallery levels, a spokesman said.

Railroad Town opens Monday

Grand Island (AP) — Stuhr Museum of the Prairie Pioneer will open its outdoor exhibits Monday, executive director Jack Learned announced.

The summer attractions center around a reconstructed Railroad Town of the 1880s, completed with a turn-of-the-century steam train which will take visitors for rides around the grounds.

3 Lincolnites charged in restaurant robbery

Three Lincoln men were charged Thursday in county court with Wednesday's armed robbery of the Bonanza Sirloin Pit, 84th and O Sts.

Mark Carlbom, 20, of 5161 Sherwood, Jerry Cox, 21, of 102 G St . and Donald Hughes, 27, of 2244 Vine, each were charged with one count of robbery and one count of using a firearm to commit a felony.

Caribom and Cox were arrested at Cox's apartment shortly after the robbery Hughes was arrested later at his apartment

Police reports said that two gunmen entered the restaurant shortly after closing, fired two shots and forced the employes to the rear of the building

Deputy County Atty. Rod Rehm declined to say whether one of the men charged was allegedly driving the getaway vehicle in the incident. Rehm noted, however, that all were charged with the same offenses.

Investigation requested of attorney's intentions

South Sioux City (UPI) — City Attorney Wayne Boyd said Wednesday he will ask Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas to investigate the intentions of Dakota County attorney Donald Fitch

Fitch had sent a letter to Police Chief Gene Claxton saying he would not prosecute felony and misdemeanor complaints that don't appear in the city s code

The South Sioux City Policemen's Assn has also written to Douglas asking him to look into Fitch's plan.

City administrator Wally Stovall said incidents involving the Police Reserve may have caused the rift between Fitch and the local police.

A dozen members of the reserve resigned earlier when they were restricted from carrying handguns in certain buildings More recently, former reserve members were prohibited from attending the State Police Academy at Grand Island because they were unsponsored

Los Angeles (AP) — Eric Sevareid, one of the last of the CBS News team assembled before World War II by Edward R Murrow, will give his final nightly news commentary in November

Sevareid will turn 65 on Nov 26 His last commentary will be Nov 30

In a farewell address to CBS-TV affiliates, he said, "Someone asked me what I d do after 45 years of daily deadlines '

Severeid, who joined CBS in London in 1939 after working as a newspaperman, added, "I have two contrasting temptations One is to sit in a rocking chair for two weeks, after which I will slowly begin rocking

"The other is to go fishing Charlie Brown may say that happiness is a warm puppy, but I can tell you that happiness is a cold trout "

Severeid said he does not think television has the awesome power some believe it has He said he has spent the past few years trying to deflate some of the myths about the medium, especially that it is destroying American life He said, "As far as I can see Americans are just as ornery and independent as ever "

Sevareid said he was sorry that television newsmen become personalities and even stars

"People think we have great power and I don't think we have," he said "Newsmen are not leaders of the body politic and they are not statesmen We should try to restore a sense of perspective to our view of newsmen "

Jackie and prince both deny rumors of romance

New York)up) — Jackie and the prince both said "no" Thursday.

Mrs Aristotle Onassis has absolutely no romantic interest in 50-year-old German Prince Johannes Von Thurn Und Taxis, who has a fortune of over $200 million, the official spokesman for the former First Lady said

"I can assure you there is no truth in the story," said the spokesman, Nancy Tuckerman, a confidante of Mrs. Onassis who was a member of her Kennedy White House staff

The bachelor prince was equally adamant in denial. He directed a spokesman at his vast, 64-room palace in Regensberg, Bavaria, to say:

"His highness authorizes his court marshal to deny he is seeking a liaison with Mrs. Onassis. He has known Mrs. Onassis for a long time, but the ties are social ties and ties of friendship."

German's largest circulation newspaper, Bild Zeitung of Hamburg, started the tale of romance Wednesday in an article headlined: "Does Jackie Love Germany's Richest Prince."

The newspaper said Mrs. Onassis had found the prince, who boasts both Austrian Hapsburg and Portugues Braganza royal blood, "charming" and that he had spent a weekend visiting her in New York. Miss Tuckeruman said flatly, "He has not stayed with her."

Mrs. Onassis' name has been linked more often in recent months with syndicated newspaper columnist Peter Hamill, who has lived for five years with actress Shirley MacLaine. They have been seen at dozens of public events together, the theater and movies.

Iowa historian tells 'rebels' to forget recapturing flag

Des Moines (UPI) — The Civil War is over, the Union won and it's time a group of Mississippi Sons of Confederate Veterans forget about it.

Jack Musgrove, director of the Iowa Historical Department, Thursday had that advice for the Mississippi organization which announced plans to launch an armed assault on the Iowa Historical Museum to retrieve a Confederate flag captured in the Civil War, if it cannot be done through legal methods.

Musgrove thinks the flap over the flag has "gone much too far."

"It's all pretty childish I think," he said in an interview Thursday. "It's their problem, there is nothing I can do about it."

At a news conference Wednesday, The Mississippi group asked the secretary of defense to retrieve the flag from the Iowa museum. Walter Bevins, a past commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans camp, said Congress passed a law in 1905 which directed the secretary of war to return captured flags to the states from which they came.

Later, a Mississippi attorney general issued an opinion that cited the 1905 law and said the flag actually belonged to Mississippi.

Bevins said members of the Mississippi Sons of the Confederate Veterans have promised to "to march to Iowa, strom the museum, (and) re-capture our flag." However, the former commander said he would ask the Mississippi attorney general to pursue the matter in the courts first.

"The war is over, We won the war and I think they should forget it," Musgrove said.

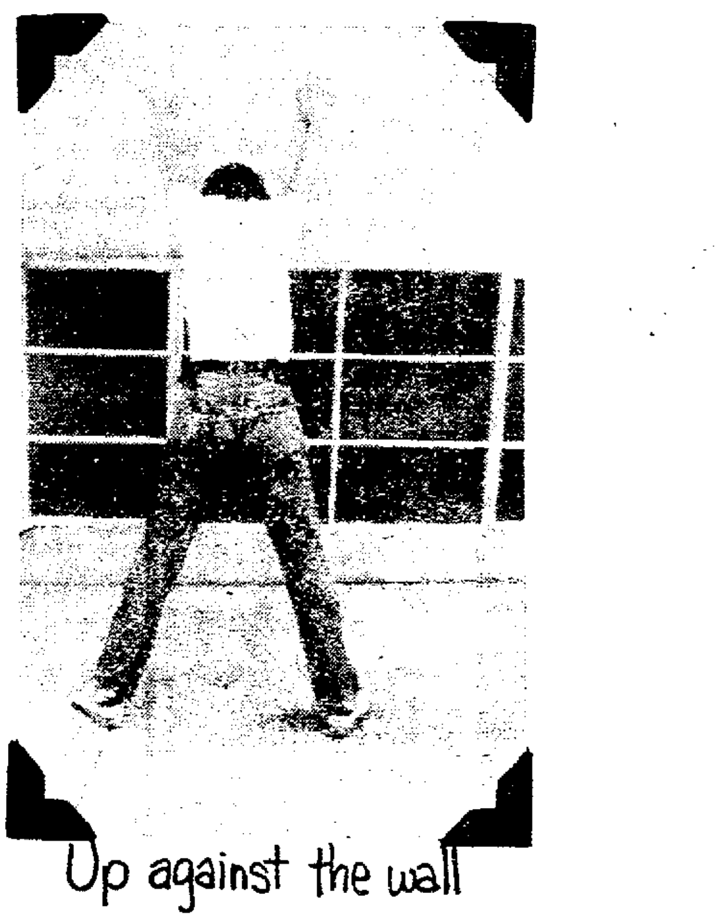
Frippinino the clown

Dale Ashmun has many faces

Rooty Toot Koodzy

Fast Eddie is ready

Prufroque on bongoes



Up against the wall

Fast Eddie, musician

Prufroque, aging beatnik

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

Remember Fast Eddie Frippinino? Hey, come on, sure you do, your eighth grade class, everyone's eighth grade class, had one.

He was the tough young dude who sullied the reputation of the Future Homemakers of America president and the Church of Christ minister's daughter. He usually spent his lunch hour out in the parking lot smoking unfiltered Camels. If you passed Fast Eddie in the hall, he smelled of Penzoil and more than one dab of Brylcreme.

There isn't a for-real, flesh-and-bones Eddie Frippinino, of course; you know, a dude who really has that name and Social Security number.

But he comes to life when Dale Ashmun oils back his hair, rolls up his Levis, puts on his shades and gets onto a stage, grabs a microphone, and, in a voice that sounds like it is being digested halfway down his esophagus, tells what it is like to be a young punk who could never leave the eighth grade.

Fast Eddie isn't the Fonz, Ashmun says. Because Fast Eddie never wins. He is a loser.

Dale Ashnun returned to Lincoln to visit the city where he grew up and graduated from high school and college. He looks like a slender version of half of the comedy team Burns and Schreiber, and he speaks with the shyness of a Clark Kent waiting for a costume to spring him from the Metropolis life into something uncivilized.

Fast Eddie isn't Asmun's only creation. There are others, characters forged from years of listening with the right ear tuned to Peter Sellers and the left ear to the Rolling Stones.

Ashmun has also created Rooty Toot Koodzy, the rock n' roll guru; Rodney Slingenheimer, a roadie for an English rock band, and J. Melvin Prufroque, a refugee from the beat generation who thinks that page 17 of Jack Kerouac's "On the Road" is the heaviest thing in literature.

Ashmun, 25, recently sat on the patio of his parent's home overlooking Pine Lake, and talked in transcendental tones about making it, which, to him, means being able to make a living by doing what he wants to do.

What Ashmun wants is to be a comedian, or, as he describes it, "a solo comedy act with musical backup." The music, he said, helps a comedy act last longer.

"James Taylor can sing 'Fire and Rain' and people still want to hear it," he said.

But Ashmun wants more than a living. He wants to be a star.

Ever since he can remember, Ashmun said he has been a stargazer.

He lives a world-is-a-stage sort of life. Except to him, the world is a movie screen, his daily affairs blown up into Technicolor diminsions.

"Life is like a movie," he said. "We are our own auteur. We are our own actor, set designer, light director, makeup artist. I write my own scenario each day."

Scene 1, Take 24

Ashmun once lived in Los Angeles, where he was a regular performer at the Ala Carte, a small club where hopeful comedians perform and find out if they have what it takes to make other people laugh.

Ashmun now has left Lincoln for New York City. He says he is going to get all greased up, grab his guitar and head for the CBGB Club, the place where all the hip, tough rockers make music.

Maybe he'll get a chance to play. Maybe the people will dig his act. Maybe an agent will discover him. Maybe . . .

Scene 2: Take 4

Ever since he was 12 years old, Ashmun has wanted to be a rock star.

Isn't that every American kid's dream these days, Ashmun said. To have the glitter and glamour and adulation that rock musicians have.

When he was 12 Ashmun was a student at Irving Junior High School, leading a life Fast Eddie Frippinino would have admired. He was one of those crude and rude kids who lived for the weekend, because weekends were the best time for drinking and fighting.

Ashmun says he is not proud about that phase of his life. But at least he got out of it, he said. Fast Eddie didn't.

At age 12, Ashmun heard his first Beatles record.

Ashmun said he became a closet Beatlemaniac. He didn't tell his friends about his obsession. He thought his friends would think him uncool if they knew he collected Beatles posters, Beatles bubblegum cards and Beatles magazines.

Then, one day, a friend walked into his room, unannounced, and there Ashmun sat in a room with Beatles posters papering the walls, reading a Beatles magazine and listening to a Beatles album.

After that, Ashmun tried to mellow his Beatlemania. He later picked up on the entire British rock invasion . . . the Stones, the Kinks, the Who, the bands "that had the real drive that the Beatles had."

And, he listened to comedy records, such as Spike Jones and Jonathan Winters.

Ashmun graduated from Southeast High School in 1970 and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1974. He majored in speech and drama.

He moved to California to teach in a suburban school. He decided to shop around for another profession after the day a 6-year-old boy spit in his face.

So, Ashmun decided to follow his inner drum and try to accomplish the dream he has had since he was 12 — to be a star.

He moved to Los Angeles, which was an ego-blowing experience.

"I went through one of these 'where am I?' stages. I'd wake up nights and dream I was still in Lincoln."

But all dreams have their price. Ashmun said he was reduced to a "struggling nobody."

He worked odd jobs. He was a security guard at Universal Studios. He wrote articles about California musicians for the L.A. Vanguard, a Los Angeles underground paper.

He was an extra in movies requiring a cast of thousands. In his last role, he was one fleshspeck in a hysterical fleshpot of people fleeing from King Kong.

While hanging around the movie lot, he listened to other extras and their fame-starved stories — about hassles getting an agent, hassles getting a part.

Ashmun did not yet have an agent. He didn't have a steady gig. But, to him, big deal.

Ashmun admits that he isn't a good guitarist. He doesn't credit himself with much more than "fair" ability.

He was 20 years old when he began learning guitar. But, he said, even if you know a few chords, you can shatter the world.

"If you know only three or four chords, you can play 'Sympathy for the Devil' " Ashmun said. "I can write a rock song as good as Kiss."

Scene 3: Take 22.

Of all Ashmun's characters, the best defined, in his own estimation, is Rooty Toot Koodzy, the rock and roll guru.

Rooty Toot was born during Saturday matinees that Ashmun used to attend with his older brother.

Whenever the action on screen excited Ashmun's brother, he would yell "Rooty Koodzy."

Ashmun didn't learn until several years later, at a comic book convention, that Roody Kazoody really existed, a comic book character somewhat like Howdy Doody.

Ashmun picked up additional bits of the guru's character along the way. The voice came from a Peter Sellers record where he uses an Indian dialect.

Then a friend gave him some weird wrap-around glasses that looked like the Lone Ranger's mask. Then he tied his hair on top of his head. Things clicked. The rock and roll guru was born.

Rooty Toot Koodzy is a satire on the spirituality supermarket, Ashmun said. So many philosophies and religions abound which proclaim the "true way to enlightenment" that no one knows what to select, he said.

The guru preaches the doctrine of Gurock, which, basically, is to release inhibitions through any music you can dance to.

Not just disco or reggae, but also "surf rock, acid rock, oldies, newies, rhythm n' blues, rockabilly, ruffabilly, glitter rock, space rock, swing jazz, rock n' sock, rock n' bop and be-bop."

The guru would tell you that he made up the word Gurock at the New Delhi Sock Hop, where he was playing all different sorts of dance music.

Da peoples would always say, 'Wut is dat music, Guru . . . rock?' So I called da whole mess Gurock." That was Rooty Toot Koozdy speaking.

Ashmun doesn't know how much longer he can keep up the guru routine, for Rooty Toot Koozdy is aging. The guru first appeared at an amateur night at the Cornhusker Hotel several years ago. If he continues for much longer, he could become stale, Ashmun said.

But after the guru dies, after he reaches his limits, Ashmun hopes the word Gurock will remain. The term itself started out to mock attempts by critics to catalog music into catch-all terms: the Liverpool sound, the Nashville sound, the L.A. sound.

But, in his fantasies , Ashmun imagines that the word Gurock will catch on, people will use it to mean almost any type of music that's danceable, that has a driving beat.

So, brothers and sisters, whaddya say? From now on, when you play anything from the wind to Earth, Wind and Fire, you are not listening to rock or to soul or to boogie. You are listening to Gurock. A music uniting all musics.

You might be injecting a new word into the English language, Ashmun says. Can you dig it?

Family strong in mathematics

A family tradition of mathematicians is continuing at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dr. Sylvia Wiegand, associate professor of mathematics at UNL, is the granddaughter of Grace Chisholm Young and William Henry Young, an English mathematical team which produced a substantial amount of mathematical research early in this century.

Dr. Wiegand's grandmother, Grace, was the first women to receive a Ph.D. in any discipline in Germany. Her father, Laurence Young, retired last year from the University of Wisconsin, and her husband Roger is also a professor of math at UNL

"In my family mathematics was a natural thing to do and it was natural for a woman to do," said Dr. Wiegand, who recently presented a paper about her grandmother at the annual meeting of the American Mathematical Association

Unable to get a Ph.D degree from a university in her native England, Grace Chisholm received permission from the German government to earn her doctor of philosophy degree from Gottingen University. She received the degree magna cum laude in 1895 and one year later married her tutor from Girton College, the women's school at Cambridge University.

William Young, her husband, was also a mathematician. Both became internationally known in their time and their results are still widely quoted today.

Together they produced 220 mathematical articles and several books. Most of the articles were published under William's name, when actually the ideas were conceived jointly, and it was always Grace who filled in the details and wrote up the articles for publication, said Dr. Wiegand.

A letter William wrote to Grace confirmed this: "The fact is that our papers ought to be published under our joint names, but if this were done neither of us get the benefit of it . . . mine the laurels now and the knowledge. Yours the knowledge only."

William never held a professorship at any research-oriented university, but served as president of the London Mathematical Society from 1922-24 and as president of the International Union of Mathematicisns in 1929.

While raising six children, Grace continued to carry out research plus pursue her interests in medicine, languages and music. She completed all the requirements for a medical degree except the internship, so her medical practice was limited to the family, said Dr. Wiegand.

She knew six languages and taught them to her children when they were young. The children also played musical instruments and the family gave informal concerts.

One of the Young's daughters would later write that her father had ideas and a wise grasp of subjects, but was only stimulated by the "reactions of a sympathetic audience," while her mother had the "decision, initiative and stamina" to carry a project to its end.

"If she had not had that skill, my father's genius would probably have been abortive, and would not have eclipsed hers and the name she had already made for herself."

A geometry book for children was published in 1905 under both names, but Dr. Wiegand said it was probably written by Grace, since the German edition was published only in her name. Her 7-year-old son, Frank, helped her with the book.

Grace also wrote two biology books for children called "Bimbo" and "Bimbo and the Frogs." The books explained the principles of cell division for children in short story form, with a family of characters much like the Youngs.

Of the Young's six children, two became mathematicians — Sylvia's father Laurence, and his sister Rosalind. Another daughter, Helen, studied math but did not complete a Ph D. The oldest son, Frank, also called Bimbo, died in World War I. A daughter, Jeant, fulfilled her mother's dream of being a medical doctor, the youngest child, Pat, is a chemist.

Dr. Wiegand never met her grandmother, who died in 1944, before she was born.

"Everything I have heard about her indicates she was a wonderful person, so extremely talented, but also kind and loved by everyone."

It's Your Money

By Jane Bryant
Quinn

New York — The vast majority of Americans have just had their taxes cut, thanks to the tax-simplification law signed last week. You'll see the results in your paycheck starting June 1. Withholding rates will be reduced a little, giving you more cash to take home.

But if you have a strong desire to save more money, consider asking your employer to continue withholding taxes at the old rate. When you file a tax return next year, you'll then get a nice refund. It's like taking your tax cut in a lump sum, rather than in dribs and drabs.

If you don't use the standard deduction, definitely consider having taxes withheld at the old rate. Taxes have not been cut for the 21% of taxpayers expected to itemize returns next year. So the lower withholding could result in a higher cash payment due the government next April 15.

Here are details on the new tax law:

Better Standard Deduction for Married Couples: The old deduction ranged from $2,100 to $2,800, depending on income. The new deduction is a flat $3,200 for everyone. (Incidentally, it won't be called the standard deduction any more. The new jibber-jabber is "zero bracket amount." Does that make things simpler?'

Better Standard Deduction for Most Singles: The old deduction ranged from $1,700 to $2,400, depending on income. The new deduction is a flat $2,200 for everyone. This means a tax cut for about 16 million others. The tax increase is concentrated among those earning more than $15,000.

Smaller Working Wife Penalty: Married couples, where both husband and wife work, still have to pay a higher tax than if they were single and filing separately. But the penalty has been reduced a little. Married couples where only one spouse works continue to pay less than a single person earning the same amount.

Tax experts say there's no way to tax the income of single and married people exactly alike, and at the same time apply higher tax rates to higher incomes. You have to choose one or the other.

Tax Simplification: The tax forms introduced last year forced taxpayers to make a number of new calculations. That made tax filing more complicated and vastly increased the number of mistakes. Next year's form will eliminate all calculations for people taking the standard deduction (unless they take one of the special credits, like the child care credit or retirement income credit). It will also introduce a simple tax table for the people who itemize deductions.

One-time Break for Retired People: A change was made in the retirement-income credit last year. It lowered taxes for older people with small incomes and raised taxes for those with larger incomes (generally speaking, those making more than $11,400). This change is still in effect. But people who were hurt by the new law have been given one year of grace.

If the new retirement income credit forced you to pay more taxes for 1976 than you would have otherwise, you can refigure the tax according to the old rules and apply for a refund. Ask for help, if you need it, from an office of the Internal Revenue Service or a tax preparer. File form 1040X, for an amended return, plus schedule RIC. Next year, however, you'll be stuck with the new rules.

One-time Break on Sick Pay: Last year's tax law wiped out the provision that allowed the first $100 a week of sick pay to pass untaxed. But the million or so taxpayers hurt by this have a one-time chance to get some money back. Congress has decided not to apply this change to 1976 taxes, so if you didn't deduct sick pay on the 1976 return, you can file for a refund.

You'll need form 1040X and form 2440 — but the latter form won't be available until late June. So make a note right away to check with an IRS office at that time. Also, mention this tax windfall to anyone who you think might be entitled to it. The average refund is estimated at around $327 — and some of you may get $1,000 or more.

Bridge

It's now your bid

By B. Jay Becker

Your partner opens One Notrump (16 to 18 points), and your right-hand opponent bids Two Spades. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1.♠9 ♥AJ83 ♦AJ83 ♣K982
2.♠752 ♥J8 ♦93 ♣AKJ943
3.♠J6 ♥A5 ♦Q872 ♣J8542
4.♠3 ♥AJ9874 ♦K985 ♣86
5.♠10 ♥62 ♦K743 ♣QJ7643

1. Three spades. Obviously this is a game-going hand — with 13 high-card points facing a notrump bid — but you're not in position at this point to determine the best final contract.

Naturally you prefer to play the hand in a suit rather than in notrump, because the singleton spade is a liability in notrump. But rather than name one of your suits, which could easily prove to be the wrong one, it is better to cuebid spades, thus requesting partner to choose a suit.

Partner may, of course, respond three notrump, indicating a double-stopper in spades. If that occurs you should pass. Notrump may be best after all.

2. Three notrump. You should have no qualms about undertaking a notrump game — holding six probable club tricks — despite the absence of a spade stopper. There is a strong probability that partner has at least one spade stopper, and you should brush aside the bare possibility that he is wide open in that suit.

Note that a three club bid is not forcing in this sequence. It is merely a competitive bid for a part score.

3. Two notrump. That is what you'd have bid had your opponent passed, and you shouldn't vary your response because of the intervention. Two notrump does not affirm or deny spade strength. Partner may pass or go on, depending on his hand. He will think you have 8 or 9 points, but should allow for the possibility you have only 7 points in this competitive situation.

4. Four hearts. You can't afford to stop below game with this layout, and it is best to bid it at once. This is not just an 8-point hand, though that's all you have in high cards. The 1-6-4-2 distribution is worth at least 4 points more. Stated differently, you have six or seven probable winners opposite a notrump bid, and you'd have to be very unlucky not to make four hearts.

5. Three clubs. This is the type of hand where you'd like to compete for a part score without having your partner treat the bid as forcing. You can probably make three clubs, and partner is highly unlikely to be able to make three notrump.

Bulldog might be able to bring malpractice suit

Postcard

By Stan
Delaplane

San Francisco — I retained a lawyer Jill recently for the household dachshund. Not much extra money coming into the scatter.

I said to the Lawyer: "Keep an eye out for a malpractice suit."

In the Midwest, a bulldog name of Caesar was not feeling good. So he went to the vet.

"Maybe something I ate," said Caesar.

The vet put Caesar under and opened him up.

Lo and behold, he took out three pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. (Several pieces were missing, but it looked like it might have been "Washington Crossing the Delaware.")

He found a metal road building toy with a scoop shovel. (Made in Japan and as good as new.) He found a plastic bottle top and a golf ball.

"I shouldn't have let go, it's bad for the bulldog image," said Caesar. "But the medic had me high on ether."

Now there was a dog with a malpractice suit. Was the golf ball still playable?

The world changes. What's happened to that kindly old character who saved the marriage by showing the young housewife how to make a cup of coffee?

Young Housewife: "I don't know why it is. He won't drink my coffee."

Husband: "What wonderful coffee! Can I have a nother cup?"

If we could afford the coffee, we can't afford the water. Water is still short in the Golden State.

Unfortunately, it was just at this time that we went into tie-dying. The tie-dyers are neighborhood friends of my moppet. They tie-dye girls' undershirts.

Name of the company was Cat Corporation. Upgraded to French: "Chats Creations."

Place of business: my scatter.

I advanced money for the cotton undershirts. Also for the dye. "We'll pay you back out of our profits," they said.

What do you mix dye with? Water. Where does the water come from?

I said: "How about mixing the dye with my beer? It's cheaper."

"We use it with our shampoo. It makes your hair set better," they said.

"What do women want?" asked the great Dr. Freud, reaching for the cooking sherry.

He can't get divorce to marry young girlfriend

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 53-year-old man who is very much in love with a 22-year-old girl. I know you think I'm crazy, but this girl really loves me. She even broke up with a young, good-looking man just for me. She worked for me for a short time, but we didn't want any talk around the place, so I had her quit.

My problem is my wife. She won't give me a divorce. Our children are grown, and I offered my wife a very good settlement, which she refused.

Abby, my girlfriend is the sweetest, most unspoiled girl in the world. She is just the opposite of my wife. She appreciates every little thing I've given her, like a small, inexpensive car, some clothes and taking care of her mother's hospital bill. I would gladly give up my last dime to be free to marry this girl. How can I get my wife to give in?

LONG ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: Make her a better offer. She might surprise you. But don't "give up your last dime" for your freedom because that "sweet, unspoiled girl" might also surprise you and disappear when she discovers you're broke.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 28-year-old, college-educated man who takes a ping-pong ball to bed with him every night and keeps bouncing it off the wall and catching it until he gets tired enough to fall asleep? That's my husband.

He claims it "relieves tension." We have been married for two years, and he started this foolishness about six months ago. I have even considered leaving this nut!

PING-PONG PROBLEM

DEAR PING: Your husband is inconsiderate to relieve his tension in a manner that adds to yours. Suggest that he tell his troubles to a doctor before you tell yours to a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and our daughter were too close to suit me. They were cutting me out, so I solved it by telling my husband a few things about her, and they are no longer close.

Then he developed a closeness with our son, and I used the same method, and our son left home.

Someone in our family who knew how I solved this problem sent me an article in which there was a similar situation. It said the wife was jealous of her own children.

I admit I'm jealous where other women are concerned because when he has had to go out of town on business, I always go with him. I trust him IN town, but not OUT of town. I think that kind of jealousy is normal, but I don't think it's possible to be jealous of my own children, do you?

DEAR JEALOUS: Yes. And from where I sit, I would say that you are. I would also say that the "method" you used to break up the "closeness" between your husband and your children was underhanded and nothing to be proud of.

Leader sees decline in racial equality

Providence, R.I. (UPI) — The economic upheaval of the 1970s is undermining racial equality gains of the 1960s, civil rights leader Roy Wilkins said.

"Race is still a bugaboo," the retiring executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told 1,016 graduates of Providence College.

Benefits climbing for city workers

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — Fringe benefits for municipal employees have been growing 12 to 14% a year.

Now the employees, after being paid in cash for the hours they actually work, receive about 50% more in the value of fringes.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, in announcing these findings, doesn't say whether the fringes are too high or too low. But they are better than the fringes offered by private industry — and they are expensive.

"This report underscores the need to understand that fringe benefits are no longer a matter involving just a few dollars," said Kenneth A. Gibson, mayor of Newark, N.J., and president of the Conference of Mayors. "The amount of fringes indicates the results of state-mandated benefits and union demands.

"This report is not published to discourage or encourage benefits, but to give both employees and local governments a moe realistic understanding of the implications of their growing costs."

He said that persons comparing the respective salaries paid by cities and private industry should take into account the more liberal fringes paid by cities.

The Conference of Mayors sponsored a survey of fringe benefits paid in 1975 by 777 American cities, and compared the results with a similar-survey of 581 cities for 1973. The conference found that between 1973 and 1975, fringes for policeman and firemen increased 14.2% a year; for other employees, 12.2%.

In 1972, the survey found, fringe benefits amounted to 46.4% of the pay for hours worked by policemen and firemen, and 41% for other city employees. The average for industry was 39.8%.

The report estimated that for the current fiscal year ending June 30, the nation's municipal policemen and firemen are receiving fringes worth 48% of their pay for hours worked; other employees, 43%.

All of these figures are three to six percentage points too low, the report said, because the survey, computing the value of pension rights, counted only the money that cities actually paid into the pension funds. But many cities are not putting up all the money they will need to pay for the pensions they have promised.

The report listed these fringe benefits in their approximate order of cost.

Pensions and Social Security; personal time expense allowances, including payments for guaranteed work-days or work-years, wash-up and travel time, and paid lunch periods; paid sick leave; uniforms; non-production bonuses such as Christmas bonuses; death benefits; long-term disability insurance; paid time off for military training or jury duty; unemployment compensation; and education.

Pensions and Social Security payments represent about 32% of the cost of fringes, personal time expense allowances, 15%; and paid vacations, 13%.

Cities in the Northeast and West pay the highest percentages in fringe benefits, with the South paying the lowest percentage.

7.3% increase in patient costs seen in hospital board action

By Gracia McAndrew
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln General Hospital board of directors Thursday night approved a proposed 1977-78 hospital budget calling for rate adjustments which could result in a 7.3% increase in the daily cost per patient.

While the average cost per patient day is projected to be $172.72 for the current fiscal year, the cost for 1977-78 is expected to be $185.39.

However, allowances for Medicare and Medicaid discounts, bad debts, free care, operating and other expenses, will reduce the hospital's net revenue to $3.82 per patient day, compared to the current year's $1.98 per patient day, said Bob Brungard, hospital director.

The cost per patient day is based on a projected average daily census of 195 persons in the adult and pediatric units, 10 infants in the nursery, 20 patients in the Independence Center and 51 daily emergency room visits.

Major factors contributing to increased costs to patients, Brungard said, are prediction of increases in the hospital's operating expenses.

Among those is a 30% or $98,000 increase in the hospital's utility costs for 1977-78. Increased salaries to the tune of $462,000 more than budgeted for the current year also will contribute to the higher cost per patient, Brungard said.

Proposed changes for individual room rates include: private rooms from the current $84 per patient per day to $92 per day; semi-private from $74 to $81; three-bed room from $67 to $73; intensive care from $180 to $195; delivery room from $186 to $205; nursery from $60 to $65; and emergency room from $15 to $16.

The rate changes will become effective Sept. 1, provided the proposed budget is approved by Mayor Helen Boosalis and the Lincoln City Council.

Also at the meeting, the board approved a $30,000 expenditure for the purchase of a house and lot, 2445 St. Mary, from the Lincoln Hospital Association.

The board hopes to construct a grounds building to house the hospital's vehicles and equipment and develop a 24-stall parking lot on the newly-purchased property, which adjoins two lots currently owned by Lincoln General Hospital.

Board Chairman Breta Dow announced to the board that the hospital's Independence Center has been certified as a alcoholism treatment center by the Nebraska Division on Alcoholism Services.

Dissidents' 'safety' at stake

Washington (UPI) — Mrs. Alexander Solzhenitsyn, wife of the Nobel Prize winning Russian author, said Thursday the Soviet government recently decided to declare war on political dissidents in an effort to stamp them out.

She called on the West to intervene for their safety — although she did not say precisely how.

"It is extremely important to the international situation that this be brought out now," she said in a statement read at a news conference held by Rep. James M. Jeffords, R-Vt.

"The safety of the dissidents very much depends on how the West reacts — it must intervene."

Alexander Solzhenitsyn and his wife live in Cavendish, Vt.

Jeffords, Vermont's only member of the House, said he formed a friendly relationship with the Solzhenitsyns in helping them overcome a number of bureaucratic problems, and he found them "very level-headed, just very concerned about Russia."

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said Soviet authorities conducted a wide spread campaign across the Soviet Union to stamp out political dissidence.

"Not long ago," she said, "a Soviet journalist of Novosti (a Soviet feature agency), in a private conversation, stated that the Soviet government has declared war on the Soveit dissidents. People witnessed this and I have complete confirmation."

Dissidents are being jailed and held incommunicado, she said, prison conditions are deteriorating, investigations are conducted in total secrecy and the KGB police are warning Soviet citizens against public activity on pain of arrest.

Area carpool strategy posed

John Bicknell offered to contact apartment- and townhouse-dwellers in his southeast Lincoln neighborhood and give them computer cards now used to line up carpools.

That stretegy — contacting persons living in the same area — contrasts with the practice used so far of organizing carpools at places of employment. Eighteen of the city's largest employers are being encouraged to participate in the program.

About 20 persons, representing a variety of businesses and organizations, attended the session. Suggestions to encourage energy saving through carpooling included:

—Encourage businesses to provide premium parking spaces to carpoolers.

—Organize carpools through churches, schools and community organizations.

—Encourage housewives to shop for groceries together.

—Set up special points where drivers, on random trips about town, can pick up riders.

—Engage in a public relations campaign to let people know that cars and parking are a convenience, not a God-given right.

Director Shirley Maly said carpool participants at the County-City Building, the program's first target, should start meeting with each other next week.

Criticism storms on choice of Dayan by Israeli bloc

Tel Aviv, Israel (AP) — Selection of Moshe Dayan as foreign minister in a government led by the Likud bloc touched off a political storm Thursday. One party broke off coalition talks and another denounced Dayan as a "political prostitute."

A spokesman for the Likud bloc, which won the May 17 elections and will likely head a new government, said the choice of the former Labor defense minister — a hero of the 1967 Mideast war — "will strengthen the government both inside and out."

Likud leader Menahem Begin, likely choice for prime minister, announced Wednesday he had selected Dayan "to enhance the diplomatic prestige of Israel." Dayan said he had agreed "in principle" to serve in the government and would resign from the Labor party, under whose banner he won a seat in the new parliament.

Dayan, 62, resigned the Defense Ministry after Israel was caught by surprise in the 1973 Middle East war. He has been identified with the right wing of the Labor party since but has been relatively inactive.

The surprise choice angered the leader of the centrist Democratic Movement for Change, Yigael Yadin, who had been holding coalition talks with the Likud.

"This is a very serious step," said Yadin, whose party won 15 seats in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament. "The assignment of important government ministries must be . . . part of coalition talks."

He said he would not resume discussions with the Likud unless Dayan's appointment was withdrawn.

The Likud, which will have 43 seats in the new Knesset, must collect 18 more seats from other parties to form a coalition government.

The Labor party, which has ruled Israel since its founding 29 years ago, denounced Dayan's defection.

But Rabbi Alexander Schindler, president of the American Union of Hebrew Congregations, praised the selection as a "moderating force" in the Likud.

"Dayan is very much of a familiar person," said Schindler, in Israel to brief Likud officials on American Jewish opinion. "This brings the government of Begin much closer to the perception of the American community and therefore will be welcome."

Holiday travelers to pay 5¢-6¢ more for gasoline

Washington (AP) — Motorists traveling over the Memorial Day weekend will pay 5 to 6 cents more for a gallon of gas than they did a year ago, the American Automobile Association reported Thursday.

An AAA survey of 3,600 gasoline stations showed the average nationwide price of a gallon of regular gasoline was 64 cents. The average price for premium fuel was 68.9 cents; unleaded, 66.6 cents, and diesel, 56.6.

The report divided the nation into seven regions, with motorists in the West paying the highest average prices: regular, 65.4 cents; premium 69.9, and unleaded, 67.4.

The Southwest had the lowest average prices: regular, 62; premium, 66.3, and unleaded, 63.8.

Average selling prices in New England were 63.7, 68.4 and 66.5; Midatlantic, 63.9, 69.4 and 67.1; Great Lakes, 63.8, 69.2 and 66.9; Midwest, 64, 68.3 and 66.4, Southeast, 63.5, 68.1 and 66.3.

Hawaii reported the highest average prices, with regular selling for 73.5 cents; premium, 77.1 and unleaded, 75.2. Texas had the lowest prices: 60, 64.2 and 61.9.

The survey also checked whether stations would be open during the Memorial Day weekend. Nineteen per cent said they would be open 24 hours a day the entire weekend. Sixteen per cent planned to be closed Sunday and 8 per cent on Monday. About half the stations will be closed by 10 p.m. each day.

Child nearly hurt as vandals damage Air Park residences

Damage was estimated at $850.

Two picture windows were broken at the home of Sheryl Evasco, 5000 W. Loring, shortly before midnight Wednesday. Minutes later, two more were broken at the home of George W. Davis, 5101 W. Vale, where the child was nearly struck.

Police recovered the hammer head used by the vandals, who fled on foot. A neighbor said he saw three males running from the area at the time of the incidents.

Stocks and week-long slide

Dow Ind. +4.83

New York (AP) — Some cautious buying in blue-chip issues helped the stock market halt a week-long slide in a mixed session Thursday

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 4 83 to 908 07 after a 38 67-point drop over the past five trading days

But Dow Jones' transportation and utility averages both declined, and losers held a 6-5 edge on gainers at the New York Stock Exchange

Analysts said the big-name stocks that make up the Dow had attracted some support with the average hovering just above the psychologically important 900 level

The average has not closed below 900 since Jan 7, 1976, when it finished at 898 69

Also on the agenda for Friday was the government's monthly report on the index of leading economic indicators

Insurance officer raps federal intervention

Alliance (AP) — The newly-elected president of the Professional Insurance Agents of Nebraska says the possibility of additional federal government intervention in the insurance business could become the biggest single factor in causing inflation in the cost of insurance

Loren Solberg of Alliance said that dual regulation — by both the federal and state government — causes additional work reporting and effort by insurance companies and by agents This adds to the inflation factor and the cost is passed on to the consumer '

Solberg said the U S Justice Department is studying the pricing and marketing of insurance and may develop recommendations which would threaten to drive independent agents out of the market

Sites for power plant narrowed to 5 choices

Grand Island (UPI) — Hall County Regional Planning Commission Director Nelson Helm has narrowed to five the number of sections of land he is recommending as possible sites for the proposed Grand Island power plant

Helm is recommending one area which includes four sections of land one mile south of Grand Island and one section one and one half miles north of U S Highway 34 near the Hall County-Merrick County line

Of the 10 original areas proposed Helm said the five he is suggesting are more suited for the coal-fired unit, with easy railway access and good water supplies

The $80 million, 100-megawatt plant eventually will be placed on a 300-acre site The unit is expected to be in operation in the early 1980s

Firms may get fire rate cuts

Hastings (AP) — Fire insurance rates for some Hastings businesses may be reduced by as much as five per cent as the result of a reclassification of the city by the Insurance Services Office in Omaha, Fire Chief Monte Kehoe said Thursday

Kehoe said the city's classification had been changed from Class 6 to class 5 as a result of new firefighting equipment the city has obtained and an increase in personnel

He said homeowners' insurance rates will not be affected

Ambassador charges IT&T with defamation

New York (AP) — A former U S ambassador to Chile is suing the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp for $4 6 million for damaging his reputation by allegedly implicating him in covert actions in Chile

Edward M Korry filed the suit in U S District Court on Thursday against IT&T and Harold S Geneen, IT&T's board chairman and chief executive

Germans develop 2nd engine

Detroit (AP) — A new generation of fuel-efficient rotary piston engines is being developed in Germany, says an auto company official

General Motors Corp in this country gave up development of a rotary engine on the grounds it could not be made as efficient and pollution-free as conventional reciprocating engines

Robert Brooks, a consultant for the German automaker Audi-NSU, told the Engineering Society of Detroit that the new engine has 50% larger displacement and power than the old one but has fuel economy equal to the reciprocating engines of comparable power

New York (UPI) — Increased use of plastics in the 30- to 40-pound range, annually, can be expected in 1978-1980 car models reports Modern Plastics Magazine

The reason, explains the McGraw-Hill magazine need to improve mileage by reducing car weight

About 10 more pounds of plastics will go into each 1977 model bringing to about 180 pounds per car the average use of plastics

Plastics says the magazine will replace steel in large exterior body components structural support members, gas tanks, even wheels

76ers down Portland

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Playmaker Henry Bibby contributed 15 points and six assists as the Philadelphia 76ers built an 18-point halftime lead and then coasted to a brawl-filled 107-89 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night in their National Basketball Association championship series.

A near-riot was precipitated with 4 minutes, 52 seconds left in the final period when Philadelphia's 6-foot-11½ Darryl Dawkins, who weighs 245 pounds, squared off first with Portland's Bob Gross and then with the Trail Blazers' 6-9, 218-pound Maurice Lucas. Dawkins and Lucas were expelled from the game after a dozen security guards eventually cleared the floor of players and spectators.

Doug Collins scored 27 points and Julius Erving 20 as the 76ers took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, which continues Sunday afternoon and next Thursday night in Portland.

The 76ers exploded in the second period, building an 18-point bulge, 61-43, at halftime. They shot 54.1 per cent from the floor to an atrocious 22.2 per cent for the Western Conference-champion Blazers in the first half.

Portland was forced by the pressing Philadelphia defense to take shots from the perimeter and made only five field goals in the second quarter.

Philadelphia had an 11-point margin three times in the second quarter, the last at 49-38, with 3:31 left in the half. The Sixers then outscored the Blazers 12-5 to the end of the half, unleashing a devastating fast break.

Bill Walton and Lucas, the Blazers' top scorers, each managed just one basket in Portland's futile second period.

Portland broke fast in the third period, outscoring Philadelphia 8-4 and reducing the 76ers' lead to 65-51. But the Blazers couldn't cut into the margin any further and wound up only one point better off at the end of the three periods, trailing 81-64.

The Sixers took a 10-8 lead after four early ties on a 17-footer by Bibby. They boosted it to five points, 15-10, with 6:52 left in the opening period, but Portland whittled it to one point in the next 52 seconds on a tap-in and an 18-foot jumper by Lucas.

Philadelphia got its lead back to five points three times, but the persistent Trail Blazers reduced the 76er lead to one point again on an 18-foot jumper by Walton, with 1:24 remaining.

Philadelphia shot 55 per cent from the field to 44.4 for Portland in those first 12 minutes.

Indy drivers get final practice

Indianapolis (AP) — The cars hurtled around the track once more on Thursday, the final day of practice before 33 drivers go at it for real in Sunday's 61st running of the Indianapolis 500.

About 100,000 fans bustled around Indianapolis Motor Speedway, drawn by the dramatically high speeds of the last two weekends of qualifying, by pit-crew competition promoted by a beer company and by perfect weather with the cloudless skies and temperatures in the mid-80's.

The speed was there again. Johnny Rutherford, the defending champion, whipped his McLaren-Cosworth around the 2½-mile banked track at 194.553 miles an hour, the fastest of the day.

"I'm satisfied," Rutherford said. "We made a few minor adjustments, a little fine tuning, and I think we'll be as competitive as anyone on race day."

Conversely, A.J. Foyt put on his typical glum public face. "Nope, not all that happy," the three-time Indy winner drawled after his Coyote-Foyt was clocked at 192.513 m.p.h., second only to Rutherford's speed. "You're always looking for some more speed, for a little more."

Tom Sneva, the pole-sitter as a result of a 200.535 m.p.h. lap that led to a track-record 198.884 qualifying average, was clocked at 191.489 in his McLaren-Cosworth on Thursday. "We'll be ready Sunday," he said. "We'll be in there."

Tom's brother, Jerry, clocked close to 180 m.p.h. in his McLaren-Offenhauser, then commented: "I think we'll be able to turn that pretty consistently Sunday. If we do, we've got a heck of a chance."

Jerry is one of the seven rookies in the field. He thinks one of the others, Danny Ongais, has and even better one. "If he doesn't blow up his car, he's got a tremendous chance to win this thing," Sneva said. "Danny's got this thing of either winning his races or destroying his cars trying." Indy's last rookie winner was the late Graham Hill, in 1966.

Other top speeds clocked during Thursday's Carburetion Day, a name lingering from the past since Indy racers haven't had carburetors for about three decades, were Bobby Unser's 192.349 m.p.h., Mario Andretti's 190.678, Gorden Johncock's 190.355, Pancho Carter's 188.482, Al Unser's 187.478 and Ongais' 187.071.

Jim McElreath's crew won the $4,000 top prize in the pit competition, beating Wally Dallenbach's crew in the final round.

It involved the speed in the changing of two tires.

Rodgers' Rolls Royce seized by customs agents

San Diego (UPI) — Customs agents have seized a $38,000 automobile belonging to San Diego Chargers wide receiver Johnny Rodgers for non-payment of import duty.

The 1974 Rolls Royce silver blue shadow was brought into the United States from Canada without duty being declared on it, an official said Thursday.

Rodgers, who played last year for Montreal in the Canadian Football League and won the 1972 Heisman trophy after an outstanding career at the University of Nebraska, signed with the Chargers in December.

Rodgers was the Chargers' No. 1 draft choice in 1973.

Reports had it that Rodgers drove another of his cars, a Mercedes, into the country and declared it, but his friends drove his Rolls Royce into the U.S. through Detroit with no duty paid.

Huskers return ticket money

All advance payments for 1978 Nebraska football tickets sent to the Nebraska ticket office are being returned to the senders, Helen Ruth Wagner, acting Husker ticket manager, announced Thursday.

"Because none of the proposed additions to Memorial Stadium or the proposed new stadium can be completed in time for the 1978 season, Bob Devaney asks that fans be patient as it will take time to get all the payments returned," Wagner said. "But the Nebraska Athletic Department thanks everyone for yet another indication of the great continuing interest in Husker football."

Raymond signs NU letter

Randy Raymond, Fremont pole vaulter, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Nebraska, NU track coach Frank Sevigne announced Thursday.

Raymond, who holds the all-time Nebraska prep best of 15-6¼, will join Fremont teammate Larry Meyer at Nebraska.

Huskers' Nicodemus resigns

By Dave Sittler
Staff Sports Writer

Citing organizational problems, Nebraska women's athletic director, June Davis, announced Thursday that NU girls basketball and softball coach George Nicodemus has resigned.

Nicodemus, who handled the basketball team for the past two seasons while softball duties were added this year, was the only fulltime coach on the Nebraska women's staff.

"We are having some problems in organization in the program," Davis said. "So we thought that this (resignation) would be in the best interest of the program at this time."

Davis, named to the athletic director's spot Saturday by the Board of Regents replacing Aleen Swofford, said the Nicodemus resignation was a "mutual decision."

Contacted at his home Thursday, Nicodemus said he was notified of the decision calling for his resignation Monday.

"It came out of the blue," Nicodemus said. "I was, and still am, in complete shock."

During his stint with the women's cage team, Nicodemus compiled a 44-25 record, including a 23-9 and 21-16 records and a state championship this past season.

In his only season as the Husker softball coach, Nicodemus led Nebraska to a state softball title and finished the year with a 12-15 record.

Prior to his coaching duties at Nebraska, Nicodemus guided the women's basketball team for five years at now defunct John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo.

Nicodemus confirmed that he had applied for a similar coaching position at an unnamed Big Eight Conference school and a university in the Southwest Conference.

"I really don't have much of a comment at this time," Nicodemus said. "All I can say is that I am seeking a college coaching position."

With the resignation effective June 30, Nicodemus indicated he would still hold his basketball camps scheduled for early June at the University of Nebraska.

NU-Creighton cage game set for Dec. 9

A Dec. 9 game against Creighton University in Lincoln is one of the highlights of the 1977-78 Nebraska basketball schedule, announced by Husker Head Coach Joe Cipriano Thursday.

Overall in the NU-CU series, Creighton has won four games while the Huskers have won three. The last time the teams met was in 1932, when the Bluejays defeated Nebraska 28-26 in Lincoln. In 1978, the teams will meet in Omaha.

Nebraska will again participate in the Big 8 Preseason Basketball Tournament, held in Kansas City's Kemper Arena, from Dec. 27-30. The Cornhuskers then open league play on Jan. 7 at Kansas State.

Following the conference season, the league will hold its second annual Big 8 Postseason Basketball Playoffs, with the first round on Feb. 28 at the top four schools campus sites. The semifinals and finals will be held again at Kansas City's Kemper Arena, on March 3-4.

The schedule:

December 2, Missouri Southern State, at Lincoln; December 9, Creighton University at Lincoln; December 10, South Dakota University at Lincoln; December 12, University of Nevada-Reno, at Lincoln; December 17, University of Mississippi, at Lincoln; December 19, University of Minnesota, at Minneapolis; December 21, Western Illinois Univ., at Lincoln; December 23, Montana State University, at Lincoln; Dec. 27-30, Pre-season Big 8 Tournament, at Kansas City; January 7, Kansas State University, at Manhattan; January 11, University of Colorado, at Boulder; January 14, Iowa State University, at Lincoln; January 18, University of Oklahoma, at Norman; January 21, University of Missouri, at Lincoln; January 25, University of Kansas, at Lincoln; January 28, Oklahoma State University, at Lincoln; February 1, Univeristy of Colorado at Lincoln; February 4, Iowa State University, at Ames; February 8, Kansas State University, at Lincoln; February 11, University of Missouri, at Columbia; February 15, University of Oklahoma, at Lincoln; February 18, University of Kansas, at Lawrence; February 25, Oklahoma State University, at Stillwater; February 28, Play-off, First Round; March 3, Play-off, Semifinals; March 4, Play-off, Finals.

Grumpy Fidrych ready to roll

Detroit (UPI) — Fidgety Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers will make his long-awaited 1977 debut Friday night against the expansion Seattle Mariners.

A capacity crowd of more than 50,000 fans is expected at Tiger Stadium to cheer for "The Bird," unexpected hero of 1976 who has been awaiting his first start of the season even more anxiously than the public.

Fidrych has been cranky and short-tempered at times this spring, as well as his usual bubbly self, while recuperating from knee surgery. The 22-year-old right-hander tore cartilage in his left knee in mid-March and underwent surgery.

"The knee is fine. It doesn't bother me. Now maybe you'll leave me alone about it," Fidrych snapped after a tune-up May 19 in an exhibition game against the Cincinnati Reds. "I don't want to hear any more questions about my knee."

That outing — he went seven innings, gave up one run, four hits and made just 78 pitches — showed Tiger fans the 1976 rookie of the year was ready to roll. It was the same type outing that produced a 19-9 record and best-in-the-majors 2.34 earned run average for Fidrych last season.

Detroit manager Ralph Houk can be accused of withholding Fidrych from the free-agent enriched California Angels so he could face the softer expansion Seattle team in his first start. Glen Abbott, 1-4, will pitch for Seattle.

Martin's job is secure

New York (UPI) — Billy Martin, despite all the commotion on his New York Yankees team in the past few weeks, is secure in his job.

Amid all sorts of rumors about Martin's job, New York Yankees General Manager Gabe Paul affirmed, "His job is secure."

However, there was an implication it would not be so secure if there were more incidents like those of the past week.

Martin was fined $2,500 two weeks ago for missing a meeting with Paul and then sounding off in the press about not being allowed to call up Elrod Hendricks from Rochester as the team's third catcher.

There's method to madness of bat with hole in it

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The bat looks very routine. It is narrow at the handle, round at the top, thick where it should be thick, and thin where it should be thin.

It is, for all the world, an ordinary baseball bat. Except for one important extra. There is a hole in it . . . a great big, built-in hole.

Now more than one major leaguer strolls up to home plate swinging his bat so futilely that it seems to have a hole in it. Joe Martino's bat, however, is the only one we have seen so far that has an honest to goodness hole, deliberately built into it.

Martino is a warden with the Brooklyn, N.Y. Grand Jury, serving as a liaison between the court and the district attorney's office. That is his vocation. His avocation, however, is bsaeball and his major contribution to the sport he loves is his bat. The one with the hole in it.

"It's really very simple," said Martino. "There's nothing complicated about the idea."

And, in fact, the simple idea makes very good sense. Martino has cut his hole into the meat part of the bat-the section where the best contact is made, where line drives and extra base hits are created. When the batter swings, that is the area where he wants his bat to make contact with the pitch.

But with a hole in that section, there can be no contact. And that is precisely the point. If a batter using Martino's invention swings and catches the ball in his bat's opening, he knows that he is swinging properly and that, with a regulation bat, the same swing would have propduced a solid hit.

That sounds logical and Martino will tell you it works.

"I read once that an inventor should concentrate on the things he's most familiar with," he said. "And for me, that's baseball."

Martino was an outfielder with major league ambitions but a bat that didn't match.

I played a lot of semipro and service baseball," he said.

I always liked to hit and I always wanted to be a better hitter. I wanted to hit .350 or .400. I tried to figure out a way to improve my batting and I thought this might be the answer."

Martino has dabbled in other inventions including a leg exerciser for football players. But the bat with the hole in it is his prize. It is patented and the Kessler Sales Corp. represents the product in the United States. It carries the name "Prac-Bat."

One of Martino's teammates on his Army team was Lt. Jack Reed, who made it to majors with the New York Yankees in the early 1960s as Mickey Mantle's caddy. Reed, an outfielder, was strictly a defensive player and survived strictly because of his glove. His career batting average for three major league seasons was .233. But if Martino's Prac-Bat had been available to him, who knows what Reed might have accomplished?

Originally, Martino's bat included a net arrangement that would catch the ball as it passed through the hole. More recent designs have altered that and the current prototype is engineered in such a way that the ball lodges in the bat's opening, much as it would in a lacrosse stick.

Martino convinced the Yankees to take a supply of the bats to spring training one year but the experiment failed because the bats shattered.

Back to the drawing board.

"The problem was the wood," said Martino. "But we solved it."

A chemist friend, Orest Berlings, came up with a high density plastic that made the Prac-Bat all but indestructable. According to Arthur Rogovin, president of the A.R. Mold and Die Co. of Younkers, N.Y., the Prac-Bat made from that plastic would be "strong enough to withstand the impact of a regulation size and regulation weight baseball thrown by a professional player."

The bat can also be manufactured from lighter weight plastics for youngsters and that is where Martino thinks it will succeed.

"Frankly, I think its future is in the toy market," the inventor said. "But it would also be practical as a teaching device for professionals as well."

There are a few professionals who could use that kind of teaching. If you don't think so, take a look at the weekly batting averages . . . from the bottom up.

Pillen will head north

Omaha (AP) — Nebraska University all-Big Eight linebacker Clete Pillen will sign a two-year contract with Calgary of the Canadian League Friday, his agent, Al Vacanti of Omaha said Wednesday.

Vacanti said Pillen will receive a "modest bonus" for signing. He said the contract is contingent on Pillen making the team.

Pillen who was not drafted in the recent National Football League draft, will be tried at middle linebacker.

Compare these three quality, brand name 8 HP lawn tractors. Wheel Horse. John Deere. And International Harvester. Each is known for its performance and dependability.

An independent shopping survey taken in January, 1977, among dealers in over 25 major U.S. cities specifically showed, the average of the actual quoted prices for the John Deere 100 was $1364; the International Harvester Model 81 was $1286; and Wheel Horse A-90 was $1068.

In some instances, I.H. and J.D.'s average actual quoted prices were comparable or lower than Wheel Horse.

NU trackmen to USTFF

Five members of the University of Nebraska track team, along with former Husker star Bob Unger, will compete in the United States Track and Field Federation (USTFF) National Championships May 27-28.

The USTFF Championships, to be run at Wichita State University, will be more than just a tune-up for the NCAA Championships June 2-4 at the University of Illinois. The top six athletes in USTFF events will be awarded medals and All-America status.

Competing for Nebraska will be freshman Scott Poehling in the 800-meter run; senior Keith Whitaker in the 1500-meter run; senior Scott Sorchik in the javelin; sophomore Lee Kunz in the discus; and junior Dean Ross in the pole vault. In addition, Unger, who set the Nebraska records in the mile, two-mile, and three-mile runs between 1972 and 1974, will run in the 5,000 meters.

Also competing at the USTFF, at the high school level, are two Fremont High School Athletes who have signed national letters of intent to compete in track at the University of Nebraska — Larry Meyer and Randy Raymond. Meyer holds the state record in the high jump (6-11), and Raymond, with his vault of 15-6¼ earlier this year, is the all-time leader in the pole vault.

Edwards to Beatrice

Beatrice (AP) — DeWitt Tri-County High School head basketball and golf coach Jim Edwards has been named to the same position at Beatrice High School.

Edwards succeeds Neil Nannen, who recently resigned as head basketball coach and athletic director to assume basketball duties at Grand Island Senior High.

Cothren also said head football coach Ernie Stark has been given the added duties of athletic director.

Edwards brings to Beatrice a 10-year basketball career record of 108 wins and 68 losses.

Sanders to head baseball school

John Sanders, Nebraska's assistant baseball coach, will be the school director for the University of Nebraska Big Red Baseball School, held on the Lincoln campus, from June 19-25 (first session) and from June 26-July 2 (second session).

The school will be open for athletes between the ages of 8-17. The one-week session will offer personal instruction on individual techniques.

Dorsett signs Dallas contract

Pittsburgh (UPI) — Now that he's officially a Dallas Cowboy, Tony Dorsett sees his professional future as an intriguing mystery that only his hard work can solve.

"I'll tell you, it's a little insecure," Dorsett said happily. "When I was at Pitt, I knew I had a starting job. Now I don't know. I'm going down there knowing that it's going to take a lot of work."

The contract terms for the Heisman Trophy winner and National Football League's No. 2 draft choice were kept in confidence, but published reports said he would not sign for less than $1 million.

"Tony just won the sweepstakes," laughed Cowboy's vice president Gil Brandt in an obvious reference to the multi-year pact that had been signed only hours earlier by Dorsett.

"We are highly elated to have him," Brandt said, "and that is to say the least."

Dorsett, a 5-11, 192-pound running back, is the all-time NCAA rushing champion with 6,082 yards. He scored 58 career touchdowns and was the first college player to run for more than 1,000 yards in four college seasons.

His record-setting performances led Pitt to an undefeated season and National Championship in 1976, and he would like nothing better than to make the same contributions to a Dallas Super Bowl bid. If, he says, he gets the chance . . . be it as a halfback, fullback or whatever. Dorsett will report to camp with the rookies July 20.

"They (Cowboys) haven't told me yet what plans they have for me," he said. "When I went down there for rookie orientation, most of what they used me for was the running game. So I guess that's the way it is for now . . . as a running back, but I don't know where."

No matter what, the Aliquippa, Pa., native says he is ready — both physically and mentally — for the responsibilities and challenges of a professional football player.

"Mentally, I just have to accept the fact that I'm going to be starting all over with the Cowboys," he said. "I won't have a starting position when I get there. I'll be working up from the bottom all over again. I can accept that.

"Physically, I'll be as ready as possible. I'll tell ya, I'll be prepared to do whatever I have to to play pro football."

Evert to compete more

"Then I'd like to get married, and having kids would be a joy. I come from a close-knit family," she says.

High ratings skid on economy, Russia

By Louis Harris

Harris Poll

Although he still receives high marks from the American people on the overall job he is doing, President Jimmy Carter appears to be running into trouble on the key issues of the economy at home and handling relations with the Russians abroad.

Carter's overall rating is 65-32% positive, down slightly from his April standing of 69-27% according to this latest survey of 1,540 adults. A substantial 62-31% majority still credits him with "inspiring confidence in the White House." Nevertheless, this represents a drop from the 75-15% margin who felt the same way in March.

President Carter is clearly having problems with the public on domestic issues:

—On "cutting the rate of unemployment," he is given 59-32% negative marks, despite a recent improvement in the job picture.

—On "keeping down the cost of living," he is rated 57-37% negative. While this is hardly a good showing, it is not as bad as the rating the last three administrations received on their handling of inflation. The public continues to worry that inflation is heating up again and that it could get out of hand.

—On "handling the economy," a slim 47-46% plurality gives him favorable marks. This is down from a 49-30% positive rating he received in March.

—On "canceling his request for a $50 rebate to each taxpayer," Carter receives negative marks of 51-42%.

There are also signs of an erosion in the way the public regards Carter's foreign policy, although he still receives a healthy 64-32% positive rating on "working for peace in the world":

—His "handling of relations with Russia" gets a 43-41% negative rating, down from a 48-24% positive rating in March.

—His "handling of the SALT talks with Russia" gets a negative rating of 42-37%.

—On his "handling of relations with China," the President scores no better than 38-36% positive

There are a number of areas, however, on which President Carter is rated well by the public:

—By 61-22%, a sizeable majority continues to like his press conferences.

—By 75-14%, a lopsided majority gives him positive marks on "his seizure of Russian fishing trawlers in American waters."

—By 67-25%, a majority gives him high marks for "running an open government," although this is down from 77-13% positive in March.

—By 71-23%, he is rated positively for "cutting back frills in the White House," down, however, from 85-9% in March.

—By 56-37%, he receives positive marks for "his program to conserve energy." However, by 60-31%, a solid majority gives him a negative rating on "his call for a 5-cent standby tax per gallon of gasoline."

—By 48-31%, he is well regarded on his "handling of relations with our western allies."

—By 41-25%, he is credited with doing a good job of "handling the crisis in Zaire."

—By 51-35%, he receives a positive rating on his "appointments to high office."

—By 52-25%, the public expresses a positive reaction to his fireside chats, although this is down from a 65-17% positive score in March.

—By 49-30%, a plurality liked his "call-in radio program," although enthusiasm has cooled from the 61-22% majority who reacted favorably in March.

In short, some of the edge is clearly off President Carter's popularity, although his overall standing is strong and confidence in him is still high. Whether the public's doubts about the way he is handling certain important substantive areas will undermine this confidence and regard remains to be seen. The last occupant of the Oval Office whose personal popularity seemed to be unaffected by his day-to-day performance was Dwight Eisenhower. However, if Carter cannot improve his standing in the key areas of domestic economy and foreign policy, he may find his emphasis on open government and style could well run thin in the months ahead.

Realism pervades simulated disaster

By Jim Camden
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln emergency and rescue personnel put their training and procedures to the test Thursday and discovered they needed a little practice.

Like a scenario straight from a Hollywood disaster film, fire and ambulance units, police officers, sheriff's deputies and Red Cross and Civil Defense planners converged on the parking lot of the State Fairgrounds.

Amid clouds of gray smoke created to simulate a helicopter crash, the 150 "victims" were sorted, diagnosed and carted off to local hospitals.

Norm Francis, civil defense director and drill coordinator, called the mock disaster a learning experience.

"We expected to make some mistakes and we did," Francis said. There were problems with communication and getting the "victims" to hospitals and with slow responses.

The mock disaster called for a simulated helicopter crash at the fairgrounds in what might have been the middle of an average State Fair weekday. Calls to all law enforcement agencies and rescue units were made and the "injured" were sorted into critical, walking wounded and not seriously hurt categories.

The best actor award would have to go to a small boy, depicting a decapitated victim, who laid immobile on the hot asphalt for more than an hour and a half.

Several of the "victims" actually suffered minor casulaties from inhaling too much of the billowing gray smoke. All were treated and released after short observation periods. In one sense they were lucky — there was probably no better place to be in Lincoln if you needed medical attention.

The "victims" were transported to hospitals via Lincoln Transportation System buses.

Francis said the mock disaster was an attempt to see how plans on paper actually work. He said Lincoln probably can look forward to at least one major drill a year to keep honing local emergency systems.

Francis estimated that several hundred persons were involved in the drill.

Crash kills farm wife

Lincoln Star Special

Hebron — A Hebron farm wife, Mrs. Arthur (Lois K.) Daringer, 57, was killed three miles north of here Thursday morning when the pickup truck she was driving collided with a tractor-trailer, the Thayer County sheriff's office reported.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Daringer, who had been northbound on U.S. 81, turned around at an intersection in an attempt to head south, an investigating officer said.

The southbound tractor-trailer, driven by David E. Nelson, 26, of 3712 N.W. 49th St., Lincoln, hit the pickup broadside, the officer's report revealed. Both drivers were traveling alone.

A can of the chemical Treflon in the Daringer pickup exploded and caused minor injury to the Lincoln trucker when he attempted to help the Hebron woman, it was reported. Nelson was treated and released from a Hebron hospital.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Daringer is survived by sons, Arthur A. of Reynolds and Don R. of Lincoln; daughters, Mrs. Dean (Karen) Hume of Lincoln and Mrs. Don (Marilyn) Hooper of Omaha; three brothers, four sisters and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Daringer will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Hebron.

Arrest made in film theft

Cedar Rapids, Iowa (UPI) — Edward J. Wedelstedt, 35, Cedar Rapids, was arrested by the FBI in connection with the theft of 1,135 allegedly pornographic films valued at $33,375 from a Chicago, Ill. firm.

Omaha woman dies in collision

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha woman was killed and another woman injured in the collision of an automobile and semi-trailer at an intersection in southwest Omaha Thursday, police said.

The dead woman was identified as Mary Mohr, 54, who was a passenger in a car driven by Betty Smyth, 46. The driver was hospitalized in serious condition with multiple injuries, police said.

Investigators said the car was making a left-hand turn from 132nd Street to L Street when it was in collision with the semi driven by Maximel Velasquez, 23.

PUBLIC NOTICE

RE: Dissemination of Noxious Weeds

Lancaster County Weed Control Authority has dedicated itself not only to noxious weed control, but also to the prevention of dissemination of noxious weed seed. The Director of Agriculture has determined that noxious weed seed may be disseminated through the movement of machinery and equipment, grain and seed, hay, straw, nursery stock, fencing materials, sod, manure, and soil as well as articles of similar nature. Methods of treatment have also been prescribed by the Director and may be obtained from the Lancaster County Weed Control Authority.

With the harvest season approaching very rapidly, please keep in mind the provisions of the law requiring owners of harvest equipment to clean prior to movement to another field. This machinery and equipment being used in the harvest of crops should be treated or cleaned as follows.

1. Removal of all material from the tops and sides of all parts of the machine by sweeping and the use of forced air and water.

2. Opening the lower end of all elevators, returns, and measuring devices and removal of all noxious weed seeds and seedlings from shakers, sieves, and other places of lodgment.

3. Run the machine empty for a minimum of five minutes, alternately increasing and decreasing the speed.

4. Follow the manufacturer's detailed instructions for cleaning the machine.

These treatments should be performed while the article or the machine itself is still on the land in which it became infested if at all possible. This will not only prevent spreading noxious weed seed from one field to another, but also from one land owner to another.

For treatment methods of all other articles and questions, please contact the Lancaster County Weed Control Authority.

Dale S. Trausch, Superintendent Lancaster County Weed Control Authority

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska has been designated by the U S Department of Labor as a Prime Sponsor under provisions of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) The City of Lincoln has recently been advised that additional funds under Title VI Public Service Employment (PSE), of the Act have been released to local Prime Sponsors to combat the continuing shortage of employment opportunities for persons experiencing long term unemployment and a low economic standard of living

Title VI legislative requirements place emphasis on providing employment for the long term unemployed veterans, and recipients of Welfare Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) Thus, eligible participants will be selected from these groups of people The specific eligibility requirements for participants are as follows

First Live within the corporate limits of the City of Lincoln

Second Be a member of a family which has a total family income equal to or less than the allowable lower standard income level as follows

Family Size	Annual Income	Family Size	Annual Income
1	$2420	4	$6710
2	$3960	5	$7920
3	$5440	6+	$9260

Third Fit any one of the additional criteria

a Be a member of a family receiving Aid to Families to Dependent Children (AFDC) or
b Have been receiving unemployment compensation for fifteen weeks or more or
c Be determined ineligible for unemployment compensation and have been unemployed for fifteen or more weeks or
d Have exhausted all unemployment compensation benefits or e Be a veteran who he served for 180 days of active duty was discharged or released from active duty for a service connected disability providing such a veteran has not obtained employment between the time of discharge and the time the application for participation into Title VI project is taken

The certification of eligibility is being accomplished by the local Job Service office 1610 "O" Street Lincoln Nebraska All applicants found eligible will be placed in an applicant pool and referred to approved sub agent work sites after matching job skills and abilities requested by the sub agent with those possessed by eligible clients

If you feel that you meet any of the above criteria for eligibility please contact the local Job Service office 1610 "O" Street for a determination of eligibility

This program is being administered by Lincoln CETA and is totally funded from allocations by Congress through the aforementioned legislation
